SATURDAY, Nov 8, 1890

Maryland hearts at last are free, McComas and Russum shake hands
across the briny sea;
And Democracy's cry, shook every head that holds a republican crown.
For every man in Maryland's free,
and the force bill voted down.

The Republicans of this state have been claiming for years, that under a fair registration and election laws, Maryland would be largely republican. Tuesday was a beautiful day for the trial of both, but it proved a cold one for republicans.

The latest story concerning the nomination of a successor to the late Justice Miller is interesting, if not authentic. It is said that it all depends upon the result of the election and that if the republicans are successful Secretary Noble is to be nominated for the vacancy and for J. S. Clarkson rewarded for his management of the Republican Congressional committee by being taken into the Cabinet as Secretary of the Interior, and if the Democrats win Attorney General Miller is to receive the nomition.

It is positively denied at the State department that Mr. Blaine has taken any action, either approving or condemning Mr. Mizner, our Minister to the Central American States for his conduct in the unfortunate Barrundia affair. The matter is still under investigation.
