THE TARIFF TAX ON TIN. Senator Wilson of Maryland on the 11th inst. in the U.S. Senate made a forcible and exhaustive argument against the iniquties of the tariff bill which is now under discussion in the II. S. Senate. The Senator paid particular attention to that portion of it which bore heaviest on Maryland industries and he showed in a clear and forcible manner how the tariff tax | by irresponsible persons. The rights of labor on tin would materially affect every man. woman and child in the State. That portion of speech was as follows:

"Mr. President, I am imformed and believe that the State of Maryland, in proportion to her popula-tion, is the largest producer of canned goods in the world. You may well judge, then, that her people have a profound interest in this issue. Her output of canned fruits, vegetables and oysters amounted in 1888 to 80,000,000 cans, 56 000,600 being of fruits and vegetables, and 24,000,000 of oysters, the latter involving seatch of 5,000,000 bushels of oysters.— The capital invested in this business amounted to $10,000,000 and employed 75,000 hands independently of those engaged in supplying the fruits, vegotables and oysters for the canners' use. The capital in Maryland employed in this industry, to say nothing of the value of the lands which supply them with their materials, is one-third of the whole capita which the friends of this increased duty declared to be sufficient to establish the manufacture of tinplate in this country. The amount embarked in all the canning and eneasing processes of our whole country must manyt imes exceed the $20, 000,000 needed for the tin-plate manufacture. And I might as well state right here that we export to England of our food products and our oils encased in tin many times more in vame than the $21. 000,000 worth of tin-plate which we import from that country. Concerning the great interests involved Mr. Wil-"The manufacturers of tin utensils and the canning industries, with their dependent occupations, give employment to some two millions of persons, the majority of whom wholly rely upon such callings for a living, and the rest derive either their principal support or are materially aided in the battle of life by the wages or profits thence derived. As against this mass of human beings who are vitally interested in cheap tinware by virtue of their very callings in life, we have—whom? Some few dozen of manufacturing capitalists, who are seeking for opportunities of multiplying their wealth through governmental favor; and forty thousand men whom no man living can point out, but who will have to a large extent, to be brought over from Wales, and many of whom are now doubtless en-

Which was a long time to live: though of course these figures refer only to the aggregate of the twenty-four lives; the individual persons having deceased between the ages of Such things as these do not happen here every day, to be sure; but any newspaper reader can testify that similar youthful de pravity is alarmingly frequent all over the civilized world. And what makes this state of the case especially remarkable, is the enormous amount of care and attention which the juvenile mind is receiving, at the present day. Consider all the day-schools, and Sunday-schools at which modern children are trained. All the Childrens' Days at the churches and campneetings. All the libraries and magazines that are prepared for children, solely; and all the amusements and diversions arranged expressly for them. If the tendency of these devices is to make children precocious in crime, as well vival of the fittest; or that of any of their friends, for matter of that. Indeed, it seems questionable whether it is going to develop into murderers, thieves and scoundrels of all degrees. For, in spite of the tues of "education," the more highly a rascal is educated, the greater his capacity for evil becomes. So that, if we only knew, certainly, the children who will grow into persistent evildoers, it would be the most humane thing in that by Wednesday morning trains were again the world to practice electrocution upon them in their infancy, and thus settle their case. There is the late Kemler, for instance, as a case in point. If just an ordinary electric wire had been run down his back in his cradle, why all those absurd legal proceedings would have been precluded; the opponents of electrocution would have been saved an immense amount of maneuvering; the expensive arrangements for way. No body of men could expect to dictate Kemler's execution could have been dispensed with; his head need not have been shaved, nor would a broadcloth suit have been scorched or mutilated. Kemler was not so considerate, however; and the twenty-five cuts and gashes that he inmouths speaking volumes of rebuke to those sentimental souls who make so much ado over his few moments of death-stroke.

The mention of Speaker Reed brings a suggestion of Senator Gorman, whom the Philadelphia Record has recently been glorifying with a highly complimentary column, and the CIXTH ANNUAL TOURNAMENT title of "Cardinal." It seems that after nine years of severe Senatorial labors Mr. Gorman has either suddenly developed into a first-class of his slow and steady growth, that has now just fully dawned upon beholders. At any rate, so great is the present appreciation of his solid worth, and really fine talents, that the Record says his leadership is so thoroughly established as to make him a possible candidate for the Presidency, in the next campaign. Which statement may, perhaps, be somewhat premature; though there is no reason evident why he may not yet be a successful candidate, some
