Notice:

I am resolved to be cautious in what money or cost I may have occasion to pay to John Picket, who calls himself a Deputy Sherdf, under Mr. John Hunter, of Baltimore county; for some days ago the said Picket called on me to serve a fieri fuicias on me as administrator of Captain Charles Wells, for certain costs due by the estate of said capt. Wells for Non. Pros. The money was due; but not having been demanded had not been paid. Before the said Picket went any further than summoving his appraisers (who were summoned before I knew any thing of his process, although Picket passed by the door a minute or two before, choosing however to be silent) the money was paid. The first intelligence I had of the affair was on the arrival of said Picket at the door with his appraisers. As soon as he told his business the money was qui kly paid, and before he had any time to go further. Still the said Picket demanded the cost on 35 d lis. 88 cents and an half, amounting 3 doi s. 58 certs. A short time after I began to think the said Picket had received more than ms just due, and I stepped down to the Sherni's office to ascertain the fact. After I mintioned it to Mr John Hunter, he examined the law and paid a part of it back. But the said Ficket being there he made an objection by saying that he was entitled to it by swearing his appraisers. But the fact is they never were sworn by the said Picket at any time whatever. Therefore there is reason to believe that said Picket has gone into the practice of receiving more than his just due: First, from part of it being paid back; and secondly by saying that he had sworn his appraisers, which they totally deny. The thing shews for itself. Was the cost due wishout swearing appraisers? If so, what enormous costs must accrue where appraisers are sworn and actually appraise! At I ast, I presume, one third of the prin spal! If the sail Picket has been entithe to the money, would it have been paid back? or would it have been paid back if it had been legally received? Ought this man to be kept in office after this foul proceeding? If he took too much from me, he may take too much from another, and hundreds by suffer Doubtless, who will Hunter sees and business explained, he will dis hirge him, and let him go to his old business again. RICHARD ROLOSON.

Johnny Picket!

I find you have made your second appearance, but not yet for any more idegal fees, I may suppose because there has been no opportunity. But I find you have denied the principar part of my statement. Ah! Johnny: I so all get a f w gentlemen to establish the affair; that is, Mr. Bouldin and Mr. Edward Pannell, who were the gentlementa it you ralled upon as appraisers. But Johnny, where could you have been at the time you sword thos: gentlemen? I presume you must have been near the old resultance; either at Stoney Hill or Rangal's Town—and those gend men at their own awellings in Howard str et. Those gentlemen declare they never were sworn, to the best of their knowledge, at any time what ver! Joinny, you must have been a great distance apart, for you to have sworn those gentlem n and they not to recollect it And Johnny, we shall go further, if this will not satisfy you, we will call upon Mr. Hunter to attest that he paid me lack one oilar and twenty five cents, and also had a receipt of said money, being 36 doniars 83 1-2 sents-Likewise, the cost held back of 2 dollars 33 cents I consider Johnny, you think all this to be right. No doubt Johnny but what you may think it so, for I have often heard it for a saymg, long practice makes periect; no doubt it may have been the cas with you-But Johnny, how would it have been, had it been ten times the amount? Why, as lieve so as any way; for there would have been ten times the cost. This is the way we go on; for I don't care who is the loser so I am the gamer; and I d'n't care who sinks so I swim Johnny, you know if I had not come down, I never should have received what money I did ba k; for am sure you never would have brought it to me, atter making such objections to giving it up, at er being accused with it, by saying that tou were entited to it by swearing your appraisers. How could you have sworn the appraisers without their knowing it? Beware pinney; I have often heard it for a saying hat the tub seldom goes often to the well with out getting a hoop lost.

RICHARD ROLOSON. N. B Mr. John Hunter, is not in anywis implicate in Picket's conduct. It is not believed that Mr. Hunter would knowingly take too much money from any man; or attempt to keep it, after the impropriety was explained to
