The eel law has passed one branch of our legislature. It provides that the commissioners of fisheries shall expend one-half of their appropriations in buying instruments and traps for the destruction of the eels, and to fit out the State Fishery Force with a suit like the Duryes Zouares had during the war. Red pants and white bleuse to use when celing so that the eels can distinguish them from other citizens and get out of their way.

To exercise a due diligence in business is indispensable to success in every department of life; in fact it is a bounden duty incumbent upon every man, and nowhere, we are satisfied, do men work more faithfully and to better purpose than they do in the United States. They toil almost unceasingly, and with that resolution which is con- 3,10:620 ducive to their ewn permanent welfare add to the stability of the country at large. This is well. Industry is commendable, and not one word, with any show of reason, can be alleged against it. It is on the producing power of the working classes that the credit of the nation is based, and woe be to the man who endeavors to tarnish that reputation.

With many business houses the keenest possible competition exists. They work like beavers, and to no better purpose, in many instances, than simply to get ahead of each other. Correct computation as to values, and how profits are to be realized are altogether lost sight of, and beyond simply getting ahead of their neighbors, they can have no further satisfaction. Of course men who have the capital to lose, and who are disposed to spend their lives in this fashion are at liberty to do so. There is no law in the statues, unless they can be incarcerated as lunatics, to stop them, and beyond teing engaged in nefarious work, they can go on until they reach Buffets and Matresses, at city price. the end of their pile. Again houses of moderate means and who do business largely on their credit, have no right whatever to engage in transactions of this nature. They should remember that the loss must fall upon their creditors, who certainly should not be called upon to make contributions for their stupidity. Dealers should beware of such competitive traps-they are almost certain to terminate in failure and permanent disgrace. Again, never, under any pretense whatever, should any purchases be made that an increased capital will not liquidate in a reasonable time. This course is but as simple as daylight, and if steadily pursued would strengther credit and maintain clear sheets between all concerned.

To do this it is very necessary to have the news from all parts of the county. Now we cannot be everywhere at once therefore we need assistance. To any one who will do this during the present year, we will furnish all necessary stationary and stamps needed during the year, and at Christmas '88 we promise to remember them in a such generous way that they is a such generous way that they will never regret having helped us and the people of this county, by spreading our county local news.
