In a message to the Baltimore City Council on Monday night, 9th inst., Mayor Davidson announced that he had signed the ordinance directing the sale of the city's 32,500 shares of the common stock of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at not less than par, $100 per share. The syndicate represented by Mr. E. R. Bacon, of New York, President of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railroad, being the only bidder, the Mayor notified him of his action, when Mr. Bacon at once notified the Mayor of his acceptance of the sale under the ordinance, which was duly signed by the contracting parties on Tuesday 10th. As a security penalty Mr. Bacon deposited with the Finance Commissioners $500,000 in the bonds of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railroad. The $3,200,000 is to be paid by July 1st. The syndicate have also secured control of nearly all the 15,000 shares held by the Johns Hopkins University at 101. It will also get the State's preferred stock in the Washington branch, for which it is understood the syndicate paid $130. By the sale of its stock the city saves $112,000 interest on matured debt which is to be paid in July, amounting to $5,000,000. The total saving to the city will be $255,000 per aunum. But, above all, the Baltimore and Ohio will be relieved of interference in its management by the political power of the State, as well as from the Johns Hopkins University .-The railroad will now be controlled by none but railroad men. This cannot but result in the highest prosperity to the road. It would have been much better if the city's holdings had been long since disposed of, and when the stock was above par. But there was no syndicate on hand, and the road did not seem to be

The Sun says editorially and sarcastically, too, of the sale: "That the city has been victimized in the sale of its Baltimore and Ohio Railroad stock is a matter too plain for discussion. That it was good policy for the city to sell its stock and apply to the proceeds to the reduction of the funded debt is not a discovery or suggestion of to-day or of yesterday.-There have been times, not remote, when the comnon stock of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has been quoted largely above par-as high as $200 per share. Large sales have been made at figures conderably above par. That it was the interest o the city to sell, and also of the trustees of the John Hopkins University to sell when these high figures could have been obtained is not a suggestion of the wisdom that comes after the fact. It was suggested and urged when the opportunity was presented .-No doubt the throwing upon the market at any time of such large blocks of stock as the city's or the University's holdings, separately or combined, would have had the effect of depressing the mar ket price, and it may be admitted therefore that neither city nor University could probably ever have realized the highest prices given for the stock But there is no shadow of doubt that the city could have sold in the past at a price considerably above par. Why has the city been unable now, when the ousiness and the prospects of the road are better than for many years past, to realize any better price The influences and the men who prevented both the city and University from realizing the high prices at which the stock sold in former years are perfectly well known. It is not assuming too much to say that it is precisely the same influences exerted, if not by he same men, still in the same interest, which have forced the city to sell at $100 a share to-day. As we said on Monday, the "deal" which has resulted in transferring the control of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and its future management to an unknown syndicate, represented by Mr. Edward R. Bacon, of New York, has been skillfully engineered. It required perfect harmony and co-operation between those who proposed to buy and those who had the power to force the city to sell at a price to suit the buyer .-This is just what has been done. The situation was perfectly plain. There were three large blocks or holdings the acquisition or control of which was necessary to a control of the road. Except fo object to anybody to buy the city's stock. These holdings were the city's stock, (32,500 shares,) the stock owned by the University (15,000 shares) and the stock belonging to the Garrett estate, (say 48,000 shares, the latter controlled by trustees, Mr. Chas. F. Mayer, President of the road, being one of the trustees. There can be little doubt that it was the discovery that an option at least had been secured by the parties represented by Mr. Bacon upon the Garrett stock and the University stock which made the acquisition of the city's stock by any other parties useless and futile, and drove every other possible competitor or bidder out of the field and forced the city to sell its stock at par. The city was simply 'squeezed" in the transaction. It was clearly, in geniously done. It has cost the city the difference between par and the fair value of its stock, which upon the basis of $110 per share, is $325,000, or upon the basis of Finance Commissioner Pratt's present valuation of the stock, $125 per share, $712,500.— Either sum would be a handsome profit for the manipulators and engineers of this new financial scheme, at the expense of the city, to divide. What have the representatives of the city to say upon the subject? The Sun, when it has plain facts to deal with, is not to be deterred in a matter so nearly affecting the public interests for asking plain questions. It fought the gas monopoly, and fought s successfully when that scheme had the support of some of the most respectable "financial" people of the city, some of whom, by a curious coincidence happened to be largely interested in and penefited by the sacrifice of the city's stock in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at par. We say "sacrifice" because there isn't a man in the city whose opinion upon the matter is worth having who will not say that the stock is worth more than par and should have sold for more, and there isn't an honest man who will not say that the city could have got the fair value of the stock if all competition and possibility of competition had not been adroitly prevented by the very people who will now divide the city's loss as their profit. The city has been "skinned," and the people in and out of office who have done it and suffered it to be done dare not deny it, and The Sun will not be deterred from making the charge plainly and the facts apparent, though "Tray, Blanche and Sweetheart" and the whole mongrel and subsidized pack snari

We publish the above to show the pointed innuendoes of the Sun as to "the people in and, out of office," whom it charges have "squezeed" and "skinned" the city, and ' vide the city's loss as their profit." These be serious charges, but no person "in and out of office" is named, and thereby the Sun is merely stabbing the air. But in the case of the City Council and the Mayor and Finance Commissioners, if the city has been "squeezed" and "skinned," these gentlemen have been particeps criminis. These latter be still more serious charges, and place these public officers and honorable gentlemen at the very low ebb of being aiders and abettors of the "squeeze" and "skin." In the ordinary course of events further developments ought to follow such charges.

THE PLACE TO KEEP COOL.

Mr. Joseph Dorsey, for so many years mana ger of the celebrated old Barnum's Hotel, Bal timore, has assumed the management of The Thousand Island House at Alexandria Bay, River St. Lawrence, New York. There is no more picturesque spot on the globe than the Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence River. Upon the occasion of a visit to that locality about 1859 the surroundings were in a more primitive state of nature than at present. Several of the Islands have now magnificent hotels which are annually crowded during the summer season by pleasure seekers. An entire season can be most profitably spent at this interesting spot. Ample facilities are at hand at all times to visit every island of this wonderful group, which stand like sentiuels at the entrance of the great St. Lawrence. Without a doubt Mr. Dorsey would be glad to greet any of his old Baltimore or Maryland friends who wish to drive dull care away in a visit to that celebrated locality.

PUBLIC OPINION. Under the caption "Amend that Ordinance," our neighbor, the Ellicott city Times, in its

"The farmers of this county are naturally angry at the indignities to which the Baltimore city truckers license ordinance subjects them. Baltimoreans are certainly becoming very short-sighted. The urban aristocrat, whose for tune is already made, may be pleased to regard these men as playing a vocation humble and hence not fit to worry city law-makers who might, how-ever, be more considered if a few capitalists were considered humble, thanks to the rule of tariff barons and plutocrats. But the farmer, as the supogrter of other crafts, remains still the goose that ays the golden eggs, and while in the present heyday of plutocratic power he may be snubbed, he will be missed, and missed too late, if killed. But he does not propose to be killed. He may be a slow thinker and a slow mover, but his time for action is about at hand. Farmers are taking counsel together and as a class propose no longer to play the part of poor boy at the frolic. They will be heard not only locally, but nationally. Baltimore is seeking to uphold an iniquitous measure which njures the farmers and their representatives, and adds insult to injury by requiring a countryman visiting the city with his wagon wear a tag as a dog wears a collar. A MONUMENT TO GEN. GRANT. A recent communication in the Baltimore Sun suggested that the ex-Confederate soldiers take the necessary steps to erect in Baltimore city a handsome monument to Gen. U. S. Lee, and the faithful on the 9th inst., at which were present 10,000 manuer in which he bravely stood forward in people. Col. W. Gordon McCabe, a distingdefense of his parole of not only Gen. Lee but also his officers and men. At a time when hot-headed and frothy men in the North were advocating the hauging of not only Gen. Lee but many of the Confederate leaders, Gen. Grant stepped forward and with a bravery which thereafter always distinguished him, rebuked the cowardly spirit of bloodthirsty men who never saw a battle field or took up arms n defense of their country. They were generally loud-mouthed home guards, who held socure political positions. Let there be a fitting monument, such a one as the old Confederate soldiers can willingly contribute to, to express their sentiments and admiration for the brave American to whom the Confederates surrendered, and let that monument be placed in some prominent part of Washington, that generations to come may witness that a vanquished foe can honor the valor of him who vanquished Upon this subject the Sun of the 11th correctly remarks: "The Washington Star, commenting on the suggestion of an ex-Confederate in The Sun that a monument to Gen. Grant should be erected in this city, expresses the opinion that the Federal Capital would be a better location. We can see no objection to several monuments to Gen. Grant if the money can be obtained to build them, but Washington is undoubtedly the proper place for a national memorial to the ex-President and former commander-in-chief of the Union armies. He ought, indeed, to be buried there, with an imposing mouument over him, instead of lying in a remote and lonely spot on the outskirts of the boastful but higgardly city which, as yet, has failed to furnish the money to provide him with a fitting tomb." THE ARCHER INVESTIGATION.

The Archer Investigating Committee held a final meeting on Wednesday 11th in order to issue of the 7th inst. has the following pithy give Gov. Jackson an opportunity to appear before the Committee, which he did. Nothing new transpired beyond that heretofore published. To questions of the Committee the Governor responded that he had not sworn Mr. Archer in regard to the duties of his office and the condition of the State securities. He stated that he was very much surprised when he learned that Mr. Archer had not filed his boud until about twenty-two months after he was required to do so by law. The Governor stated that he knew when he went into office that he was required to examine the Treasurer under Immediately thereafter came the exposure. After Gov. Jackson testified the Committee proceeded to make up its report, stating that after his second election in 1888 Mr. Archer had failed to file his bond until November 18th 1889, a period of twenty-two months. In regard thereto the report says as to Gov. Jackson: "But let the legal result of this failure on his part to qualify and bond be what it may, we trust your Excellency will not take it as any evidence of a want of proper respect for you, when under a constraining sense of our duty we feel bound to say that in permitting him to take the oath of office and in approving his bond and suffering it to be dated back as of a day when, in point of fact, it was not approved, a grave error was committed. It is a ource of satisfaction for us to feel, and to be able to declare, that this error was committed without the appreciation of its seriousness which a professional training would have a wakened in your mind. Nor can it escape public criticism that Mr. Archer was permitted by your Excellency to act as Treas. urer during this long period, without taking the oath of office and filing within the time indicated by the Constitution his official bond." The report then makes recommendations as to the proper disposition of the securities of the State and closes as follows:

"To be called on to investigate the malfeasance of a high and trusted official who had long enjoyed the affection and the confidence of the community, and with whom some of us held relations of close personal and political friendship; to prefer grave charges, of repeated, systematic and deliberate misappropriation of the State's securities, against him, and to find these charges fully sustained; to develop in the course of our inquirles that other high officers of the State, had, for years, unfortunately overlooked in their overwhelming condence in the supposed approved integrity

It would, indeed, be assuming a responsibility which, in the event of failure to earn revenues, or in the event of another freshet, which might destroy all the work as soon as completed, would weigh heavily upon those who induced people to embark their funds n the enterprise. St. John Baptist—As to Aqueous Plety—Our High Liceuse Experiment - Mismatched Teams—A Semi-Religious Enterprise—The "Semi" Triumphant—An Off Horse Wins-Consequent Consternation—A Possible Majority Rule.

BALTIMORE, June 13th, 1890. "As hot as St. John's Day," is a comparison with which elderly folks, at least, are quite familiar. Though just why the Baptist should have been selected, by the calendar makers, to He explains that the existing depression is due preside over what is presumably the hottest to "foreign agricultural products crowding our weather in the year, has never been explained to us. We may conjecture, however, that as this grand and sturdy prophet lived in the wilderness, beyond the sway of civilized conventionalities, he could the more easily adapt imself to the emergencies of a high temperature; and as the water was his especial eleanch a Menson. Be this as it may, however, this illustrious Saint's day comes in the latter part of June, and is proverbially accountable for extremely not weather. And, it would seem, that in order to work himself up to the proper point of performance, he began business last week, and rolled over us a tidal wave of intense heat, just to prime himself up, as it were, and to keep his hand in, and prepare us for the torrid flood which he has in store for us. It is probably only by a curious coincidence, and not at all as a proof of practical piety, or of particular devotion to this aqueous saint, that so many of our people habitually take to the water at the season of the Baptist's anniversary. There are all the Sunday-school excursionists, for instance; and the numerous clergymen whose health and usefulness depend upon a summer trip to Europe; not to mention the crabbers, and fishers, and seasiders, and yachters, and all the marine tourists of the gay and giddy world, who are not to be suspected of any pious motives for their various iquatic proceedings. The connection between piety and water might be an interesting subject - to those whose stock of piety is well watered, at any rate; though it would seem that the relations between wine and piety are of rather more general interest, at present. Apropos of which, the recent report of the New York Board of Health "shows an increase of over twenty-five per cent. in cases of self-destruction," and it is said that this increase is in a direct line with the increase in the number of insane patients n our land.

And in explanation of these statistics, it is asserted that the excessive use of strong drink s their "general and overwhelming cause." Which, considering all the work of our preachers and evangelists, and the very widepread endeavors of the army of temperance little experiment in the "temperance" line, bowever, points to improved results, as we are however, points to improved results, as we are since high license has been in operation the the money the man insulted cases of drunk and disorderly committed to laid him across her knee and spanked him in that institution have been reduced in number the old style. ver fifty per cent."

But plety and politics make about as odd combination as anybody need care to see; and we have so many edifying spectacles of it in hese days, too. The woman and the ox, yoked together to a plough, which we are told may be seen in the fields of Holland, would not be so incongruous. An angel chained to a tiger, partnership. Yet somebody has said that "our present national Administration was ceally started as semi-religious enterprise." And the way these pious saints have been running the government, is a sight for sinners, surely. Overriding the laws, dispossessing other people of their rights, seizing every position and all the power within their reach, squandering the public funds, heaping burdens upon the toiling masses, and doing any sort of wrong thing to secure their own supremacy, and yet professing colossal piety, and standing as the pillars of their respective churches! It would seem, though, that plety in power finds it necessary, or in some occult way justifiable, to perpetrate such performances. For Annie Wooden. the Pilgrim Fathers were truly pious and conscientious persons, certainly; yet it had to be written of them that "the first thing they did was to fall upon their knees; and the next to fall upon the Aborigines." So whether there is a radical difference between patriotic piety, and the brand of that article which it is incumbent upon private individuals to possess, this deponent saith not. The consequences of the present sort of political procedures will probably soon be sufficiently apparent; and then perhaps the causes thereof may be considered, in time to admit of remedies. It is stated, however, that the Demo-

interest that all the actors in this Administratiou should do their utmost worst. As such atrocities will only open the eyes of the people, and lead the sooner to the downfall of the present unscrupulous powers. Another form of ill matched pious partnership remains to be mentioned; namely the attempt to yoke together piety and pleasure. We have all sorts of illustrations of it in the games and diversions which straight-laced people pronounce innocent, in order that they themselves, or those under their care may be permitted to indulge in them. And we might remark that the circle-or diamond-of these has been extensively enlarged, of late years. But on last Sunday, we had a notable examtrotting out of the "off" horse, without its slower paced mate. It has created great consternation, and it certainly marks a new epoch in our city's history, that the first professional game of Sunday base ball ever played in or near Baltimore, took place at Acton's Park, near town, last Sunday afternoon, in the prescratic leaders in Congress consider it to their ence of nearly nine thousand persons. The day was as fine and bright as even a June day can be; the fields, and woods, and waters, were all at their most charming best, as train after train of our swarming populace was landed upon the scene. There had been threats of arrests and trouble, in case the game was played; and there was much expectant interest in consequence. But it seems that the crowd was orderly, and a fine game was scored, and nothing whatever happened to interfere with the afternoon's sport and pleasure. Something happened afterwards, though, of course. It was a wail from the great and good personages whose tender consciences are outraged by the fact that a concourse of poor, simple folk saw fit to assert their supposed right to the "pursuit of happiness," after their own fashion. So there has arisen a great buzz Miss Gwendoline Caldwell, who was to in the churches, and among the legal authoricriminality out of existence, though means to accomplish that end do not seem nltogether adequate. Of course this is only another version of the old story. It is another attempt to require one set of men to accept another set's standard of right and wrong, and to compel their action in accordance therewith: though experience proves that this cannot be accomplished; and hough our own theories clamor for liberty of conscience, as well as for submission to the will of majorities. Now it stands to reason that these thousands of well-clad and orderly people do not enjoy going to church, or they would do so; and there is no law to compel them to go, either. And as they are never going to heaven, for there is no law to compel that, either, why should they not onjoy themselves after their own fashion here, if they molest no one else? Besides, they are going to enjoy themselves fter some un-pious style, at any rate, and nobody is able to prevent it; and the name of their amusement cannot make much difference. Then, too, as the irreligious people are plainly in the majority, suppose they should some day say that they hate psalm singing, and close our churches. What then?

USUALLY THE CASE. At the session of the Reformed Presbyterian Synod at New York on the 4th inst. the Rev. I. C. K. Milligan amused the Synod by reading a report being a tirade against secret societies. This harmless bit of bigotry is usually indulged in by persons who know nothing of such societies. These societies go right along, nevertheless, and far outstrip all the churches in the peculiar line of their action, preparing its members for the sacred duties of the church. The societies very rarely kick at bigots, of which Rev. Milligan appears to be one. How much more Christian-like in sentiment is the following from the New York Herald of Thursday, 5th :

"The gentlemen who are popularly supposed to take a horseback ride on a goat and so become Free and Accepted Masons held their election yes-They were all suffering from "the grip," but no disastrous consequence appeared to follow the contagion. Indeed, the members of this mystic orcontagion. Indeed, the members of this mystic organization wouldn't allow any one to cross the threshold of the Lodge unless he did have "the grip" and was willing to communicate it to his neighbor.

Well, laugh if you will about the ceremonies which, the dicky birds say, run back to the brick-layers and stonecutters of Solomon's Temple. The Masons are a lusty, genial fraternal, generous and patriotic body of men. They enjoy their rites, and make the path which leads to the inner circle somewhat rugged for a novitiate, pieroing him through the breast with a "pointed instrument," and leaving him desolate and heartbroken, with out anything that resembles "mineral or metallic out anything that resembles "mineral or metallic substance" in his wallet; but they care for him when sick, visit him when in trouble and bury him We extend to the fraternity the assurance of our distinguished consideration. Washington, D. C, is to have a new Post Office building at a cost of $800,000 .-The building will be erected on the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue, between 11th and 19th streets. It will cover 61,600 square feet of ground.

FINE PHRASES FOR THE FARMER. It is hoped that the Western farmers will be duly impressed with the logic of Mr. McKinley. To console them for the low prices they are receiving for their crops, he proposes to raise the price of the manufactured goods which they have to buy or receive in exchange—their clothing, their tinware, glass, china and household articles generally. The farmer may inquire how he is to be benefited in this arrangement, seeing that he cannot get enough now for his wheat and corn | RUTA to pay for his tools and his clothing and other necessaries. Mr. McKinley is ready for him. home market," and he is going to stop that at once by increasing the import duties on wheat and corn. If the farmer should reply that no further, but he assures the farmer that his bill is "for the better defense of American homes," and nobody ought to demand a finer phrase than that. If the farmer is still dissatisfied, he can leave off farming and go into the business of sugar refining or manufacturing tin-plate. Then the advantages of the tariff would become appa rent to the dullest mind .- Philadelphia Times. INCREASING THE FARMERS BURwheat or corn is imported, and he can't see what good that will do him, Mr. McKinley is ready for him again. He does not explain

The McKinley bill will impose a tax of from $2 to $2.50 on every ton of manufactured ferilizers used by our farmers. Now, the farmers of the country cannot stand these figures. We use 2.000.000 tons of these fertilizers a year. The bill, therefore, proposes to rob the farmers of more than $4,000,000 annually. At present the sulphuric acid used in the manufacture of fertilizers is free. Very little is imported. The manufacturers are making money. The government needs no additional revenue. Why tax this necessary article? If the government draws this $4,000,000 a year from the pockets of the farmers it will be to benefit forty or fifty manufacturers whose thousand or so workingmen will receive no higher wages This is another attempt to tax the masses for the classes. There is neither reason nor justice in it .- Atlanta Constitution. The spectacle of a large well-dressed woman spanking across her knee an elderly man, drew a crowd on 125th street, New York, on Tuesday morning, 10th. Two hours later the man, who proved to be Charles W. Butler, manager of the Buffalo Blind and Sash Company, of 124th street, had the woman arraigned in the Harlem Court for assault.
