St. James' Church.—The old St. James' church, corner of Eager and Aisquith Streets, was built by Archbishop Whitfield, principally at his own expense. The corner-stone was laid by Dr. Whitfield, May 1, 1833, and it was dedicated and consecrated May 1, 1834. It was used by the English-speaking Catholics of that section of the city until the erection of St. Alphonsus' church was begun. At that time it had become too small for the English congregation, and St. Vincent's church, on Front Street, was erected. As the Germans needed a place of divine worship during the erection of St. Alphonsus' church, Archbishop Eccleston granted them the use of St. James', which from that time remained in their possession. The Redemptorist fathers resided at this church from 1841 until 1847, when the Sisters of Notre Dame purchased the property of the fathers for the purpose of erecting there a mother-house of their order; which afterwards became an academy for young ladies. The fathers of St. Alphonsus' Church took charge of St. James' until the erection of the present St. Michael's church. When St. Michael's was established the fathers who resided there attended St. James' Church until October, 1867. On account of the rapid increase of the congregation a new and larger church had become necessary, and the present edifice was erected at the corner of Eager and Aisquith Streets. It was designed by architect George Frederick, and built in the Romanesque style. The corner-stone was laid on the 22d of October, 1865, by the Very Rev. Vicar-General H. B. Coskery. On the 22d of December, 1867, it was blessed by Archbishop Martin J. Spalding, and opened for divine service. The dimensions of the church are one hundred and eighty-four by eighty feet, sixty feet high, seating capacity 1800, including galleries.

The church is handsomely decorated in the interior with beautiful frescoes, which were executed by Brother Hilary Froehlich, a member of the Redemptorist order. Two magnificent marble altars were erected during the pastorate of Rev. Thaddeus Anwander, the high altar by Hugh Sisson & Sons, the other by Bevan & Son, both of this city. On the latter altar there is a picture of the Blessed Virgin Mary, which is a copy of a celebrated miraculous picture at Rome. The richly-gilt frame is the workmanship of Mr. Joseph Sadsbury, of Baltimore. At the time when this new church was building a house for the accommodation of the Fathers was erected. It had, however, become necessary for this purpose to repurchase from the Sisters part of the property which they had formerly possessed. The superiors of St. James' Church were respectively Rev. Lawrence Holzer until October, 1868, Rev. Thaddeus Anwander until 1871, Rev. John Hespelein until 1877. The present rector is Rev. Henry Danenhauer.

As soon as the Redemptorist fathers had taken charge of the old church a parochial school was established in the basement of the church. When the priests withdrew in 1847 their house was partly used as a school. Afterwards a part of the children were accommodated in the orphan asylum. Before the new church was built a large school building of eighty-six by fifty-six feet was erected on Somerset Street above Eager, which contains a spacious hall, where divine service took place while the new church was building. The corner-stone of this edifice was laid May 5, 1864, by the Very Rev. H. B. Coskery, vicar-general. Another similar building became necessary, and was erected in 1878 on Aisquith Street. The children are taught respectively by the Sisters of Notre Dame and the Marian Brothers. The latter took charge of the school only in 1872, before which time lay teachers were employed for the boys. The average attendance is nine hundred.

Of societies connected with St. James' Church the Archconfraternity of the Holy Family is the most important. Its character is explained under St. Alphonsus' Church. Besides, there exist several beneficial societies. Rev. John Baptist Gildea, D.D., was the first pastor of St. James'.

Marriage Register of those baptized at St. James and married elsewhere, 1909 - 1957

Saint James'
1225 E. Eager Street
Baltimore-2, Md.

Proper Object of this (Register) Supplement

To record those only who have been married elsewhere "who were baptized here at St. James' Church.

N. B. "Certify the Baptism" + "enter marriage-notice in Baptismal Register, with reference to the page of this supplementary Register + date of marriage.

Marriage notices left in this book are to be certified &c, as above, as to Baptism.

Hence a record here of those who were "baptized + married here" is not necessary, if a notice of their marriage is made in the Baptismal register with a reference to the page + date in the matrimonial register.
