ASSOCIATE JUDGE BURKE.

On Wednesday 14th Mr. N. Charles Burke, in view of his appointment by Gov. Jackson as Associate Judge of the Third Judicial Circuit, filed in the Clerk's Office the following resignation of the office of State's Attorney: To the Honorab'e the Judges of the Circuit Court for I hereby resign the office of State's Attorney for Baltimore County, to take effect immediately. Very Respectfully,
N. CHARLES BURKE,

The State's Attorney for Baltimore County. Towson, Aug. 14th, 1889. The above resignation is accepted this 14th Au-DAVID FOWLER.

Mr. Burke then received his commission and subscribed to the necessary oath, Mr. James E. Green, Deputy Clerk, administering the same-Subsequently Judges Fowler and Burke held a conference, when they appointed Mr. John I. Yellott as State's Attorney under the following order, which was filed: IN THE MATTER OF

In the Circuit Cour N. CHARLES BURKE, THE STATE'S ATTORNEY FOR Baltimore County. BALTIMORE COUNTY. N. Charles Burke, the State's Attorney for Baltimore County, having resigned his said office it is thereupon this 14th day of August, 1889, by the Cicuit Court for Baltimore County, by virtue of Sec. 23, Art. 10 of the 1st Vol. Public General Laws of Maryland, ordered that John I. Yellott, Esq., be and he is hereby appointed to perform the duties of State's Attorney for Baltimore County in conducting criminal and civil cases depending in the Circuit Court for Baltimore County until a State's Attorney shall be appointed and qualify for the residue of the term thus made vacant by said resignation of the office of the State's Attorney for Balti-more County; and it is further ordered that he receive the same compensation for such services as may be performed by him under this order, as if he were appointed State's Attorney; and it is further ordered that the Clerk of this Court file this order among the records of this Court. DAVID FOWLER,
N. CHARLES BURKE

The 23d Sec. of the 10th Article of the Code, under which the appointment for State's Attorney is made, is as follows:
"Whenever it shall become necessary from the absence sickness, resignation or death of any State's Attorney, the several Courts of this State shall have power to appoint some competent person to perform the duties of State's Attorney in conducting criminal or civil cases depending in such Court until a State's Attorney shall be appointed and qualify, or be able to attend and act in person as the case may be, and the person so appointed shall receive the same compensation as the State's Attorney."

The appointment of Mr. Yellott as State's Attorney is ad interim, until the election of the new Judges in November next. When they take their seats a State's Attorney will then be appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Mr. Burke, or until January 1st, 1892.

Judge Burke is probably the youngest man who has ever sat upon the Bench in Maryland being 35 years old. He was admitted to the bar May 31st, 1875, and has always been studious, is well read in the law, a man of decision, with a calm temperament, and will doubtless make an upright and capable Judge. His elevation to the Bench is due almost entirely to his own exertions. During the nearly six years that he has held the office of State's Attorney he has administered its delicate and important duties with distinguished ability and with the highest honor to Baltimore county 28 a day. Col. Gaither gets $9.72 a day, lieuand to himself.

DEMOCRATIC OPINION.

The Convention which met at Towsontown Baltimore county, last week and nominated Judge Fowler for Chief Judge by acclamation is an indication of harmony and unity in the Democratic ranks of the Third Judicial District. This is encouraging, and will have a good effect in other counties. With harmonious conventions in the counties the old-time Democratic majorities will be rolled up in the State in November next.—Easton Star, 13th.

In referring to Judge Yellott's retirement from the appellate bench of the State because of age, the Baltimore Sun after highly culcgizing the retiring Judge, says:

"The State is most fortunate in the selection Governor Jackson has made of his successor. He had the wisdom not to appoint an untried man for this high position, but in taking Judge Fowler he has every assurance of judicial fitness and capacity. He has shown ability and industry already in his judicial experience, and he goes to the labors of the higher Court fully equipped for the work before him. The changes involve, of course, the necessity of selecting two judges in that judicial circuit at the next general election. It is not the provwhom their choice shall fall. But we but echo the opinion of most intelligent observers of events when we say that it will be a matter of general regret if by any chance Judge Fowler shall fail to be one of them."

From the Harford Democrat, 9th inst.: "Judge Fowler, the nominee of the Democratic Judicial Convention of the Third District, enters the contest for the Chief Judgeship with the endorsement of the Governor of the State and the hearty approval of the representatives of Baltimore and Hrrford counties. When it is known, as it generally is, that the nominee of the convention has been the Associate Judge of this Circuit for the past seven years, and as such has been a conspicuous figure in both counties, his unanimous selection by these counties for the higher place is a compliment of which any Judge might feel proud .-When to this is added the testimony of those who have had exceptional facilities for ascertaining the extent of his legal knowledge, judicial bearing, uniform courtesy and spotless private character, it will be conceded that the convention acted wisely in presenting to the voters of the District a Democrat for whom they can vote with pleasure to themselves and with the assurance that the ermine will not be trailed in the dust."

There will be 18 different contests for seats in the next House of Representaives when it meets. When we consider that the contestant, if he is not successful, usually receives his expenses, which is generally made to measure she will heap high her board, and fill her deep up to the salary for a session, it will be seen chalice, and deck herself out in her evening up to the salary for a session, it will be seen attire; and our people will come streaming that this raid upon the surplus will consume home, and light blazing fires, and betake themabout $90,000 to which must be added other expenses. Our Syd. has already spent a large sum, and worn out much shoe leather tramping the Departments for favors for his "constituents" in the 5th Maryland District. Our Barney, however, who has the seat with the Great Seal of Maryland and a majority o votes as his right thereto, does not seem much disturbed, but be frequently encounters Syd. when on his tramps. What Syd. don't possess in right he makes up in Yankee cheek of "claiming everything." It's "neck or nothing" with him. We predict that the Republicans will not scruple at anything when they come to consider the several cases. Any idea that they will regard the majority of voters electing any Democrat especially where it is close, might as well be dismissed. Necessity and policy will be the order, and policy and necessity will settle the matter. No Democrat need lay any flattering unction to his political

Mr. William H. Davis, one of the Baltimore Sun's ablest staff correspondents, is in Europe, and writes very interesting letters for our city contemporary. The Sun cannot do a greater service to the reading public than to send such men abroad to observe the manners, customs, business prosperity, and happiness of people so closely interwoven with the prosperity of free America.

Whilst on a railroad journey Mr. Davis unearthed a genuine old love affair; from the close, though respectful manner, in which an elderly lady and two young ladies clung to him during the journey and even followed him to the hotel omnibus to bid him adieu, when they found he was from Baltimore, shows how deep Mr. D. stirred the tender passion in the breast of especially the elder lady, whose early love is quite likely now in Baltimore. Mr. Davis' description of the size of the Municher's beer mug, far exceeds our "schooner" here, unless it might be the capacious glasses at Schleigel's on Frederick street,

"There is not a penitentiary in Dela ware," said Governor Riggs, of that State. a man beats his wife, or sets fire to a neighbor's barn, or breaks into a house, he isn't shut up with a lot of other criminals, with full time and opportunity to learn all their tricks of deviltry that he did not know before. As a preventive of crime the whipping post has a much greater terror than a term in the penitentiary, and I have naver known of a man that came back for a second dose. He simply leaves the State. He seeks another home and you may rest assured that if he stays in Delaware he lives a quiet life. To be sure it is a relic of barbarism, but it is our way."

Things at a Stand-Still-A Cheerful Epitaph-The Year's Siesta-The Curve of the Turning-Point-Rotary Progression-Our Coming Activities-A Political Disclosure —The Brewn-Sequard Discovery—Bimini Island; and Spagiric Food-Suggestions. BALTIMORE, August 16th, 1889.

We have now arrived at that period of the year when almost everything seems to be at a stand-still. The trees and the grass have done about all the work that they propose to do this summer; the early crops have been gathered, and the late ones have made most of their substance, and now need only to stand idle and let the waning sunshine mature and flavor them. Nearly all the varieties of this year's fruits and vegetables have now come into market, and we are even beginning to tire of some of them. We have had all the sorts of weather that the manufacturers furnish, and they have stopped trying to do anything, but just let the sun shine on, in its natural and proper manner. The people at the seaside, and up in the mountains, are becoming aware that their outings are growing monotonous, and they begin to feel that their stay is fast drawing to a close. The transients who go on the daily excursions that steam out of town, still wander around, ince of the press or the public to indicate upon but in a listless sort of way, as from the mere heat of the summer is over, and we have simmered down to the point of stagnation. There is nothing left even to complain of; and we miss something out of our lives. There is no breeze of any kind stirring, and we feel becalmed in mid ocean, without energy enough to wish to make progress. For when we think of the stir, and bustle, and activity into which we must plunge on our arrival at the Autumn's shores, we are appalled by it, because we are still overcome by our midsummer drowsiness, and lack the vim and vigor which the bracing frosts will bring.

In fact, we do not want to do anything whatever but sleep and dream away the days in idleness that takes no note of time. And at this one season of the year, if at no other, we are able to sympathize with the constitutionally weary house-mother whose epitaph runs as follows: Hero lies a poor woman who always was tired,

For she lived in a place where help wasn't hired. Her last words on earth were: 'Dear friends I am Where no washing's done, nor sweeping, nor And everything there is exact to my wishes, For where they don't eat, there's no washing I'll be where loud anthems forever are ringing, But, naving no voice, I'll not even do singing. So don't weep for me now; don't weep for

For I'm going to do nothing, forever and ever.' But this state of affairs is not going to last forever, of course. It is only the year's siesta; its dull and drowsy afternoon nap; and in a few weeks at most the tingling frosts will set the currents to dancing in Nature's full veins; selves to their work and their merry-makings, with all the more zest for their indulgence in this season of apparently fruitless idleness. For the idleness of these seasons of languid vacuity is only apparent; it is not real. Though things seem to be at a stand-still, at such a time, the truth is that they have reached the turning point, and are swinging around it, in the curve that leads back to their wonted activities. And as every advance in a circle necessitates also a corresponding retrograde notion, so the circles of our years, and the cycles of history, lead us ever onward in the ame rotary fashion. And often what seems to be a time that is wasted in idleness, is really a cuperating one's energies for it. So, after the present briof lull is over, we expect to be up and doing, through the busiest sort of a season. There are new household arrangements to be made in settling for the winter; new school terms to be begun; new studies undertaken; new books, and fresh courses of lectures to be enjoyed; new public amusements, and social festivities of all sorts, in store for our people; there is the great exposition, for which so many thousands of our people are planning and arranging; and then there comes the political campaign, in which everybody is directly or indirectly interested; and all winter long we shall have the proceedings of the Legislature to occupy our attention. So we shall have no lack of either business or entertainment if we choose to take a hand in period that is devoted to the planning out of future action, or is unconsciously spent in rebe going on. With regard to politics there has been one little new disclosure of a recent date. The fact, namely, that instead of being the harmonious organ which it was represented to be, the Republican party, in this city and State, is rent by internal factions, and performing in many discordant keys. It was thought by some that it would be good policy to delay the distribution of the patronage at their command until after the election; but the jealousies and dissatisfaction developed by this course of procedure make it apparent that this was a serious mistake. The discord in the Republican camp has, however, been instrumental in healing the divisions which existed among the Democratic cohorts, and brightens their prospects for a triumphant march to victory this fall. There is but little being done in political circles just now, of course. We are assured, however, that rank, file, and officers, are all bravely determined to "make a good ready" for the march, and we look for a lively time. Everybody is talking now of the wonderful possibilities which may exist in the discovery, by Dr. Brown-Sequard, of an elixir of life, by which, it is claimed, the ravages of age upon the human physique may be repaired. The idea of such a compound is not a new one, of course. In the far back, early days of the world's history, when people believed that superior races of beings held converse with men, there were stories told of wonderful liquids, the use of which rendered the gods mmortal, and secured the boon of immortality for even the human beings who partook of The Soma, or moon-plant, of the old Hindoos, for instance, was said to yield a juice which would heal the sick, cure blindness or lameness, and endow men with immortality. So, also, most other ancient nations, had similar beliefs concerning the virtues of some precious and death could be done away, and life be made worth the living, everlastingly. But when the gods deserted the earth, either because men became so bad that they were ashamed to associate with them any longer, or for some other reason best known to themselves, they took lager, or mint-julep, or cocktail, that has been and sell, and people will drink, and if they will manufactured since, has quite hit upon the secret of the old concoction, though every vintage and brewing has, of course, been striving to attain to this end. It was a troublesome trick that these old

Celestials played us; for ever since those days the human race has been longing to recover this possession, and lured onward in the hope of finding it. And sometimes to their own destruction, as in the case of Ponce de Leon, for instance, who set out in search of the Fountain of Youth, in the fabulous Bimini Island, and was killed in his quest, by the Indians of Florida, who seemed to consider that the most effectual and expeditious way of making him realize his dream of immortality. The science of the middle ages made a serious business of finding this elixir of life, and many were the hopes of its devotees that they had found, or would find, the secret of this mystical compound. There was the infamously famous Cagliostro, about a century ago, who invented an elizir of youth, which he sold for thousand dollars or so a bottle; and compounded a substance that he called "Spagaric food," by the use of which he claimed that he had lived 150 years, though he died at the age of 52; which might be explained upon the supposition that he lived fast, if we are too charitable to characterize him as an impostor.

Time and space would fail, though, for the recounting of all the exploits of mortals along this line. The subject, however, seemed to have been scouted of late years by our exact modern scientists, and we supposed it had been relegated to the region of myths, and dropped out of serious thought forever. But, behold, comes bobbing serenely up again, and we find an eminent physician acknowledging that he tenant-colonels $8.33, majors $6.94, captains has long been making a study of the subject (mounted) $5.56, captains of infantry $5, first ing to believe that he has made the made the

> And other physicians, in various places, are taking up the matter; and the aged and decrepit are flocking to them by scores; with remarkably efficacious results, it is asserted, moreover. Our Baltimore medical men, however, with true local conservatism, seem to fight shy of the immortality business, and to be quite willing to let the profession elsewhere take the responsibility of experimenting with the new force, and so receiving whatever of honor, or of ridicule, may result therefrom. But Dr. Brown-Sequard will not, after all have accomplished so very much for humanity, if the best that he can do for it is to infuse a new vitality into the worn-out human frame. When we come to consider that the principle of immortality must lie in the simple balancexact supply of the materials of reconstruction, it ought not to seem a very marvelous thing for us to hit upon that equation. In fact, it seems very stupid of us not to have stumbled upon it long ago. But after the senses have too late to make men immortal. Take the fresh brightness of youth, Doctor, with its

[Correspondence of the Maryland Journal.] WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, August 12th, 1889. Hon. Samuel Sullivan Cox, more widely known perhaps as "Sunset" Cox, the popular Democratic Representative from New York is in Washington. He has just returned from an extended tour of the four new States which he was so influential in naking by passing the omnibus enabling act through the last Congress. He is enthusiastic in his praise of the people and prospects of the new States. He says he talked no politics while out there, but having an old time habit of keeping his eyes and ears wide open his observations lead him to believe that Washington will certainly go Democratic, and if the opinions of well informed people count for anything so will Montans. The telegraph companies so far have the best of the very interesting fight which is progressing between them and the Government represented by the Postmaster General, who is by law authorized to set the price to be paid for official messages. The old contract being suspended the telegraph companies are compelling the Government officials to pay cash for all their messages, and at transient rates too. The Postmaster General wants them to accept a rate of one mill per word, but the telegraph companies say it is not enough. As a result of an investigation, the town s talking about what a veritable "death trap" the building occupied by the Government Printing Office is; it is badly ventilated, its sewerage is something awful to think about, and it has not one fourth of the fire escapes needed for the large number of employees. Notwithstanding all these drawbacks the Public Printer says that more than half of his time is taken up in hearing applications from men and women who are willing to take the chances of working in this dangerous building. Secretary Noble has surprised a good many people here, notably the officials in the Pension Office, by ordering the commission engaged in the investigation of the re-rating of pensions to continue that investigation. He was not satisfied with the preliminary report made covering two months, December 1888 and May 1880, and wants a thorough investigation for a period of twelve months. The Secretary refused to give out the preliminary report but promises that the entire report shall be given to the press as soon as it is completed. It is stated here that ex-Attorney General

Garland has been engaged by the Northern Pacific Railroad to look after their legal interests in this city at a salary of $25,000 a year. Frank Hatton is going in tooth and nail in in his fight on the Civil Service Law. His largest and most startling charge is that copies of the questions to be asked at examinations in this city have been furnished before hand to such applicants as were willing to pay the price asked for them. This is the most serious charge yet made against this humbug, and if Hatton can prove it, it will go far towards getting the absurd law renealed. The Navy Department has appointed a court of inquiry to investigate the recent accident to the cruiser "Boston." It seems about time that something was down to make the officers of the Navy exercise a little more care in handling the few war vessels we have. Hardly a slearned and competent lawyer, must be apparent week passes that the newspapers are not to every citizen residing in the circuit. It is my called upon to chronicle some accident, that, from the standpoint of a "land lubber," might have been avoided. There is no truth in the report sent out from Washington that the French cook recently discharged from the White House was to bring suit against President Harrison for wages during the summer. It has always been customary to dismiss the French cook at the White House during the summer months when no entertaining is done, and the same course was fallowed this year.

many difficult and intricate questions which must necessarily be presented for their consideration.—
As Harford county does not present a candidate for the office of Chief Judge, it is my intention to vote for Wm. S. Keech, Esq., who, I believe, if placed upon the Bench, will fully appreciate the responsibility of the position and will prove himself to be a sound lawyer and an honest and impartial Judge.

With kindest regards your trade was followed this year. The people of the country are just beginning to realize the scope of the alien contract labor law consequently the Treasury Department is being flooded with complaints from all sections of the country asking investigations of alleged olations of this law. Indian Commissioner Morgan has issued circular to inspectors in the Indian service instructing them to see that Indian traders are men of good character. If these traders are at present men of good character many of them | follows: have been sadly maligned.

THE BROWN-SEQUARD ELIXIR. One Dr. Brown-Sequard who invented clixir which, he claims, will rejuvenate old age and make an old fellow of 70, 90, or thereabouts, throw away his caues or crutches, and not even say "I wish I were a boy again," but dance a jig in proof that the elixir got in its work, has raised a stir throughout the country. even a few of the many lively games that will The press ventilated the matter and the thing amounts to about a two-weeks wonder. Several old covies were said to have been "rejuvenated" and cut up high jinks, and literally realized the pathos of the beautiful old lines paraphrased-Backward! Go backward Old Time in your flight, You ve made me a boy again-blest me with might; This wonderful clixir which courses my veins Drives away sorrow-relieves me of pains. The rejuvenating fluid is said to be composed of lamb, or goose livers, and sich, compounded. It is stated that two curiously inclined Philadelphia reporters determined to investigate Dr. B S.'s new invention, and submitted to inoculation by means of "hypodermic" injection in the arm. Both were reported to be very sick with headache, &c., as the result of the experiment. So the fluid refused to rejuvenate youth, it is only intended for old covies who have lost the fire and vigor of youth. About the amount of it is, the two said reporters no doubt got on a big drunk, and that is the cause of the sickness and headache-not Brown-Sequard's elixir; it was the elixir spiritus GIVE US AN INSPECTOR.

connected with high license for the sale of liquors that we have not as yet seen discussed, and that is, the important question of an inspector of liquors. The question might asked-Why don't you have an inspector now? Well, that is a very proper question, food or beverage, by means of which old age and we cannot answer it, for the simple reason that the question has never been agitated .-But there is no reason why we should not have an inspector. But Father Clemm might say-"What do you want with an inspector, why don't you adopt porhibition then you won't compounding its juices. So that no wine, or need an inspector." Should the Legislature pass a high-license law at the approaching session we hope a provision will be incorporated in the law providing for an inspector of liquors, whose salary shall be paid from receipts from licenses. It seems impossible that the people of the State will adopt prohibition, not at this time, at least. Every tax-payer, whether Democrat Republican, who voted the Republican ticket last fall may consider themselves responsible for the high price of sugar, the high price of twine, and for every article upon which the heartless trusts have made the people pay an additional tax. If this is to continue, what is to become of the farmer? High county taxes, high prices for everything used by the farmer cannot bring peace or contentment to the homes of our taxpayers. The change must come, but it will never come so long as the people give their sup-port to trusts, monopolies and combinations of nonied men in every section of the Union,
