A. C. D. LAVIGNE,
HAVING heard of the envious expressions uttered by certain common talkers, miserable chin scrippers, and frizurary quacks, tending to depreciate that superiority which genius is entitled to and talents will invariably command, he hereby puts them and their vulgar arts at defiance, and scorning to hold parley with such sneaking rascals, proposes to any gentleman to defend and maintain at his Shop, the Head-Quarters of fashion, No. 6, South Gay-street, against all persons whomsoever, his title to supremacy in cutters, wiggy and razors, to the amount of 100 dollars and upwards! As hostile as he is to that low style of puffery adopted by a certain adventurer, Jelevd Higgins, LAVIGNE cannot avoid declaring in the face of the world that his education has been scientific; that after having finished his studies at Paris, he took the tour of the universe—having had the rare fortune of regulating the heads of Catherine II. and the Grand Turk; the King of Persia and the Emperor of China; the Mamelukes of Egypt and the Dey of Algiers, together with all the ladies of their respective courts: He has visited Cape of Good-Hope, India, Java, Madagascar, Tartary, and Kamtschatka, whence he reached the United States by the way of Cape-Horn: In England he had previously tarried, where he delivered Lectures on Heads in great style, and received much applause. He has at last settled down at Baltimore, determined to devote the remainder of his days to the high profession to which his destiny has called him—Inviting all the littérati, the lovers of the arts and sciences, to visit him at his Laboratory of Beauty, where he has separate rooms for accommodating ladies and gentlemen, who desire to adorn their heads with hair-dressing.
