To Those Who Pay for Advertising .- Often it is that some small merchant-small in ideas, small in calibre, small in stock and small in everything, thinks he will gull the public by a sensa tional advertisement. On this small scale of ideas tional advertisement. On this small scale of ideas he hunts around for the cheap papers, gets the most for his money, according to his idea, fails to make connection with the purchasing public and then says that advertising does not pay. We say frankly to the merchant of repute and good standing that—Advertising fictitious bargains is a failure.

A small business and large expenses is a failure. Poor clothing and big advertising is a failure. Night trade is a failure. Two prices is a failure.

A low price in the window and a high price in the store is a failure.
Old styles and condemned fabrics (no matter how cheap) are a failure. Shoddy clothing advertised and sold as wool is Cheap and inattentive salesmen (hired on commission) are a failure. Bargains in the newspaper and apologies in the store are a failure.

Large profits and small sales is a failure. Running down your competitors is a failure, besides being mean. Advertising goods "at less than cost" all the year round is a failure and a lie in the bargain. Stick to a legitimate business. Advertise sensibly and keep the stock you advertise and you are bound

FACT AND FANCY. A worthless man is one who does nothing during the day, but is greatly rushed with business cares after supper. - Atchison Globe. The woman who takes three hours to dress for a party may be vain, but she will never wear short hair and try to act like a man. [San Francisco Bulletin.
