OUR DITCH.-It is now said that our ditch is to be repaired at once, and that it will cost about $200,000. The tolls are to be pledged to pay for it. We'll likely have the pleasure to take that promised sail on the ditch. If the ditch is not repaired we might as well annex Hagerstown to Pennsylvania.

THE GRAND JURY ABROAD.

It seems that the Grand Jury of Baltimore city has been "abroad in the land" the past two weeks. It has had a large number of cases before it for the violation of the Sunday liquor laws. In all cases where it has been reported by the police that parties sell liquor on Sunday the Grand Jury reports that, fact to the Court and recommends that no license to sell be issued to them. This act of the Jury closes the saloons. Among those places reported to the Court on Wednesday was the well-known restauranteurs, Shafer & Kirlinger, 19 N. Entaw street. The Clerk of the Court cannot issue a license withcont the permission of the Judge of the Criminal Court. It appears this power of the Grand Jury is derived from an old law which has been upon the statute books for many years but rarely availed of. It has created a stir among saloon proprietors.

QUICK TIME AND IMPROVED TRAIN

To Atlantic City via Pennsylvania R. R The outlook for the summer season at Atlantic City was never so promising as it is at pres ent, and the prosperous City by the Sea was never in so good a condition for entertaining and amusing its summer guests. Entertainment in the sense of affording food and shelter is all that is required of the Atlantic City people. Nature furnishes the rest, and she lays sea and sand, sky and wind under tribute to aid in accomplishing her purpose. The great Seaside City of summer pleasure, resourceful as it is in all that is attractive and beneficial on sea and land, could never attain to its high standard of popularity if Nature's ally, the railroad, did not lend its efficient aid in rendering access so easy that the average traveler counts the trip as nothing.

The facilities afforded by the Pennsylvania Railroad's seashore branches will be greatly improved for the coming season. They have always been maintained on a scale of liberality unapproached by those enjoyed by any other watering places, but a progressive spirit will, this summer, be manifested in many and striking improvements. The summer schedule will go into effect on June 29th, and it will present a service of trains superior in number, speed, and equipment to that of any previous year. The roadway of both the West Jersey and Camden and Atlantic roads have been reballasted and relaid in many portions in anticipation of an improved, accelerated, and increased service, so that the new schedule will find both of the Pennsylvania's Atlantic City lines in prime physical condition. A larger number of express trains is promised, and the very quick time of transit heretofore made between the Delaware and the ocean will be materially re-

An innovation, which hard-working business men will appreciate and the residents of suburban towns and neighboring cities will find most convenient, is a late evening train from Philadelphia. It is proposed that this train shall leave Philadelphia about 6.30 P. M., after all the afternoon connections are in all business is over, an l arrive in Atlantic City for late supper. It will undoubtedly prove a popular movement, and will oftentimes save much hurry and annoyance. Another new feature will be a late train up, leaving Atlantic City at 10.30 P. M. for Philadelphia, enabling visitors to spend the evening with friends and return the same night. Other fast trains will run at convenient hours of the day in both directions, so that everyone may find a leaving and arriving to his taste. Two new trains of considerable importance have been added to schedule within the past week-one an early morning train, designed to deliver the newspapers in Atlantic City before breakfast, and the other an early train up for the accommodation of those who would be in Philadelphia before nine o'clock. nent of the summer trains will be Parlor Cars, such as are run between New York and Washington, for the old Woodruff Parlor Cars that the march of progress has left

With these superior facilties, and the advantages offered by a centrally located station easily accessible from all portions of the city, and n direct connection with Broad Street Station, travel to Atlantic City by the Pennsylvania Railroad holds out to its patrons the strongest inducements of promptness, readiness, and comfort.

OPENING OF PEN-MAR. The Popular Excursion Resort More Beautiful than Ever-New Features and Attractions.

This is the inaugural week of the opening of Pen-Mar for the season of '89. This beautiful resort, so appropriately termed "The Gem of the Blue Ridge," is now more beautiful and attractive than ever in its many pleasing and interesting features. The spacious dining-room has been repaidted and refitted, and will continue to be under the excellent management of Mr. John E. Crout, whose fame as a successful caterer needs no comment. The walks, the drives, the flower-beds, etc., have all been improved to a degree of perfection that must at once merit the appreciation of the thousands who annually visit the picturesque resort. The new Pen-Mar Band will be under the efficient leadership of Professor John Zeigler, who conducted the music at Pen-Mar several years ago. Thousands of Pen-Mar excursionists will be glad to greet Prof. Zeigler again, for during his nusic were greatly appreciated. Everthing at Pen-Mar will be managed with the one purpose of affording visitors the greatest possible enjoyment and satisfaction. The sources of legitimate amusement are as varied, that everybody can surely enjoy a most pleasurable day at Pen-Mar and return home in a good humor, anxious to go again. If you fail to have a pleasant time when you visit "The Gem of the Blue Ridge," the cause cannot be attributed to the lack of facilities for individual enjoyment. The Western Maryland Railroad has adopted a safe and careful policy in enhancing the popularity of their beautiful resort, prohibiting every sem-creation and healthful enjoyment. WE WANT A DEFICIT. In the Baltimore Sun of the 18th appeared the following remarkable editorial observation,

"It would cause a deficit:" "Some Democrats of the 'get together' variety have been urging again the entire abolition of the internal revenue system, with the idea of thereby of its history, in burning all its sacred books, saving the existing moustrous tariff taxes. But is the thing practicable? The appropriations of Congress for 1889, with interest on the public debt, aggregated $281.012,107. The total income of the government in 1888 was $397 266,047. The surpl would be, therefore, $95,254,939. As $120,269,871, net, of the government's income was from the in ternal revenue tax, it is evident that the entire repeal of that tax would produce a deficit of $25,042,- ing some very dreadful after effects. The loss of property occasioned by it was bad enough; and the blotting out of so many lives, under circumstances so distressing, was inexpressibly appalling. And then the rapacity of the wretches who plundered the desolated wastes. and the greed of those monsters who selfishly speculated in the necessities of their stricken fellow-creatures, and practiced their impositions upon the relief committees, show all the darker against the bright background of charitable sympathy which has filled the hearts of our communities, and has hastened to render all possible aid to the suffering, at that "touch of nature that makes the whole world kin." But now comes to us the dismal story of the shocking effect which this disaster is having ipon the moral nature of certain of the Johnstown survivors, and their illogical sympathizers. We are told that their terrible afflictions are rendering some of these people utterly skeptical concerning God and religion; that they are tearing up their Bibles, renouncing their church connections, and refusing to believe any longer in the direction of affairs by a kind Providence, or the existence of any good and wise Ruler of the universe. They do not, of course, blame the Almighty for the weakness of the Conemaugh dam, since He did net construct that; nor for the fatuity of the people in disregarding the warnings they had received; but they think that if the powers of nature were under His control He ought to have restrained the violence of the storm, and sent other manner, if He had any regard for the welfare of human beings.

It is evident, however, that the piety of these sorely smitten sufferers was not of a very intelligent order in the days when they held their faiths with any amount of fervor. And if they had only taken the trouble to reflect a little, in their own most prosperous days, they could have found quite as much cause for skepticism and atheism then, as there is in the present calamitious circumstances. For the Johnstown disaster was not the most destructive calamity of the sort that ever befel the children of men. We often hear of worse floods in China, in fact, one such has been reported since the Johnstown event. And there have been tidal waves, and or another, ever since the memorable deluge in the days of Noah, and the similar affairs related in the ancient histories of all the nations. Neither is it floods alone that do the awful property. There are the volcanoes, the whirl- This gospel duty the clergy who go for high liwinds, tornadoes, cyclones, the terrible fires that consume many victims, the shipwrecks, is a sin. But even this is not the worst. Look at the floods of diseases which sweep off from the face of the earth between eighty and ninety thousand people every day. What do the four or five thousands of Conemaugh victims amount to beside our every day's record? Or beside the thirty odd millions that die every year? And as to the amount of suffering entailed by the flood in the Pennsylvania Valley, the few minutes, or even hours, of terror endured by the victims cannot even compare with the excruciating agonies endured by millions of human beings through all times. For there are always, of course, myriads of sick persons who do not die, and many of them suffer for years, and some for a whole life-time. And consider the desolation and anguish which so many of the single deaths inflict upon whole households. and large circles of friends. A father leaving a devoted wife and a house full of children unprovided for, to suffer the slow tortures of poverty and misfortune. A mother leaving children to be knocked about the world, and perhaps to grow up into reprobates. Think how the mother watches day and night by her baby's cradle, and dies a thousand deaths herself in the anguish of losing it. Think how keenly we all suffer in losing those who are dear to us, and how, over and over again, most persons are required to go through this experi-Whereas, in the Johnstown event the terrors and agonies were only of brief duration, and the grief of the mourners was greatly lessened by the mourners themselves being swept away, too, to their doom, in some cases there being no member at all of a family left to mourn; which of course was clear gain, in so far as that feature of the case is considered. previous leadership both the professor and his It is no unusual thing for us to hear people say that they would not in the least "mind dying, "if we could all die together." Why then should they consider it such a calamity for them to have the opportunity of doing so? The point to be considered then, is this; that although the Conemaugh disaster was an appalling event, it really sinks into insignificance when we compare it with the havor and destruction which the combined forces of nature and man are effecting continuously all over the world. The suddenness of the one occurrence. and its local concentration, make it the more striking, and arrest our attention more forcibly; but relatively speaking it was only a triblance of humbug and imposition. It is not fling affair, and the ordinary processes of nasurprising that the mere mention of the word ture are incomparably more awful and terrible. As a matter of fact it does not detract from the distressing character of the calamities of life to have them spread out over a wider area;

while the thought of the regular, and incessant, and inevitable proceedings ought to make them only the more overwhelming. So that if the Johnstown people have sufficient reason for throwing away their Bibles, and their belief in Providence, the world at and denying the existence of a good and wise Creator and governor of the world. Yet, somehow, there elways have been people in the world who have strenuously maintained these very theories in spite of any such arguments to the contrary. There have always been people who have believed that God could be workng out good to his creatures, even in what seemed to be the most calamitous dispensations of His Providence. People who have taken it for granted that God could make them happy

The ancients had not the same seems to be the gospel, the good news, the glad tidings of great joy, that produces in almost everybody the great fear of death, and makes us so hopeless about the everlasting destiny of the vast majority of the people who die. There must be a screw loose somewhere in this system; and it might be wise for the doctors of divinity to try to mend the matter. "Or, if death is not, after all, the unmixed evil which we have come to consider it. why should we arraign Providence for taking people out of the world by a sudden stroke, and think t all right for them to be permitted to die by slow degrees, in lingering tortures? We ourselves think we are exhibiting great humanity in putting our criminals to death by means of electricity, instead of by the old and slow process of hanging. Why should not floods, and earthquakes, and cyclones be a similar merciful dispensation on the part of a beneficent Providence? But perhaps it would be better not to ask such questions; for such sort of arguments might drive us to the confession that we are a very inconsistent species of mortals. Which considering our cloud-burst enthusiastic generosity for the Johnstown sufferers, and the fact that we do not care two cents for the so much greater suffering, endured for so much longer, by so enormous a fraction of the whole human race, why we may as well frankly confess our inconsistency, and have done with it. The objects of our sympathy have not, however, monopolized all of the watery elements that have been manufactured in the upper regions. For we have not yet had any reason, this season, to complain of drought in this locality. On the contrary, it rains, and rains, and rains, almost every day of the week, including the Sunday about which we are making such a commotion in order to secure est. And as things grow too, on Sundays, i would seem as though the very powers nature are in league against the endeavors the pietarians; which somehow does not seem to be appropriate. Sometimes, and indeed of ten, the rains come up suddenly, and descend in such torrents and sheets that those luckless persons who are many steps away from a shelter are thoroughly drenched in attempting to reach it, and have to wade through deep waters if they make many moment's delay. So our parks and our streets have presented many forlorn spectacles during the past weeks. And with the occasional addition of thunder and lightning the situation has been anything but an agrecable one. In one of the sudden storms that took place last week, a small boy met with a very tragical fate, being swept down into a sewer to s gutter, at the sewer's mouth, and tossing his bell up stream, for the rushing tide to bring back to him. He was warned of his danger but persisted in his sport, having one arm around an awning post, and thinking himself secure. In an incautious moment, however, he loosened his greep, and the next instant was dashed to his death. Every effort was made to rescue him, but nothing could avail in ly escaped meeting a similar fate. Our sewers are dangerous places; and the authorities say there is no help for it.

Mr. Editor: - A formidable combination exists between politicians, editors, clergymen and distillers to impose high license upon the country. Will they succeed? What an agglomeration of elements and characters-and for what a purpose? And how diverse their motives and plans. The politicians urge high license "because this will eliminate the question of temperance from politics." Editors urge it as "a compromise and for the revenue it will yield the State." The clergy espouse high license as an important "advance towards prohibition." And the liquor sellers advocate it because it will "kill prohibition." Evidently in this diversity of opinion there is nothing to recommend either view to the judgment or conscience of honorable people. They are all special pleas, and are devoid of moral merit, or force. Why ye men of folly and wily expediency, is moral principal of no account? Where is your con-

The liquor traffic is a curse, a crime and sin, and the best interests of the church and State mperiously demand its utter suppression. It is spreading over the world and its progress is signaled by assassinations, suicides, poverty, rutality, crime and death. It blights civilization, retards the progress of education, produces social degradation, antagonizes religion and dams the souls and bodies of men in perdition. To license such a devilish traffic is to commit s the rains elsewhere, or managed things in some grievous sin; it is a foul betrayal of society, he church, home, and country, and an audaious challenge to Heaven to smite the nation. The question is in politics to stay and not 'elimination," but its annihilation is the ultinatum with prohibitionists. No resort to expediency can remove it from the political arena; ts destruction is demanded. Nor will compronise or pecuniary considerations reconcile a conscientious constituency to its existence.— Compromise with a moral wrong is a base crime and the lauded revenue is the price of blood. Prohibitionists denounce the method of taxation and reject the money as a proffered bribe to do wrong. We are not in the market for sale or hire, and our conscience is not a purfloods of all dimensions, occurring in one place | chasable commodity. No affiliation with liquor dealers, and no covenant with conscienceless men for money. Nor can "we do evil that good may come," as these clergymen propose. To condemn sin and work of destroying human lives, and people's urge righteousness is the duty of the pulpit. cense intend to ignore. License, high or low, saloon. It has God's curse upon it. Conferences, General Assemblies, religious conventions and all religious bodies have declared again and again that high license was a sin .--And to advocate the accursed traffic on any principle is a covenant with hell, and is to shield the church behind a "refuge of lies." Such a concession as the clergymen propos to make to the liquor league, and opponents o prohibition, is cowardly and criminal. True bravery is to stand for the right, even at the cost of life. So stood Daniel in the Court of Babylon's king. It is a sin to endorso a license to sell liquor. This those clergymen agree to do. Their motives are wrong even if their purpose be to hasten the triumph of prohibition. Preachers are not permitted to sanction an evil for an ultimate good. One cannot murder a rich man, though the reason be the distribution of his wealth among the poor. Nor can the curse of liquor selling be authorized, though the plea be the furtherance of temper ance. As legalization of rum selling is a sin, there can be no concessions rightfully made to as a teacher in the Free Public Schools of Baltithe traffic without the sacrifice of religious principles. It cannot be justly tolerated, on any ground, as a beverage. In this sense it must be prescribed as the crime of the age and as the worst foe of God and man. And then what an alliance! Bishops, Protestant and Roman Catholic, and clergymen of every grade combining with distillers and liquor sellers to legalize the most iniquitous traffic on the earth! The one party to advance, and the other party to "kill prohibition." Which party to "kill prohibition." Which party to "the heaver? is in the right? the clergy or the brewer? Without deciding, I will say, the liquor seller is no fool—and results will prove it. to the layity, the mothers and wives of the las Huffman and James Tulley. It appears that land, who are praying and working for the suppression of the saloon. And what a plea for the gentry caught a little girl of Mr. Lovett and at-the rum seller? How it will ring out in the tempted an assault on her. Her cries brought two newspaper, and blaze on the walls of the barroom, and peal out from political club rooms, that Cardinal, Bishops and Clergy of all sects have endorsed high licensed saloons. Daniel Webster made a fatal blunder when he declared "the Union was more important than the free. young man with a stone. dom of the slave." And so the preacher or Bishop who puts his hand and seal to high license will lend himself to an achievement that will tarnish his record, hurt his influence, and detract from his comfort in his dying hour .-Better his right hand should drop powerless at his side than to put his sign manual to such an infamous deed. The distiller is not far from the truth when he asserts that "high license will kill prohibition." It is the last compromise before the fall of the saloon power. It is the "last ditch" in the stupendous struggle now waged for the destruction of the demon Rum, and I but say the truth, when I say, that though the "last ditch." it is an ignominious one in which the ambassador of Christ should entrench himself to fight against prohibition. Shame on such a preacher, be he a Bishop, Priest or Deacon.

The above list is a most formidable one. but it can be added to in every section of the country. There is an unseen and most deadly danger in every one of them and it should be the duty of the proper authorities to look to these reservoirs closely and prevent any recurrence of such a terrible disaster as that which has befallen our sister State. Respectfully yours, CHAS. L. SHIPLEY.

A few weeks ago we noted that by the wrecking of a train transporting portions of old Libby Prison from Richmond to Chicago the fragments were scattered about for relic hunters to pick up; and now it becomes our pleasing duty to remark that by the recent rise in the James other parts of the historia prison pen were washed away. It remains for the enterprising Chicagoans to go and cogitate upon new methods to perpetuate a horror and get gain.

Transforming a Dunce.-The teacher who can extract an answer from a dullard and draw s dolt from a dunce's block into the scholar's seat has the rarest gift for his vocation. Mr. J. Trowbridge, in an essay on "The American Boy," published in the North American Review, tells the Ished in the North American Review, tells the story of a schoolmistress' success in drawing out the latent genius of an intractable pupil.

Nobody had been able to do anything with him. Punishment had no effect; appeals to his pride and notes to his mother were unavailing. The teacher studied the boy, watching him closely that she might flud the key to his character.

One day she saw him catch a fly. His dull countenance lighted up, while with kneenest interest tenance lighted up, while with kneenest interest he for fifteen minutes examined the insect. The teacher had discovered one road to the boy's mind.
"Boys." said she not long after, "what can you tell me about flies?'

The brightest boy could tell very little. Then she turned to the dolt, and saw that for the first time, his enthusiasm was kindled by something going on in school. He forgot his indifference, and became elequent in describing the wings, feet, eyes, head and habits of the fly. Both teacher and me about flies? cholars were astonished. The teacher saw the bent of his genius and pu books of natural history into his hands. Then she led him by degrees to see the necessity of preparing himself for his favorite pursuit by learning something of grammar, geography and mathematics.— The dunce of the school became one of the best scholars, and in later years an eminent naturalist.
All parents and teachers should ponder over this.

Kissing the Rible and Sealing the Deed .-

A doctor in New Jersey made quite a stir in court recently by objecting to kissing the Bible before giving testimony, considering it a dirty practice with a dirty book, and a ready method of diffusing contagious disease. It is an old absurdity and so is the law requiring seals on deeds. David Dudley Field recently said at New Haven: "Another of the anomalies which should be climinated from to write? Now, when most men do write, why use the seal? Or, if the seal is used, why give it a significance and importance not given to the writing? I find in your Revised Statutes a provision that a deed of real property must have a seal and two witnesses at the least. You cannot transfer to your neighbor a cabin for a hundred dollars without these ceremonials; but you may transfer to him a millon dollars' worth of railway stock by a simple signature, without seal or witnesss. Upon a sealed instrument you may bring suit within seventeen years; but if the seal is wanting you must sue within six years. Is it a reason why these anomalies should be retained in the valley of the Connecticut because they come from the valley of the Thames? Buchman's Journal of Man, July, 1888.

At the Court of Appeals—Horner & Co. vs. Parkhurst & Co.—The case of Joshua Horner & Co. against J. W.S. Brady, trading as Parkhurst & Co., which was taken to the Court of Appeals at Appe which was taken to the Court of Appeals at Annapolis from the Circuit Court for Baltimore County, was decided adversely to Messrs. Horner & Co. The opinion was delivered by Judge Robinson in The appellants bought a cargo of benzine from Parkhurst & Co., saying they wanted a light benzine. A long time after the sale the appellants, as testified to by the appellees, said that the benzine was not fit for their use, and desired Parkhurst & Co. Co. to take it away. The appellants claimed that Parkhurst & Co. warranted orally the benzine to be of 68 degrees gravity, when it proved to be 65. This warranty was denied. The Court of Appeals decides that the Court below was right in allowing testimony to go to the jury as to whether the repre-sentations made by the buyer, there being no writ-ten contract, are to be considered as merely the cense sets in motion the crime of crimes, the saloon. It has God's curse upon it. Confer-The doctrine does not apply where the buyer has an opportunity to examine, in the absence of fraud or express warranty. Had a warranty been made, it was incumbent on the defendants to obtain a recision of the contract to return or offer to return the benzine within a reasonable time after he discovered its quality. Judgment affirmed.

A Question on the Appointment of School Teachers.—There having been a question raised as to the manner of the appointment of Public School Teachers of Ballimore county the following paragraph from the By-Laws of the School Regulations makes the matter quite plain:

ART. V., Sec. 2 They (the Trustees of the Public Schools) shall employ teachers to act as princi pals from among those per ons who hold the required certificate, subject to the confirmation of the soard of County School Commissioners, and shall exercise a general supervision over their respective schools, and visit them frequently. In making these appointments they shall give preference to applicants residing in Baltimore county, and the School Board reserves to itself the right to reject non-resident teachers. The undersigned. Attorneys for the owner, wil ell by Public Auction, on the premises, REISTERS-TOWN, Baltimore county, Md., on Tuesday, June 25th, 1889. At 1 o'clock P. M., ABOUT 150 BUILDING LOTS IN THIS BEAUTI-FUL VILLAGE, situated on the east side of the Reisterstown Turnpike, between Reisterstown and Glyndon. These lots are part of a large tract of land which has been laid out by Mr. E. W. Bowditch, an eminent landscape engineer, of Boston, and on a general plan of improvement projected by Mr. Andrew Banks, which will make Reisterstown the most delightful village in the State for a summer residence. town is already justly celebrated as a sanitarium.—
It has an elevation of 700 feet above the sea. The air is cool and bracing, especially at night. These VALUABLE BUILDING SITES are only a few minutes walk from GLYNDON STATION, where the WESTERN MARYLAND RAILROAD is about to erect an attractive and ornamental DEPOT. GLYNDON is reached from these lots by Chatsworth Avenue, 50 feet wide, is to be shaded on both sides, has a fine road bed and sidewalks. All of the lots have a uniform width of 100 FEET, with a depth varying from 250 to 250 FEET. This sale presents a rare opportunity, especially to persons of limited means, to reside in the country duling the heated term at much less than it would cost to remain in the city. The railroad facilities are of the very best, several trains daily, the express trains making the distance (16 miles) in 30 minutes. At the same time we will sell a FARM

CONTAINING 250 ACRES, MORE OR LESS, mown as "BANKS' RESURVEY." located about wo miles southwesterly from Reisterstown on the vicodemus Road, and adjoins the lands of Saml. Wright, McComas, Hazel Cooke and the farm formerly owned by Mr. John T. Johns, and is near the property of Col. Wm. Norris. We will also sell: ONE HOTEL ONE DWELLING HOUSE, ONE STOREHOUSE AND DWELLING.

ONE DWELLING HOUSE, used as a public library ONE BLACKSMITH SHOP. The above improved properties are situated on the east side of the Reisterstown Turnpike Road at and south of the point where the county road connects with it. They are in good repair and under rent to good tenants at fair prices.

Mr. Banks will reserve for the present the tract of about 400 acres of land situated in and near the village of Reisterstown, on the west side of the turn pike, in order to perfect the plan of improvement which he has under way.

Terms.—One-third Cash, balance in six and twelve months, with interest and security, or all For full particulars apply to Mr. ANDREW BANKS Reisterstown, or to the undersigned. Plats can be had upon application.
