A REPORT OF THE TRIAL OF
THOMAS OLIVER SELFRIDGE, ESQ.
On an indictment for Manslaughter, for killing
MR. CHARLES AUSTIN,
On the public Exchange in Boston,
AUGUST 4, 1866.

[The lively interest which this extraordinary occurrence had excited in the public mind, called for a full and impartial statement of Facts, both in the development of the testimony, and the pleadings which took place at the trial.—This injunction appears to have been fulfilled in the present publication, as it comes from the press, sanctioned by the official reporter of the state and under the supervision of the court itself. The public are therefore presented with all the documents necessary to form a correct understanding of the subject, as well in relation to the unhappy catastrophe, as to the course and operation of the laws in cases of this nature.]
AT THE SAME PLACE MAY BE HAD,
A correct Statement of the whole
PRELIMINARY CONTROVERSY
Between Thomas Oliver Selfridge, and Benjamin Austin, (father of the deceased Charles Austin.)
BY THOMAS OLIVER SELFRIDGE.
"He takes my life,
"When he doth take the means whereby I live."
[This pamphlet embraces a variety of matter, immediately relevant to the unhappy occurrence, which deprived Mr. Charles Austin of life; in which the author in vindicating his conduct in this extraordinary affair, is drawn into a retrojection of the general character of Benjamin Austin. In adopting this mode, Mr. Selfridge has given loofe to a boldness of aspersions, seldom found in the writings of our best authors, and which reflect great credit on his genius and learning.]
