NEWS FROM ANNAPOLIS.

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, of the other property in the State?

derstanding of the Legislature of 1888, concerning the non reassessment of property in the Belt, is about to be violated by the present Legislature?—

By the annexation act it was provided that there 'should not be, for the purposes of the city taxation, any increase in the present assessment of such property as is now assessed, and all property in the said territory which is not now assessed, but which may be, within the same period (till 1900), liable to assessment, shall be assessed at the same rate as that this most solemn pledge of the Legislature would not be violated. That no Legislature could or would act in such bad faith, and if it did no overnor could be found with sense of honor so slight as to sign such a bill. And yet at this very me, before the ink is scarcely dry on the annexation act, before we have enjoyed to any appreciable extent the benefit of annexation, in the Legislature of Maryland composed of some of the very members who voted for this exemption in 1888, the outrageous violation of the act of annexation is being perpetrated, and that with apparent indifference to to results or without any appreciation on the enor mity of the offense.

It makes no difference to state that if we had remained in Baltimore county this general reassess-ment would have been applicable. The answer is that we did not stay in Baitimore county, and thi very exemption, being promised us, was one of the wery exemption, most powerful arguments to draw us in.

James A. Flack, at present Sheriff of New loosely in the matter, and who died two or three weeks since it is believed from grief on account of the scandal he had participated in.

TWO HAPPY MEN.

Among two of the happiest men in the State the Belt Line Railroad bill. And well may these gentlemen feel happy, for it means prosperity for the Western Maryland, and without doubt prosperity for the Belt Line when it shall have been completed. In the near future there will have been spent fully eight mil-

We refer to Mr. Samuel H. Tagart, who seeks to have a bill passed to allow the York Road his company to place rapid transit upon that ter bill there will be a happy lot of people along the York Road-Towson Avenue if you Waverly. They have been hoping for these good things for so many years that it sounds almost like an Arabian Night's tale when they talk about it. To dismiss houses with a bless-arrive at Govanstown in, say, 25 minutes, and accomplish such a thing he would deserve to March 28th, 1890. 2 P. M.—The State Treasurer sensation is still the universal subject of conversation among the members of both Houses. There is uncomfortable feeling about in view of the discovery of the increased amount in the irregularity. It is not thought the Legislature will be able to elect a Treasurer in place of Mr. Archer in advance of the report of the Special Committee, as a vacancy can be created only after such report. The whole affair will no doubt be given into the hands of Governor Jackson. No additional developments here.

Baltimore County High License bill depends very much upon the bill for the city now before the House, especially as to the amount of the license fce. If the city bill fee is reduced Baltimore county will share a corresponding relative fate. STATE TREASURER ARCHER.

Comptroller Baughman and Governor Jackson Present Serious Charges Against Treasurer Archer-Up to Thursday Night $20,200 Defalcation Discovered. If ever "a clap of thunder from a clear sky" may have been said to have startled any one, the information imparted in the letter of Comptroller Baughman to Governor Jackson, given below, such was the case on Wednesday night 25th inst. in the Senate and House .-Whilst those bodies were in session wrestling with difficult and troublesome legislative problems, Col. LeCompte, Gov. Jackson's Secretary of State, appeared at the threshold of each House with a sealed communication. Upon being opened by each presiding officer they were astounded by the important information they communicated. The consternation of the members of each House may be easily imag | ent and more vigorously expressed. Mr. Tayined (as it was the aforesaid "clap of thunder") | lor will no doubt hear the noise. as the Reading Clerks had finished. No person was thinking of Mr. Archer, much less that all things in his department of the State government were not correct. But from the communication of the Governor it seemed as though they were not correct. The information s startled the members of each House that they adjourned. The communication of Gov. Jackson was as follows:

FREDERICK, March 23d, 1890. To His Excellency, E. E. Jackson: Dear Sir: -It becomes my painful duty to inform you that information reached me in Frederick on Saturday evening last, which convinces me that there has been misappropriation of the State secu rities in the hands of State Treasurer Stevensor Archer. I believe that at least two of the banks of Baltimore city hold notes of Mr. Archer, secured by bonds of the kind belonging to the State sinking und, one being secured by Piedmont and Cum berland bonds, another by Treasury Reli-f Bonds and that another loan was negitoated by Mr Archer and Frederick city bonds were deposited as collateral, bearing the same numbers as some of the bonds belonging to the State sinking fund. The gravity of this information is such that it become imperative upon me to communicate it to vou once in order that an immediate investigation of the State Treasurer may be made, and such further action taken as may be necessary to protect the I am very respectfully. L. VICTOR BAUGHMAN, Comptroller. As soon as this letter reached me I endeavored to communicate with the freasurer, but I have been unable to do so, and it has been reported to me that he is critically ill at his home in Bel Air. I feel my duty, without further delay, to make known to you the information conveyed to me by the Comproller, that your honorable body may take promp action to investigate the affairs of the office of the Treasurer and ascertain whether the State securities are intact or not. I have the honor &c., ELIHU E. JACKSON, Governor.

After each House adjourned and the members mingled together to say that they were surprised, as well as shocked, mildly expresses the situation. No one could gain any further information than that communicated by the Governor. There were all kinds of conjectures, but they absolutely amounted to nothing, and would not until the State's "strong box" in the Safe Deposit Company's vault in Baltimore | nied the unjust imputations cast upon her .should be opened and the contents examined. That would take two or three days' time, and she was nearly all the time in tears. It was a there was no time to be lost. Mr. Archer was known to have gone to his father and son, especially the latter, showing home at Bel Air on Tuesday evening where he that he was worse than a beast. The jury, remained all night. A citizen of Towson who however, saw through the whole affair and came up on the 5.30 P. M. train on the Maryland Central sat in the seat in front of him and chatted pleasantly with him until Towson was reached, and bade him good bye.

Thursday morning's papers gave accounts of | notified Flack to show cause why he should not what transpired at Annapolis, and also that Mr. Archer had last been seen in his office in Bel Air, and nothing more known of him until found near his own residence, on Wednesday morning, his clothing wet and soiled, and Mr. Archer in a dazed condition.

Thus far it is known that Mr. Archer took from the Safe Company's vaults $20,200 in State securities and hypothecated them for "personal loans" to banks.

EXEUNT POOL ROOMS On Wednesday 25th the Legislature passed one of the most important and beneficial bills for Baltimore city that has been passed during the present session, that of Senator Poe's anti-Pool Room bill. For several years these pool rooms have been corrupting the young men of the city, especially, as well as many of the old fellows who ought to have had more sense and self-respect. They have been a crying shame. Two or three years since a test case was taken before the Court of Appeals, which decided that there was no law to prevent them from being opened and operated. So for the past two years they have flourished and several business men have been utterly ruined. Many poor men who had families depending upon them were regular attendants and spent every cent they could get into their hands, and thus neglected their business and impoverished their families, who often suffered for the commonest necessaries of life. We learn of one business gentleman who was so infatuated that he spent nearly all his time in the rooms, neglecting his large business, and finally was compelled to suspend thus involving his partner. Public opinion. however, has chrystalized the past two years, and has resulted in the passing of the bill. As will be seen the bill aims a blow at cock fighting, which is a relic of barbarism. Every honorable citizen of Baltimore will thank the Legislature for the bill. As soon as it became known that the bill had passed and was signed by the Governor, all the pool rooms voluntarily closed but one, and that the police closed. The following is the text of the bill:

"It shall be unlawful for any person or persons or association of persons, to bet, gamble or make books and pools on the result of any trotting race or running race of horses, or race of any kind, or cooking main, or any base-ball match or contest of any kind, or to establish, keep, rent, or use, or knowingly suffer to be used or occupied any house, building or portion of a building, yessel or place on land or water for the purpose of making or selling therein and book or pool, or other wise betting or gambling or of permiting gambling or betting therein or thereon upon the result of any rotting race or running race of horses, or race o any kind, or cocking main, or any base-ball match or any election or contest of any kind : Provided however, that nothing in this section shall prevent pool-making, book making or betting on horse races on the grounds of any Agricultual Association in this State during the days on which the fairs o meh Association shall actually be held, or upor any race course or driving parks in this State. The Senate Registration bill amended in the Committee on Elections by substituting an entirely new bill, known as the "McClure bill" was taken up. Mr. Rich said he was assured the new bil could never pass the Senate, and it seemed to him that it was folly to spend two or three days in reading and discussing the new bill when there was no chance for it to become a law. Besides, the Poe Registration bill accomplished one thing that the people were clamoring foriting to placing an inscription on the Taney | the reduction of the expenses for registration. The House therefore ought to accept as a basis of its work the bill that came from the Senate. Able speeches were made by Messrs. Carter,

Preston, Laird, (Democrats,) and by Messrs.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION BILLS.

The House, at its evening session, took up the General Appropriation bill making appro priations for the support of the State government for the fiscal year ending the 30th day of September, 1891, on its second reading. Dr. Drach offered an amendment reducing the appropriation for the militia from $40,000 to $25,000, but it was rejected. Mr. McCahe vished the appropriation increased to $50,000 but the amendment was not adopted. The bill was finally passed under a suspen sion of the rules. A bill similar for 1892 was also passed. This finished the appropriation bills. CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT AS TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The following amendment to Section 1, Article 15, of the Constitution, relative to County Commissioners, was proposed by a three fifths vote of the House: "Section 1. [Correspondence of the Maryland Journal.] DUR BALTIMORE LETTER.

The Borrowing Days—An Antique Gem— The Shadow of Bismarck—Napoleon's Profilesy—Republican, or Cossack—De-binet Mile—A Case of Malignant "Sun" Mroke—New Booms for Baltimore—Re-publican Troubles—Musical and Literary-Tariff on Talent.

BALTIMORE, March 28th, 1890. From a time so darly that the date is now "lost in the mists of antiquity," the last three days of March have been known among certain peoples as the "Borrowing Days." It seems that, even before the change of the calandar from the old style to the new, the month of March had a fashion of winding up its career with dashes of weather so inconstant and unreasonable that people imagined its last days must have been borrowed from the fickle and treacherous month which they preceded. Our practical Scotch ancestors not only accepted this fact in a very serious manner but they made it the subject of their grave and prosy poetic fiction, singing in this wise: "March said to April:

I see three hoggs on youder hill; And if you'll lend me dayes three, I'll find a way to gar them die! The first o' them was wind and weet, The second it was snaw and sleet. The third o' them was sic a freeze, t froze the birds feet to the trees. But when the borrowed days were gane,

The silly hoggs came hirplin hame." Which antique gem, whatever moral it may have had for our sober-minded ancestors, ought to teach us a lesson as to the inexpediency of borrowing at all, as well as hint to us the probability that our silly pigs of difficulties are not to be effectually killed by any borrowed resources, but will come limping back home to us in a worse condition than they were before we tried the unprofitable experiment. We have not been obliged to draw upon the future, during the past week, for interesting and important subjects of discussion, at any rate. For events of both local and world-wide significance have recently been occuring in a rather surprising profusion.

There was the resignation of Bismarck, for astauce, which had been talked about for so long, and which appears to have taken place quietly enough, and without having in any wise "knocked out the props from under the skies," But this event really means a great deal more than at present appears upon the surface of things. For the final removal of the great power that has been so largely instrumental n keeping Europe in check, for the last half century, will probably result in the rapid development of new forces that may startle us with their performances. It has been said that in England the sovereign is "an ornamental person without any serious duties." The young German Emperor, however, does not consider it his mission to fill a position of such insignificance. He is thirsting for military glory, and with all the vast armies of Europe prancing and stamping around him, he can scarcely withstand the temptation to lead his own fine troops into the fray, and so precipitate the great conflict which the world's prophets have been prophesying for these ever so many years. And the wise ones tell us that when this contest comes it will mean another struggle, between civilization and barbarism, for the possession of the world. For the mighty power of Russia is growing, day by day, and she is slowly but surely stretching out her arms to "encircle Europe from the Baltic to the Archipelago," and with no force or power competent to disable her on the rear. Napoleon, at St. Helena, appears to have forseen this day, when he predicted that the time would come when all Europe would have to decide between Republicanism or the Cossack rule. The trend of events seems to be directly towards this point, in Europe, now. At lone we have had the good fortune of witnessing the demise of Mr. Blair's educational scheme for the "promotion of mendicaucy," which has been dying promiscuously through the last eight years, and has been killed again by our present abnormal Congress; effectually and finally, this time, it is to be hoped. I would be a pity if the lawless and iniquitous powers in control of our national government should fail to accomplish any good along with the evils they are perpetrating; so it is gratifying to observe that while the dreadfully diseased Republican party is stabbing itself to death in so many separate places, it has contrived to kill, also, another evil thing, during the process. Then there is to be chronicled, too, death of the great Gas Bill, that has struggled so hard for existence, down at Annapolis, this winter. It seemed to be very strong and healthy; and it had plenty of good doctors after it was fatally attacked. But it died of malignant Sun stroke, and all the efforts of its friends were employed in vain against this baleful influence. And in this connection it is suggestive to notice that another co-operative gas company scheme is already blooming out with its sweet odors, and making fine promises to our long-suffering community; and that certain capitalists of Baltimore are associated with the incorporators of this scheme, and are ready to furnish funds as soon as the charter is grantd. As previously predicted!

But besides these defunct bills, which have been relegated to the legislative limbo, and are now past praying for, there were certain others which came in on time, well-freighted with prospects of prosperity for the future of our beloved Baltimore. The Belt Railroad Bill, for instance, which, with the rapid transit project for our street cars, will help us to take our own proper rank among the great cities of this continent. Just now, too, we are exulting over the opening of our fine, new Post Office, which turns out to be a very grand edifice after all, in spite of the severe things that were said about it when the party now in power first undertook to criticise it. And besides this, we seem to have prospect of getting a new Custom House, some of these days; so that we flatter ourselves, just now, upon having a great deal to rejoice over. There is considerable rumor, however, of discordant workings in the new Republican machipory that the national government is setting up here. An authority says: seems to be a likelihood that the old feud | The following described Personal Property, viz. which existed between the Custom House and for so many years previous to the incoming of President Cleveland, will be revived with all the old-time ferocity." And from all accounts 1 Family Carriage, 1 new Cutter Collector Marine is in danger of precipitating the factions into a sea of hot water, to the great detriment of the solidity of his party's Another sad subject to report is the threatening possibility of a dissolution of the harmonious ties that have bound together our illustrious Oratorio Society. After making such a record as this Society has, and becoming so important and efficient an instrumentality for the musical development of Baltimore, it would be a thousand pities for it to disband and swing the Republicans to call the year and year upon | us back into the timeless era of ten years ago.

A meeting is to be held, on the evening Mr. Rich offered an amendment to Section the first of April, to see what can be done to 17 extending the time from two to five days save the Society from breaking up into mere musical staff may be able to so minimize the present dangers as to remove all bars to future progress, and brace up the quavering hopes of our musical public by circumventing the crotchety schemes of the society's enemies. And as one step to this end some arrangement ought to be made whereby the management can dispense with the absurdly atrocious regulation that makes the singers responsible for the sale of tickets. Such a tariff on talent is altogether unjust and intolerable. The Woman's Literary Club which was or ganized here last week, however, proposes to govern itself by a similar generous princi ple. As a condition of membership the ladies of this Association are to hold themselves in readiness to employ their intellectual faculties for the benefit of the Club; and so will pay their fees for the privilege of amusing each other. This world is a very droll show to those who are not "in the swim," but saunter along the shore and watch the performance. Yes, verily.
