FROM THE BANKS OF THEELBE, March

Notwithstanding the lofty language still held by the French in their bulletins and reports, it is generally believed here, that we shall foon be convinced of their faischood, and inceed, one or two circumftances already intimated as much. That the corps diplomatique has left Warlaw is now admitted, and are affured, from good authority, that at Stettin the general post-office has refused to receive any more letters for

According to letters from Berlin, Bonaparte " is expected this week in that city, together with his guz d. It is supposed that he will have no further object than to Support himself during the rest of the winter on the Oder, the military position of which is also interesting as it refpecis Aultria.

A variety of reports, concerning the real issue of the vatious engagements since the battle of Lyfau, are in circulation; the most plausible of which is, that 17,000 of the French were redu. ced by hunger to lay down their arms and beg for bread. This news is brought from Kiel .-Gen. Blucher is said to have confirmed it, adding that it was the corps under Oudinott. But I cannot pledge my felt for the truth of it.

It is further said that the I reach have been trying to perduade the empe or of China to declare war against the Russians, but without fuc-

LONDON, March 26. A very interesting conversation took place est night in the house of commons, upon the motion of Mr. Martin for an address to his majesty, praying that he would not grant any office for life which had usually been granted during pleasure. This motion was directed against Mr. Perceval, to whom it was in contemplation to grant the chancellorship of the Duchy of Lancaster for lite, as a compensation to him for giving up his profession on accepting the office of chancellor of the exchequer. Mr. Perceval took his seat on the Treasury Bench, and after having expressed his sentiments up n the motion he withurew. On a division, the numbers were-

We are forty to state that a woman and child were burutito death in the late fire in Greenwich-street; their bodies were picked out of the rubbish yesterday morning. We have not learned their names.

Our London and Liverpool papers by the brig Bedford are to the 28th of March. The vessel left the rock on the 3d of April.

The Porte has declared war against England In consequence (as it is faid,) of a prompt declaration of Admiral Louis, that unless the Grand Seignior would consent to renew the ancient treaty with Russia and Great Eritain be would approach Conflantinople, and lay it In ashes. "The Divan, in the height of its infatuation (says one of our London papers) could not have taken's more decided flep to accelerate the downfall of the Ottoman Empire." On Saturday last it was discovered, that and

BROKER of this city, had made free with the names of several of the most respectable citizens, to answer his pecuniary ends. He hadrit ap pears, from investigation, is such motes to the amount of about 70,000 Dollais, drawn by himself, and endorsed with such warmes as would be most likely to zive currency to his paper. These notes, it seems, have been fold 10 members of the Eumane Society, as they are called, but more generally known as eberers, Of course, the whole fol's falls on this numerous, uterul, and respectable body of citizens. The broker is not to be found; and nothing is more likeby than that he has staggered off under the weight, and at the tune of Seventy housand! In consequence of this circumitance, it is said that the shavere have come to a determination, in future, to charge four, inflead of three per cent. per month, tor money advanced, to repair the lois sustained by the un aithfulnels of the

A number of advertisements, omitted, shall appear in a supplement alter the arrival of the mails of the day.

Died on Tuesday morning, after a lingering illness, Blandaretta, the amisble dappette of General SANUEL SMITE aged about to years. In the memeries of those who knew ker, this young lady has an epitaph engraven more durable than marble.

On Saturday last departed this life rateria week's illness, in the 56th year of his agroams. David Moore, an old and truly respectable inhabitant of this city. He resigned his breath with the most evincing proof of experiencing future happiness. By his death society has lost one of its best members-as he was a stranger to avarice and deception. Chari.y, philanthropy, honefty, and real friendship were his peculiar characterifics.

A person who from a long acqu intance knew his worth, pays this sincere tribute of respect to the memory of his deceased friend.

Mr. Printer,

At the adjournment of the Commissioners this day, there were 82,000 dollars subscribed to the Maryland, and 24,000 dollars to the Pennsylvana Stock, for completing and extending the Susquehanna, commonly called the York Road:

Some of the Insurance Companies have generously lent their aid to hasten the completion of the Stock, and a number of gentlemen from Old Town and the Point added their names to the list of Stockholders; this, it is hoped and believed, will in uce other individuals and public todies to come forward; and the Commissioners will open the books again, to-morrow morning at the same place, to afford them an opportunity. may 13

From a late London paper. Sir John Mandeville, as authentic a liar as ever wrote, tells us that on his voyage to the north, in a certain latitude the cold was so intense, that three days successively the words of all the ship's company were frozen as fast as they were spoken, and being aft ruaris suddenly dissolved in a thaw, the air was filled with the strangest gabble that ever was heard, every syllable that had been even whispered in the frost being then distinctly repeated, making altogether a confusion of tongues like the breaking up among the builders of Babel. It seems probable that immediately after the battle of Pultusk, &c. on the 26th of December, one of Sir John's frosts set in sharply, and for three days also, (the 27th, 28th and 29th, on which we have heard so many bloody battles) froze together in one enormous mass, all the rumors that were uttered in Poland and Prussia concer ing that engagement; these have been thawing ever sidee and overwhelming Europe with torrents of absurdities and contradictions, never surpassed by Sir John Mandeville himself, or any. offier lying traveller to this day. We refer our readers to the histories themselves both in our present an! former papers. From the whole it seems pretty certain that both armies -have for the present suspended hostilities.
