

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Some News Collected at the National Capital by Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3rd, 1902.—The bill providing for the establishment of the department of commerce and labor was passed by the Senate this week and the House passed a bill providing for apartment census bureau but the most important step taken at the Capitol was the action of the ways and means committee determining upon the repeal of the war revenue tax bill enacted at the time of the Spanish war.

Representative Claude A. Swanson, of Virginia, a prominent member of the ways and means committee, made the following statement to your correspondent apropos of the action of the committee: "The democratic party, at the time the Spanish war was declared, insisted that the special tax bill would provide sufficient revenue without the sale of bonds and, accordingly the party voted against the section authorizing such sale. Events have demonstrated the correctness of the democratic contention. The war tax, the Dingley bill and the sale of bonds have combined to produce a surplus in the treasury which has proved a serious menace to business. In fact, financial disaster has been prevented only by the purchase of bonds at high premiums and the deposit of vast sums in the national banks of the country, on which, of course, the government received no interest. The government has paid millions of dollars in premiums which might have been saved had the democratic policy been pursued. The position of the republicans is a complete ratification of the policy advocated by the democrats at that time."

"The democrats will vote for the repeal of the war tax because they realize that the present war surplus is dangerous to business interests and to the government. They would much prefer a reform of the entire tax system, including tariff and internal revenue taxes. We believe that food and clothing, in a word the necessities purchased by the whole people, are entitled to at least as much reduction as the republican party is extending to bank capital, the sugar trust, the oil trust, circuses, theatres, bucket-shops and speculators. All these are relieved while the extortionate rates of the Dingley bill are continued on all the necessities of the people."

"The democrats on this committee have insisted that all trust-made goods, which are so prominent in the Dingley bill as to excite the trusts to charge the American consumer double the prices asked abroad, should be allowed to come into the country free. This would have destroyed many monopolies, but the republicans would not permit it. They are determined to ignore the advice given by McKinley in his Buffalo speech, to reform the tariff and so enlarge our foreign markets. The republican party is determined to persist in a policy which is breeding trusts, which is glaring in its inequality and which is bound to destroy our foreign markets. The only possibility of reform lies in democratic supremacy, which would permit the democrats to remodel the system of taxation along the lines of justice and equity."

"When the recommendation to abolish the war taxes was before the committee, Francis G. Newlands, of Nevada, offered an amendment providing that every industrial corporation engaged in manufacturing should render the annual receipts exceeding $1,000,000, should be compelled to pay a special tax of one-tenth of one per cent on all gross receipts in excess of $1,000,000 per annum. The amendment further provided that corporations of the above magnitude should render, at the close of each year, a complete statement of its capital and surplus, receipts, expenses and profits, and amount and rates of wages paid, the statistics so provided to be classified and published by the commissioner of internal revenue. The amendment was rejected by a party vote but Newlands told me yesterday that he would offer it again when the measure was called up in the House. "The amendment is in complete accord with President Roosevelt's recommendation of publicity for the trusts," said Newlands. "It would insure a contribution from those industries which the government is protecting at a rate averaging close to 50 per cent of between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 a year to the federal expenses, and would insure that publicity the President so strongly advocates and which is essential before intelligent legislation can be enacted, either for the control of the trusts or for adjustment of the tariff rates. It was rejected only because of the opposition of the sugar trust and the oil trust which will be left in a position where they contribute nothing to the support of the government which deals so bountifully with them, while the necessities of life will be heavily taxed and the burden, from which corporate wealth is exempted, will fall on the poor and middle classes."

So severe was the storm of disapproval which surged about Chairman Payne as soon as the action of his committee became known that, after a conference with the Speaker, he issued an official statement setting forth that the committee had no intention of blocking the way to the bill, and that the committee had no conference in regard to the Cuban matter and that its action was the result of a belief that "our own people should be relieved from the burden occasioned by the war before the needs of foreigners are considered."

St. Valentine's day occurs February 14, and already children are busy preparing all styles of missives that are commonly employed to convey different sentiments on such occasions. Some of the sentimental styles are "just too sweet for anything," while the alleged comic ones are, for the most part, simply horrible.

A young clerk of a nearby town, who was quite smitten with a young lady, wrote her a note the other day and breathlessly awaited an answer. It came. A sweetly scented envelope with a rose in one corner, and the enclosure was a card bearing the letters, "G W B A S D." He could not decipher the letter, but he was sure it was loving message from the fair one. At last the clerk took it to a friend for interpretation. She looked it over and gently informed him that it signified, "Go way back and sit down."

USE YOUR TIME WELL.

Everyone is Given Sufficient Time for Every Use if Properly Applied.

Mr. Akor, I offer this advice to the youthful readers of your popular paper: "The Importance of spending Time judiciously."

There is nothing in this world of more value than time and, yet how few reflect upon the proper use of it. Days and nights pass on—are squandered; consumed in unprofitable employments, frivolous amusements, light reading, indolence and vain imaginings. We do not pause to think that these precious moments are wasted and never can be recalled.

If we could but value our time as we do our earthly possessions it would never appear a drag to us and would be sufficient for all the purposes of life when put to good use. We will never be willing to shorten our lives and, yet we often pine and fret and worry without cause. The precious moments that God has given us are not profitably employed. We should all have a purpose in life. The present occupies us while we are making calculations for a future. We neglect present duties in anticipating events that may never be realized and even if they are, they are not in many instances applied to the right purpose. Aspirations sink into oblivion and we fail to fill up the chasm made by unstable resolutions. Our labors are fruitless unless we watch over ourselves and our time is systematically managed. Our lives are an uncultivated waste instead of being interspersed with bright spots and fertile plants.

A great evil arises from the false idea that the minds of great men can not be tied to time hence, business is postponed which should be despatched and duties for being procrastinated, are often omitted altogether. Punctuality is of great importance. Every one should aim to be on time, in every station of life. Some never fail to be unpunctual. Such persons will never succeed in any undertaking. The practice of devoting time to the happiness of others will be of sure benefit to us. If we would instruct the ignorant, help the poor and spend much of our time in dispensing charity in any way that should be presented to us, with what satisfaction we would be our heads on our pillows at night and feel that "our time has been properly spent."

What a pleasure it will be when, at the close of our lives, we can look back and feel that we have made the best use of our time. Though on the other hand, sad will be the retrospection of our lives if the talents, God has bestowed on us are neglected, our influence abused, our time misemployed.

Let us take time to reflect, then we will oftentimes not be tempted to commit sin and, if we should fall into error, let us take time to repent and, under the influence of the Divine Spirit, we will, in proportion to our spending our time properly, be rewarded and our whole lives happy and peaceful. During the school days of our time is well filled up. When we launch out into life we should consult a senior friend as to the most profitable way of spending our time, the proper books to read so that the storehouse of the mind will be filled with valuable knowledge. We should study to know the value of an hour, to have our time properly divided and to manage it as best suited to surrounding circumstances.

Persons in ordinary life, who are not necessitated to labor for a support, should devote at least three hours to the morning to reading and writing. The afternoon to any useful employment and to exercise which is just as important as the food we eat to nourish the body. Happy the thought when we feel that we are making ourselves useful to society.

Patronize our little library dear boys and girls which a kind friend has established in Queenstown for your benefit. It is well supplied with good books, the perusal of which will be of lasting benefit to you. Do not let this dull, cloudy weather do not reprove that the sun does not shine for us but thank the Dispenser of good for our continued health and the many blessings he is bestowing upon us day after day. It will not be long now before the gas lamps will lighten our pathway, then let us be patient and improve our time, the clouds will soon roll by.

Your faithful friend, M. B. E.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Denick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken it and feel better and entirely well." You don't live by what you eat but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. J. S. Denny and Wye Mills drug store.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman at Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all ran down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sick, listless, strength and vigor from new life. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by B. E. Cockey & Co. Price 50c.

CARRIERS EXPENSIVE.

Commission Merchants Will Not Accept the Peaches Shipped This Way.

The farmers of Delaware and the Eastern Shore met at Bridgeville, Del., last Saturday to discuss the peach basket question, which has caused no little grief among the farmers and commission men in various cities. The object of this meeting was to form a committee to go to Dover, Thursday and fight the proposed abolition of peach baskets.

C. E. Kingston, of Wilmington, division freight agent, is trying to compel the shippers in Delaware and the Eastern Shore to do away with shipping their peaches in baskets, and ship in carriers. This, the farmers refuse to do, as the buyers will not buy peaches put up in carriers, and in Providence, Albany and Boston the commission merchants are unable to sell Delaware peaches put up in carriers. As these are the best markets, the farmers say that if they are compelled to ship in carriers they will not be so quick to get into the rutabaga turnips and feed them to their domestic animals. In other localities the mangel wurzel is most in favor. The cabbage, potato and other vegetables are useful along this line when their prices are low. The sugar beet has been tried and gives very satisfactory results. I do not think it needs demonstration to show the wisdom of growing something of this kind to feed the domestic animals in winter.

"The department is trying to find markets for the products of the dairy and for many other things in foreign countries. Wherever we go, whether East, West or South, we meet representatives of European countries as competitors, who buy the grains of the Northwest and turn them into dairy products upon which they make a fine profit in addition to maintaining the fertility of their soils. It is a transfer of plant food from our country to theirs; it is an acknowledgment that we lack either the skill or the enterprise to use our raw material to the best advantage. The hastening poverty of manzoils where grains are grown for sale admonishes us that we must stop selling plant foods in the shape of grains that are the raw materials for other nations."

Full Insurance Shall be Paid.

An insurance bill, which will no doubt arouse considerable opposition from the companies, has been introduced in the Senate by Senator McCullough, of Cecil county. It provides as follows: "Whenever any policy of insurance shall be issued in this State against property in the State against loss by fire, tornado or lightning and the property insured be wholly destroyed, without criminal fault on the part of insured or his assigns, the amount of the insurance stated in such policy shall be taken conclusively to be the true value of the property insured and the true amount of the loss and measure of damage."

It is also provided that all policies heretofore issued or renewed shall have indorsed across the face the following: "It is agreed between insured and insurer that the value of the property hereby insured is the sum of $—, and this estimate shall be binding on both parties as to value, providing, however, that nothing herein contained shall, in case of loss, prevent the insured from recovering, by adjusting the loss by replacing the property destroyed."

No Parades in Cheltenham.

The board of town commissioners, at a recent meeting passed an ordinance prohibiting all parades and the playing of bands on the streets of Cheltenham. This ordinance called forth the unusual disapproval of the members of the different residents of the town. Col. Vannort, president of the commissioners' board, when seen by a representative of the Transcript, stated that all parades and all playing on the streets by the Cheltenham Band were prohibited. The action was taken to avoid damage suits the result of runaway horses or any accident growing out of music on the streets. This action strikes the average mind as a trifle ultra. The prohibition of street parades is not an unwise precaution, but we fail to see that any serious objections could be raised to the playing of bands on the streets when not in parade.—Cheltenham Transcript.

Had to Conquer or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mr. Ross, a resident of the Laurel Springs, N. C. CROPSOUGHT TO ROTATE.

Secretary of Agriculture Jas. Wilson Gives Some Good Advice to Farmers.

At the recent meeting of the National Live Stock Association, Hon. James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, was the principal speaker, his subject being, "Mixed Live Stock Husbandry."

"A well arranged system of rotation contributes greatly to maintaining uniform fertility of the soil, and is also one of the best means by which to get rid of insect pests," said he. "The Department of Agriculture is searching the world over for plants that may be useful in the several States and Territories of the Union to be used as features in systems of rotation. Where a locally becomes adapted to the soil of growing one crop year after year, the average soil deteriorates unless fertilizers are applied, whether the crop be cotton or wheat, or whatever is sold from the soil."

"It is found profitable in some parts of the United States to grow rutabaga turnips and feed them to their domestic animals. In other localities the mangel wurzel is most in favor. The cabbage, potato and other vegetables are useful along this line when their prices are low. The sugar beet has been tried and gives very satisfactory results. I do not think it needs demonstration to show the wisdom of growing something of this kind to feed the domestic animals in winter."

Run Over by Two Negroes in a Carriage.

What might have proven a serious accident happened at the schoolhouse Tuesday noon, while the children were coasting down the hill. Konard Bishop, an orphan boy, 12 years old, who lives with Mr. Wm. Lane, Konard, was coasting down the hill on a sled was run over and badly bruised by two negroes in a carriage. The little fellow saw the team approaching and guided his sled to the left of the road, giving the team nearly all the road, but the negroes drove out to their way to run down the little fellow. His sled was caught in the carriage wheels and completely demolished. The negroes never halted to see if the little fellow was injured, but put whip to their horses and went their way rejoicing. Medical assistance was summoned to the little fellow, and notwithstanding his many bruises is getting along nicely. Officer Thomas is on the trail of the negroes, and it is hoped, he will be able to cage his birds.

Nelson's Remedy for Rheumatism Is Curing Thousands.

Within the past half year, when NELSON'S REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM was brought to public attention in this section, the sales have doubled almost every month. The fact that in not one case in a thousand is it not cured by its use is a matter of which it is always true to remember—which is always done wherever Nelson's Remedy fails to cure—gives people who suffer from Rheumatism and kindred ills a confidence in this great medicine which has induced thousands to try it, and find the relief it will surely give.

REAL WINTER WEATHER.

Is Here and our People are Enjoying It.—Railroad Running to Love Point.

Whether the ground hog saw his shadow on Sunday or not depends upon the hog. If he was bold enough to venture out for a stroll in the afternoon, he surely found his shadow on hand and ready for business, and it does not matter whether his prognostications have any effect upon the weather or not, the elements proceeded to get right down to business and rain, snow and biting winds followed each other in close succession during the following twelve hours. Whether we are to be treated to this varied program for the next six weeks remains to be seen. On Saturday night this section was visited by an electrical storm, lightning being visible and thunder a wakefulizing many sleepers throughout the town. Before dark on Sunday night a fierce northwester began blowing and by nine o'clock the melting snow had been turned into ice and Monday morning found the street rough and slippery.
