It is an open question now whether the new kissing bug of the old summer girl will get the first inning.

Mark Hanna is nursing a case of grip at Old Point. It will also be noticed that he still holds a grip on McKinley.

If a man can perjure himself like a gentleman, cannot a woman be forgiven for telling a little white lie about her age to the census-taker?

The trouble with Senator Clark was that he didn't manage the money end of the affairs with the same secrecy which marked Hanna's course in electing McKinley.

An exchange says the Transvaal government is relying strongly upon American intervention. The editor hasn't heard that McKinley's quest business himself.

If dispatches are to be believed, the Boers are sunning away from Wepener and fighting all around there at the same time. But war correspondents, like other great men, will differ.

Mr. Hanna may decline the chairmanship of the Republican national committee during the coming campaign, but wherever else takes the position will feel that he is on the back hand.

If there is so much prosperity all over the country, why do not the rich factory and mine-owners pay their men living wages and put an end to the numerous strikes? The prosperity seems to be all on the side of the wealthy.

Senator Hoar, in his speech for self-government and independence in the Philippines, said: "A republic without a constitution is like a man without a conscience." McKinley and his advisers have as little conscience as they have regard for the constitution.

Out Manila was the angel of peace continues to figure conspicuously in official bulletins, while squadrons of American troops carry far inland the flaming torch of war. The pacification of the Philippines, look you, must be taken in a purely Pickwickian sense!

The bloodthirsty attitude of the English people against President Kruger does them no credit. When howling for his death or lifelong exile, if he falls into British hands, they forget that he is a brave man waging a warfare that to him is a sacred contest for God and native land.

The Observer in speaking of the special election for or against liquor license, says "that the advocates of license in the district claim that they will win by a comfortable majority and the anti-license men, while admitting that the vote will be close, claim that by hard and incessant work they will be able to carry the day." It is rumored that the anti-license claimants are claiming the district by one hundred majority, while the wetts hope to pull through by a small majority. The anti-license could not claim much more majority unless the wets had given up the fight. It is our opinion that the winning side will have a bargain-day majority—39. We all will be able to know more definitely the result by 9 p. m. next Saturday. It appears to us that the temperature is at blood heat, and if it increases in proportion as the time draws near there is likely to be a few "sunstrokes."
