Just publish'd,

And to be Sold by the Printer hereof,

A PRESENT for an APPRENTICE: Or, a sure Guide to gain both ESTEEM and ESTATE. With Rules for his Conduct to his MASTER, and in the WORLD. By a late LORD-MAYOR of London. It is thus recommended:

A pamphlet hath been twice published within this twelvemonth, called, A Present for an Apprentice; which on account of its unpromising title, I don't question but many others as well as myself, have overlooked. Seemingly calculated for low and unexperienced life, it excited no curiosity in those above that level. 'Twas therefore, with not a little surprize, that, on dipping into it, I found such a system of morality and economy, as persons of all ranks might improve by, delivered in such a stile, as the most accomplished reader, might be delighted with: in short, a work, which if universally known, would be an universal good, as containing all the requisites, to render mankind better, wise, sociable and virtuous.

To be SOLD for Bills of Exchange, whole Gold, Paper Currency, or good heavy Tobacco.
