already turned. On the evening before the battle, consternation had taken place amongst the chiefs. They discovered that they were badly posted and their play was to be for the whole of their monarchy. They all said, " ah! well, we shall pay for it with our persons;" which is commonly the sentiment of men who retain little hope. The queen remained constantly at head-quarters at Weymar; it became necessary to tell her at last, that circumstances became serious, and that on the next day great cvils might take place for the Prussian monarchy; she wished that the kingshould tell her to depart; she was shortly after prepared or setting out.

Lord Morpeth, sent by the court of London to merchandize for Prussian blood, a mission truly unworthy of a man like him, arrived on the 11th at Weymar charged to make seducing offers and to propose conside able subsidies. The horizon was already sufficiently obscured; the cabinet would not see this envoy, but m de known that perhaps there was little safety for his person, and advised him to return to Hamburg, and there wait events What would the dutchess of Devoushire have said if she had seen her relative charged with the business of blowing up the flame of war, with having come to offer empoisoned gold and be obliged to return disconsolate on his steps and in great haste? We cannot but be indignant at seeing England compromit the fate of estimable agents and play so odious a part.

We have no accounts yet of the conclusion of a treaty between Prussia and Russia, and it is certain that not a single Russian to this day has appeared on the Prussian territory; however, the army find an Austerlitz in Prussia.

Prince Louis Ferdinand, of Prussia, and the other generals who have fallen under the first blows of the French, are movers of this incredible frenzy. The is of all the men who have been drawn into it, he who was most a stranger to ready offered sixty millions to redeem

We will ask what will England gain by all 1 . . . She might have reco ered Harmer, kept the Cape of Good Hope, pressived Malta, made an bonorable. peace, and, restored tranquility to the world. But slie chose to excite Prussia against France, and wished to circumscribe the emperor and France.

An weil ! she has led Prussia to ruin; procured greater giory for the emperor, to France, ceater power, and the time approaches when they will declare linplans in .. staate of continental blockade. Is it then with block that the English have hoped to aliment their commerce and reanimate their industry? Great misfortunes may fall upon England, and Europe will attribute them to the loss of that honest minister who wis ed to govern by great and liberat-'ideas, and whom the English people will weep over one day ith tears of blood.

Extract of a letter from our correspondent at Washington, dated January 22, 1867. This day has been read in the House of Representatives with open doors, a special message from the President in relation to the object and nature of the conspiracy of Aaron Burr. This communication is in pursuance of the resolution of the House of last Friday requesting information upon this very interesting subject. It appears that this arch traitor when at Philadelphia last July sent to Gen. Wilkinsor. by different routes two confidential agents, Swartwout and Bollman, carrying to him-one the original, the other a duplicate of a letter. in expher, disclosing to him his object and his means. With great addreis the General obtainek from these emissaries full information of the forces of Cel. Burr and of the time and manner of the intended attack upon New-Orleans, and with the honor of a soldier he communicated the same from time to time to the President. The message will be forwarded to you without Captain Clark, who accompanied captain Lewis in his tour to the Pacific ocean, has ar rived at Washington in good health.

Died yesterday morning, Mary Clementina, age i three years, the daughter of William Young Lewis, of this city.

A Washington paper states that CÆSAR A RODNEY, Esq. has been appointed Attorney General of the United States, vice John Breckenridge, Esq. deceased.

It is said the Criminal Court, now sitting, adjourned yesterday, without entering into Von Harten's trial, in consequence of the chief judge's informing the court of the death of Wm. S Summers, Esq. clerk of said court; to meet this day at 10 o'clock.

COMMUNICATION.

MR. EDITOR, Having observed that the President and Directors of the Water Company have commenced laying Iron pipes, in order to convey water into the city; and as I feel considerably interested, I beg leave to ask, whether the water conveyed through those pipes will answer for washing Linen, &c. or whicher it will not always leave spots of rust i A STOCKHOLDER. The following is a sketch of the substance of the documents delivered to congress by the president, relative to Burr's conspiracy !-

House of Representatives of the United States.

- January 22: -A communication, in writing, was rexived from the president of the United tates; and on motion of Mr. Randolph he committee of the whole rose for the urpose of having the communication

The president's message was then read. It is long and interesting. Great anxiety

the clerk was reading it. It details the county. information possessed by the executive, respecting the conspiracy in the western Rev. Mr. Glendy, Mr. David Boyle, to Miss parts of the union, and the manner in Jane Neale, both of this city. which the information was obtained, and openly DENOUNCES AARON BURR as the leader of the conspiracy. It mentions that in consequence of this informations orders were sent to general Wilkinson, on the 8th of November, to hasten an accommodation with the Spanish commandant on the Sabine, in order to make preparations for resisting the enterprize-That on the 25th November, a letter had Smith, W. Yaol, J. Caldwell, lady and family. been received from general Wilkinson A. M'Donald, R. Moore, and Mary Moore stating that he (Wilkinson) had received, [The ship is still below.] a letter from Burr, written partly in cyphers, the object of which was to induce Lass were to sail for New York in 5 days. The the general and the army under his ship Ulysses had just arrived. Captain F. says command, to engage in the nefarious en- the ship Charleston, Vebb, from Charleston, terprize—that the real objects of the conspiracy were, to effect a separation of the union westward of the Allegany mountains and an attack on Mexico; but that | Curracoa [probably the Marriner.] Pr. James -the ostensible object was, to settle certain. lands belonging to a baron Bastrop-that all this information had been received by the latter end of November-that a certifeate had been received from general Wilkinson, containing a developement of the plot-that little apprehensions need be entertained from any attack on New-Orleans—and that there did not appear to be any foundation for the report that | tigua. The frigate which captured her had the conspirators were to be aided by a foreign force.

The certificate and letter of general Wilkinson, referred to in the message, was then read. They mention, that had caused three prasons, principally con-States. If Burrshould e mmit any overt act of cerned, to be arrested; one of whom (doctor Bollman) had been sent to Charleston in the vesseel which carried the dispatch; another (Swartwout) would be sent to Baltimore in the course of a few days; and the other (Ogden) would be sent as soon as possible—that the proofs of guilt would be sent on with each; that they had been sent sepa rately, for the purpose of preventing any communication or concert between them. The certificate states, " on the honor of a soldier and the holy evangelists of Almighty God." the offer made by Burr general Wilkinson—it also includes a copy of Burr's letter, as the general understood it; this letter is expressed in very vague terms; the decyphering of general Wilkinson, however, rendered it sufficiently intelligible: it says," Wilkinson shall be second to Burr only," and ! authorises general W. to "draw on Burr to any amount;" it declares that Mr. T. has gone to Jamaica to make arrangements with the English admiral-that the navy of the U. States is ready—that it is a field for " choice spirits' - and that the "best blood of the nation" is engaged to support the cause, &c.

> Washington, December 21. Extract of a letter from a gentlement of the first respectability to a member of Congress, dated Knassille, Tennessee, 29th December. 1806. "I believe this place is not the feat of any combination to deprive the people of their government—nor is it the theatre of any preparatery arrangements to attack any foreign power-hut rumor at this period founds aloud from the west. A few days since Cel. Burr was at Nathville. Arrangements were made at Nathville for descending the river with a number of provision boats, faid to be intended to accompary Burr in his unknown expedition. Last evening a mamairized from Nathville, who fays Mr. ——— is going and feveral others. Extract of a letter from a gentleman of the bigbest respectability resident in Knoxwille, (Ten.) to a member of Congress, in this place.—The writer left Knoxville on the first, and bis letter is dated Lexington, Vir. 11th Jan. 1807.

" Much interest has been excited by the conspiracy of Furr and others. I suppose you are in possession of more facts than I am, as to its object, extent, &c. The people of E. Tennessee almost unanimously exclaim against the characters who are so lost to virtue and patriotifm as to engage in any scheme of the like kind. A separation of the union, which is supposed to be mediately and ultimately in view, is deprecated by every man (two or three excepted) in E. Tennessee. by the latest intelligence I possels, his military preparations for attack on any part of Mexico or any other part, are entirely frustrated. The capture of the boats, &c. on the Ohio'has certainly given him a fatal blow .-He was in Nashville from early in December till after Christmas, his head quarters, (if he had. any) during that time were at ----'s ---; during his stay there Mr. ---, capt. --- and fome others were engaged in his party; a number of other young men of the vicinity of that place were to have partaken of his fortunes but at the crisis of his departure many of them thrunk from the undertaking-on my. way from Knoxville I faw Mr. A - directly from Nashville-he told me he faw Burr on Christmas day at -- 's (near Nasbuille) and that on the next day he descended Cumberland river in a beat that a son of colonel party-that young H, was to have gone, but on the moment of departure, he declined .-That he (Mr. A----) was in company with Nor. H. afternards, and that he procured from him information, that the point of dellination and attack, was a rich Spanish town, from which was expected considerable plunder. -Mr. was to follow Burr in a few days with the other boats-four in all were what he heard of going from that place—that an express or message had been dispatched to the Ohioof the sime when he intended to start, and probably where he defired them to join him at the mouth of Cumberland. It is probable he had not then known of the capture of his boats or the Ohio.

N. E. Mr. A. and Mr. H. are respectable characters, whole veracity may be relied upon.
