*Executors may 19 law44 TO THE COMMANDERS, O. FICERS,

AND SEAMEN IN GENERAL, OF THE UNITED STATES. REAT part of the maritime world is already abundantly fensible of the value and importance of ascert ining the longitude at sea by lunar observations. It is univerfally allowed by the most eminent mathematicians and aftronomers, that the method of finding the longitude at lea by oblerving the distance between the Sun and Moen, or a fixed Star, commonly called lunar observations, is the best that learning and genius have been able to devile; and therefore any improvement that may be made in reducing the observed to the true distance, mull be hig ly acceptable to the practical navigator.

The principal difficulties have been in the calculations, for refraction and parailax; to perfor which and thereby bring the subject within the reach of every feaman, a short, simple and accurate method has long been a desideratum. The Prolixity of most methods now generally used, has deterred many respectable seam n f om attempting to learn that eminently useful branch of nautical science. From these co siderations, and a wish to entribute as for as he was able, to every uleful improvement for the advantage of his fraternity, the fu scriber was induced to publifit Dunn's Longitude TABLES accompanied by a formula directing the process; by the affiftance of which any person of moderate comprehension may perform the operation of clearing the distance, and afterwards, by a comparison of the computed and predicted diffances in the naut cal almanac, find the apparent time at Greenwich, the difference between which and the apparent time at the ship, turned into longitude, gives the longitude of the ship. The publisher has used these tables for several voyages to every part of India, and always found the distance corrected by them strictly to agree with those corrected by Mackays. Dunthorns, or any method with which he compared them. They are also generally used by the officers in the English East India Compamy's service, to whom the author had the sole privilege of teaching them. When mariners now unacquainted with the lunar method, have experienced it superiority to the dead reckoning, which at best, is but an uncertainty, they will approach the land after any passage, with a confidence and certainty known only to proficients in the science. Should the publication of these tables contribute to diffuse a more general knowledge of this subject among my seasaring brethren, I shall be proud of having had the honor of introducing so useful an improvement into the Uniter States.

Of the authenticity of these Tables, information may be had by application to Mr. John D. Craig, Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, in the College of Baltimore. SAML. NAYLOR.
