Baltimore County's Bountiful Bowers.— The editor of the Country Gentleman, Albany, New York, recently paid a visit to two of the many sequestered bowers to be found here in Baltimore county, ("Stoneleigh" and "Hampton.") In the issue of the Gentleman of the 6th inst. the editor says of " STONELEIGH :" Six miles north of the centre of Baltimore, on the great road connecting that city with York, Pa., and at a point commanding such extensive views in all directions that it was occupied during the war as a signal station, lies "Stoneleigh," a farm of 140 acres belonging to the estate of the late George Brown, and now operated by his son-in-law, Mr. Frederick von Kapff. The place is a most attractive one, with genily rolling surface flow models? one, with gently rolling surface, fine wooded lawns and drives about the mansion, and magnificent crops of grain and grass—in fact the wheat, forced on in growth by an unusually favorable spring, seemed to be in danger of falling and lodging, when we saw it, toward the end of May.

Forty years ago this tract was open common, treeless and uninviting. Its tractions is leavely due to careful study of the pages of the Horticultu rist by the late proprietor, who was a warm admirer of the lamented Downing. Inspired by the genius of that delightful writer, he began, at about the time mentioned, a thorough and systematic renovation of the entire property. A fertile soil, gravelly loam on clay, needed not much beyond thorough underdraining to develop its possibilities in the direction of arable farming; and we judge for the dead, when the Rev. J. F. Goucher. D. D. of that Mr. Brown was able to dismiss this part of his First M. E. Church of Baltimore City followed by undertaking somewhat briefly, devoting his deepest thought and care to what was evidently a congenial task-the making of grass-fields, the laying out of roads, and especially the planting of trees in almost innumerable variety and perhaps rather unnecessary profusion. As one passes over the excellent drive from the gate to the house, shut in on each side and shaded overhead by what seem to be almost monarchs of the forest, it is hard to realize floral offerings were many and of exquisite beauty. that every one of them was planted within the memory of persons not yet old. Three lessons trite but often neglected, are forcibly emphasized by this beautiful park, so youthful, yet so well developed—first, that it is well worth while to plant trees purely for ornament, considering that so munificent a return may be looked for within what is not, after all, a very long period of time: second, that it is all.

the full development, in its well rounded perfection, of each individual tree. If such free cutting is negected, two unfortunate results follow-it is actually distressing to the sympathetic owner to attack trees now finely grown, and it becomes increasingly difficult with each passing year to remove any tree without leaving some other, that has been injured by its close proximity imperfect or ill balanced. These difficulties are felt at Stoneleigh, but seem likely to be overcome by the exercise of discriminating aste and careful study. Merely along the avenue from the gate to the house, hardly exceeding half a mile in length, no less than 108 good-sized trees were removed last year without leaving anywhere a perceptible gap.
The farm is operated on a seven-year rotation corn, oats, wheat, and then four years in clover and timothy, which grow at a great rate after the wheat, and of course make an excellent preparation for corn. All the fertilizers used (barnyard manure and bonedust) are applied to the wheat; and the results are very satisfactory, averaging 12 barrels of corn on cob to the acre, 40 bushels of oats and 28 of wheatnot "brag" crops, but very good crops, year in and year out It is however rather the Stoneleigh Jerseys than its heavy crops and beautiful park that have made the place known. Readers of the Country Gentlenan are familiar with Mr. von Kapif's name as a buyer, breeder and occasional advertiser of the butter breed; and he has been a worthy member of the on the Board of Directors of that organization. And he discourses thus of "HAMPTON: We visited, with Mr. von Kapff, the famous Hampton estate near Towsontown, the seat of the Ridgely family for many generations, and well worth going a long distance to see. Some 7,000 acres of land are included, of which all but about a thousand are le to tenants. The remainder is partly farmed and partly devoted to cattle and horses; but a liberal area is reserved for woods and ornamental grounds, The mansion, standing on a high point and overlooking, at least in one direction, an extensive and external appearance, and possesses peculiar interest within, in its spacious halls, its antique internal finish, and its innumerable old portraits and other paintings and mementoes of gone-even pre-revolutionary-days. The hillside back of the house has been laid out at large cost and with great labor, in broad and high terraces, adorned with gardens in the formal French style, which in this position are harmonious and beautiful. Considerable numbers of orange and lemon trees, with fruit nearly arge enough for use, were about to be removed rom the greenhouses, to add an additional charm to these fascinating grounds, at the time of our visit. Hampton, in short, has only a single deficiency to the eye-the lack of visible water. A akelet, a goldfish pond, or even a marble basin with tinkling fountain, would render it the realization f a landscape gardener's dream. We hope the editor will pay us another visit; our fine estates are by no means exhausted. Masonic Excursion and Pic-Nic at Bay

Towson M. E. Sunday School.-Last Sunday oth inst., was Children's Day in the Methodist Churches, and most of them held special services, having their churches trimmed with flowers and evergreen, which were beautiful to behold, and none, we are satisfied, had a better time than the Fowson M. E. Sunday School, Mr. James E. Dunphy, superintendent. At 11 A. M. the Pastor. Rev. Page Milburn, preached a sermon appropriate to the ocstation, which was listened to with attention by both old and young.
At 8 P. M. the Sunday School was formed in two lines in single file in the lecture room of the church and marched up into the audience room, headed on one side by the Pastor and Superintendent and on the other by Mr. John N. Wright, Assistant Superintendent, and Mr. John E. Flayhart, Secretary, heading the company of the contents.

The iron bridge near Beckleysville has been greatly damaged, and some ten other wooden bridges on the line of the Gunpowder Falls have been displaced or washed away entirely. Death of a Religence.—Sister Mary De Sales, of the Order of the Sisters of Mercy at Mt. St. Agnes. Mt. Washington, died on Friday last, 7th inst., of consumption. She had but a few months back been received into the order after her novitiate. She was a Miss Noone, of Cumberland, Md. Her funeral took place on Saturday, 8th inst., when the Rev. M. A. Fenne, Chaplain of the Convent, celebrated a solemn requiem mass. The remains were interred in the cemetery attached to the Convent.

A Social Citch.—Artisles of incorporation of "The Flag and Eagle Club of Baltimore County" were filed in the office of Mr. John W. Shanklin Clerk of the Circuit Court for Baltimore County on the 11th inst. The articles recites that the Club is formed for literary, social and scientific purposes, and has no capital stock. The incorporators are Messrs. Jos. H. Wright, D. A. L. Murray, Richard Bevans, Sam'l DeWolf, Samuel Brooks and Gee, H. Plaget.

Report on the Maryland Agricultural College.—The undersigned, appointed by the Club as a committee to visit the Maryland Agricultural College and Experiment Station, report that they made it their visit May 16th, reaching the College farm about 10.30 A. M. We were met at the Experiment Station by the President, Major Alvord, who devoted all the time of our stay (some four hours or more) to showing us over the Experiment Station grounds and College. The farm consists of about 360 acres of what the members of our Club would probably call rather unpromising land: very heavy probably call rather unpromising land: very heavy in the bottoms and inclined to gravel, with clay in the uplands, and badly in want of cultivation.

About fifty acres of the lowland, and apparently the best, has been chosen and laid off for field experiments of the Station and was being thoroughly underdrained. Major Alvord thought that with a judicious and generous use of manure and com-mercial fertilizers he could make a very good list of land for the required purposes of the Station. Of course it is expected that some experiments will be tried at times in different parts of the State on the widely different soils.

The Experiment Station building, formerly a large double brick mansion, standing near the Bal-timore and Washington Pike, has been raised one story, and, with some additions in the rear, was in very good shape to meet present needs.

The labaratory for analytical work, such as soils. fertilizers. &c., appeared to be quite complete, and the rest of the building was supplied with good accommodations for library, seed room, and offices for the President and his associates. The analysis of soils and fertilizers, the planting out of various kinds of vegetables, &c., with different kinds and quantities of fertilizers in plats accurately measured and numbered, were all going on at the time of our visit. The arrangements for recording tem-perature day and night, sunshine and rainfall, apperature day and night, sunsmitte and rainian, appeared to be very complete.

From the Experiment Station we visited the President's house where we were hospitably entertained and lunched. The ground about the house had been cleaned up and presented a good appearance.

We visited the stables, which had been improved as far as the limited means at command for this purpose would permit. A small sild in three sections had been added, which proved satisfactory.

The President brought with him to the College a few choice Jersey cattle, and the product from them was being used at the College.

The part chief of interest means the College. The next object of interest was the College and the outside chemical labaratory, not only for stu-dents' use, but where, under the present laws, the analysis of fertilizers is being made. The College is a large, substantially-built brick building, intended originally to form one wing of the College when complete The building addly made managing until method and out with some needs papering, painting inside and out, with some carpenter work. The grove wants thinning out and more sunlight let on the building; some little work done on the grounds immediately some little work done on the grounds immediately surrounding the building. With these improvements, which a moderate appropriation would cover, the whole place could be made very attractive. It is the want study, &c., we refer you to the annual report and catalogue; which can be had on application to Maj. catalogue; which can be had on application to Maj. Alvord, or any of the Professors.

Your committee think that the analysis of commercial fertilizers should all be done at the Experiment Station, leaving only confirmatory and other chemical work for the College labaratory.

We think it would be well for our Club to send committees annually to visit the Station and College so that we can not only judge of the progress made but encourage and stimulate those who are seeking to infuse new life and usefulness into what was not only well nigh being a corpse but far away was not only well nigh being a corpse, but far away from being in any sense an Agricultural College Considering the state of things as they were a little over a year ago and the present outlook we think Major Alvord has done wonders, and we trust he will be cordially supported by the farmers of the State and by the Legislature in granting such financial aid as is needed. Three or four States in the Union have Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations that are not only a credit to the State, but I great acknowledged benefit to the farmers, and here is no good reason why Maryland should be behind them. The U.S. government allows us $15. 000 per annum for the Station, which is ample t

The Republicans hold that it is due to the prayers of piour members of their party who are praying that flith and corruption that has collected throughout the land in the past four years may be thoroughly washed out by the time President Harrison gets through with the hungry office-seekers and is ready to give the workingman his promised roast beef every day; and the aforesaid beef will not be contaminated by the Democratic corruption. However, we can safely predict that the looked for Harrison boom will come in with the next Cleveland Everything is looking encouraging with us, grain is doing uncommonly well, and corn is as well as can be expected. Each member is expected to assist the Editress by writing either items of news of the different localities, essays on subjects which they think will be interesting, and original poems. The editorials are very interesting and instructive, and considerable talent for poetry has been developed. After the program refreshments, consisting of strawberries, ice cream and cake, were partaken of quite heartily. The Maryland State Expectition.—The readers of the Journal have no doubt read with interest the various articles which have appeared in the city and county papers relative to the State Exposition to be held at Pimlico next September, and now after the general outlines have been drawn it remains for us to get down to some solid practical idea of just what part Baltimore county is going to take in this affair.

It is the intention of the managers of the Exposi-The Maryland State Expession.-The tion to show each county in the State a space in which to place exhibits, so that it will not only be chain to it.—American 14th.

a State Exposition but also an exposition of the agricultural, manufacturing, mining and other industries of the separate counties, each competing in friendly rivalry for the honor of having the finest exhibit. Our neighbors are already bestfrring themselves and we must lose no time if Baltimore county is to be properly represented.

A glance at the map of Maryland will show that A giance at the map of Maryland will show that our county is one of the most centrally located and also the largest in the State, besides being specially favored by the facility with which the metropolis can be reached from all points; but in order to appreciate our many advantages and to properly represent them next September we must go somewhat into details.

There is nothing like beginning at the founda-tion, and as the earth is our support let us briefly notice the kind and character of the products of Mother Earth herself. We have the finest brick clay in the world for making bricks, for building purposes, and to stand the fire of the furnace. Our reputation in this line is world-wide, and the manufacturers interested in this industry should make one of the finest exhibits ever seen. The goods are cheap, transportation does not affect them, and they require little or no attention after once being placed on exhibition. Next we have iron and chrome ore, an excellent a thing as chrome ore. Parties having this article should make an exhibit of it so as to let the people of the State and country see that we have such a valuable ore, and that we can furnish any quantity valuable ore, and that we can furnish any quantity desired of the very best quality.

Where is there finer building marble to be found than in Baltimore county? It is shipped to all parts of the country. There is hardly a monument or public building that has not some of this marble used in its construction, and the capital city of the Union has been beautified and embellished with magnificant buildings composed chiefly of Baltimore county marble. We have plenty of fine granite and gnelss, good for building purposes; and limestone in immense quantities for building, for making roads, and, not the least important, for making lime with which to restore the soil to its making lime with which to restore the soil to its wonted fertility. Let the dealers in these stones wonted fertility. Let the dealers in these atones and the parties owning quarries demonstrate to the public what a fine residence or public building can be erected of the materials found in Baltimore county. There is a wide field here for our enterprising citizens to bring these particular resources prominently before the people, and they should not be slow in taking advantage of this opportunity.

Next to the consideration of the soil itself is a view of its products as the result of the patient and careful toil of the husbandman, and the farmers of Baltimore county must be in the front rank in this of funds and no fault of the President or Board that such improvements have not already been made. Let the State make a suitable appropriation for building and repairs, and, judging from what has already been so quickly and so well done at the Experiment Station with a small appropriation from the U. S. government, we shall soon have quite an attractive College, well adapted to the ends in view.

be slow in the latter of the patient and careful toil of the husbandman, and the farmers of Baltimore county must be in the front rank in this neighborly competition with our sister counties for the knoor of having first place on the roll of merit in the Exposition, and to this end all must lend a helping hand and bring forward the most worthy products of the farm and make a combined and earnest effort to secure the prize. In point of ferproducts of the farm and make a combined and earnest effort to secure the prize. In point of fertility of soil, natural advantages and diversity of products, Baltimore county is second to none in the State, and consequently she cannot afford to take any but first place. Let every farmer look carefully over his stock and select therefrom such horses, cows, sheep or swine as have special merit and put them in first class order, ready for the axhibition in them in first-class order, ready for the exhibition in September. Look over your poultry and pick out the finest and best specimens, take good care of them until September and try to get a prize for your exhibit. And don't neglect your wheat, oats, corn, rye, timothy, clover, and other staple crops. Keep a sharp lookout and cut at the right time enough to make at least a bushel of grain or seed and clean and store away for the Exposition And we hope the florists in Baltimore county will make a splendid exhibit of their beautiful plants

This county has long been noted for the number and excellence of its floral establishments, and the people have a genuine taste for flowers and foliage plants, but it is rarely that a first class exhibit can be made from the fact that the weather often interferes with the bringing out and transportation of the finer kind of plants. Now this exhibition will be in the early part of September when there is not the slightest danger from frost or cold and at a time when you are not so very busy that you cannot take the time; so bring out a fine lot of plants and flowers and add to the beauty and attractiveness of the Exposition and to your credit and custom. Let the ladies help us with a fine collection household articles. Bring your bread, butter, boiled ham, cheese, preserves, quilts, knitted and fancy work, oil paintings, water colors; everything use-ful and ornamental will be allowed space, and a arge amount is offered to the ladies as premiums i this department. A brief mention must be made, too, of our manu facturing and milling interests. These are the largest of the kind in the State, and it will be a great misfortune and disappointment if the proprietor of the various mills, manufactories and foundries do not place on exhibition many specimens of their products. Let the millers send flour, meal, hominy etc.; the founders samples of iron in the rough ar of the finest make. Our cotton and duck mills are noted all over the world and should make a splendid exhibit. The mills recently erected at Steeltor should help to show the people of the State what facilities we have for the heaviest and largest manufacturing plants. Let us all join in and make this Exposition grand success, both for ourselves and for the credit of the State; let us all go and persuade our friends to do the same, and when it is over we will go home satisfied with having done our duty.
