TO THE CURIOUS.

A live Calloway,

To be seen at No. 15, Market space, in the house adjoining Wm. C. Carter's auction room, which will be put in complete order for the reception of the ladies and gentlemen, who will choose to favour me with their company.

This Animal is a native of the island Borneo, and was brought here in the ship American Chief from Batavia. It is young and in full possession of every faculty, and with the attention of every person. The following extract from Pennant's Hindostan shows the curiosity which is hereby the lovers of Nature, being comfortable to the description given.—(See Vol. 1st. p. 4c.)

The Cassowary is nearly equal in size to the ostrich, but its legs are much thicker and stronger in proportion. It is five feet and an half high, from the foot to the end of the claws: the legs are two feet, and an half high from the heel. The head and neck together are a foot and an half: and the largest toe is five inches long. The wing is so small that it does not appear, being under the feathers of the back. The plumage throughout, instead of the soft, waving appearance of the ostrich, is more like that of horny bristles, and of a jet black colour, and yellow behind. And down its neck it has five, and in several, six wattles. The Cassowary has the head of a Vulture, the eyes of a lizard, the distance of a [illegible] and the voice of a Turkey. It will swallow glass and even live and [illegible] with the voracity, &c.

Is to be seen every day, (Sundays excepted) from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 in the afternoon. Admittance 25 Cents.

Plan and View of New-Orleans.

A Subscription is now opening for the plan of New Orleans and environs, with a perspective view of the city, engraved by M. Tanesse, from drawings taken on the spot by Mr. Boqueta de Woiseri, Geographer and Engineer to the United States Land Office, and which have been approved of by the Surveyor General of the United States, and which have generally received the sanction of Congress, together with the Plans of the several Districts, Counties and Parishes of the Territory of Orleans.

The plan of New Orleans and its environs with a perspective view of the city, designed by M. Boqueta de Woiseri, Geographer and Engineer. The plan, of a scale of 16 inches by 12, contains the Lots of New Orleans, with its suburbs, the adjacent country, Canal de Carondelet, so called after the governor who projected it, which connects by means of the Bayou St. John that empties into lake Pontchartrain, the intercourse between New Orleans, Mobile and Pensacola. An inspection of this plan presents to the intelligent eye, the facility with which the internal trade of this important peninsula may hereafter be promoted by means of canals intersecting with the Gulf and the Mississippi. The plan declares, Barracks, Hospital, Cathedral, Convent of the Ursuline nuns, Maison de Ville, Government House, and other principal edifices with the environs, extending six or seven miles about the city, are likewise correctly delineated, as also a small topographical Map of Louisiana, with the [illegible] Sabine ground its numerous tributary rivers, destined to waft their rich products of the Western waters to the future emporium of the Gulph of Mexico. A table of reference, embellished with ornamental devices elucidates the whole.

"The perspective view of the city of New-Orleans is on a scale of [illegible] inches by 12. The point of view has been very judiciously chosen at the [illegible] of the city at Fort St. Carlos, [illegible] which commands a fine coup d'œil of the two principal streets, the Levee with the shipping in the river, the principal street fronting the river. The elevation of the buildings in the style of architecture in this interesting city is a sight very different from our own, but perfectly adapted to a southern climate.

"After a critical examination of the plan and perspective, we can truly assert, from personal knowledge, that they are taken with a fidelity and correctness which do honor to the artist. We most heartily wish Mr. Boqueta every success, and respectfully recommend his labours to the patronage of the munificent citizens of the United States."

The above has been encouraged by some of the most respectable characters in Charleston, Boston, New-York, and Philadelphia.
