A New York judge is of the opinion that women should be taught to think. Too many of them already think they should have a summer at the seashore and more to wear while there.

The Baton Rouge girl who became engaged to a Missouri man through finding his photograph in a bottle floating down the Mississippi ought to inquire into the history of the bottle first.

Governor Terrell, of Georgia, is of the opinion that "everyone should carry his share of the burden of taxation." But the trouble is that so many people carry it off where the assessor has trouble in finding it.

Mr. Rockefeller blithely announces that all classes and conditions are welcome to his Sunday-school. This is another cheering assurance that salvation is still free, else Mr. Rockefeller would have cornered it long ago.

Governor Peabody, of Colorado, is to commission one of his daughters as a colonel on his staff. There is probably no precedent for this innovation, but when it is remembered in how many households of the land the general commanding wears petticoats the edge of criticism will be greatly dulled.

Some of the people in Delaware are trying to lay their hands on a man at the stake on people coming from other States. One account charges a Virginian and one a Kentuckian with having led on the mob. Probably both are in the wrong. Human nature is much the same everywhere, and the people of Delaware are as much opposed to the crime which excited the people as are those of other States. They did not want to kill the man without trial, but desperate diseases call for desperate remedies and they need not be more ashamed of the punishment which they so summarily indicted than of the crime which led to it having occurred within their borders. The one they could not possibly have prevented and they need not worry overmuch about the other.

An amazingly high standard of "morality" prevails in South Dakota. It is so altitudinous, in fact, that the less righteous people of the older and more civilized Eastern States may well despair of attaining such dizzy heights of rectitude. This moral elevation is almost incomprehensible in view of the fact that South Dakota's chief claim to distinction heretofore has been the rapidity with which its courts dissolved matrimonial ties on the most frivolous pretexts. It appears, according to the dispatches, that the president of the South Dakota University, Prof. Droppers, has fallen by the wayside, and is now being tried by the regents of the university for high crimes and misdemeanors. Mr. Droppers, it seems, recently entertained a United States Senator, and gave him a card for his dinner. He was invited to a White rabbit party by a leader in the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the university town. Having fixed in other States and acquired large funds of information on the subject of Welsh rabbits, Professor Droppers went to the party properly equipped, as he thought, for the occasion. In the inside pocket of his overcoat he had stowed away two bottles of ale. When he produced them and proposed that the rabbit be made in the approved style, the party almost fainted. When order was restored the Professor was informed that South Dakota moistened its rabbit with milk, and that only the sons of Belial used ale or beer. The next day all the pastors of the town called on the president of the university and reprimanded him for his wickedness. Professor Droppers is not a bad man, but he has the misfortune of living in a town whose standards are too elevated for the average man. The board of regents is now "sitting on his case" with awful solemnity, and preparing to deal with him with merciless severity for proposing to mix ale with a Welsh rabbit, and putting a claret bottle to the mouth of a guileless United States Senator. Some day, if the people of this South Dakota town persist in being so very good, they will be translated without a moment's warning to teach the "angels" how to behave themselves—those "angels" who, before they were taken to a better world, were conspicuous members of the Dakota divorce colonies.

Of all the ill-advised suggestions to the colored race, the advice to arm and defend themselves is the most unfortunate, and it is surprising and startling that such a suggestion should come from the spiritual teachers of the race. If the negro would be respected he must reform himself.

Neuralgia of the Heart For Years. Pain Went From Heart to Head. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine Cured.

About three years ago my sister was so badly affected with heart trouble and neuralgia of the heart that we did not expect her to live. Although we had a first-class physician she grew worse under the treatment. She had a swollen drooping look and had frequent spells of neuralgia pain at her heart when she would render her most heart-rending groans and shrieks. At times the pain would go from her heart to her head where a lump would appear on her temple half as large as an egg. One night she got up in bed and ran into the back yard crying with pain; she was not conscious of it, however, and was brought back to the house by neighbors. I bought for her a bottle each of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure which helped her greatly. She afterward used some five or six bottles and has never had a spell since. I had used your medicine with great benefit myself. I know that Nervine and Heart Cure not only saved my sister's life but also saved me from insanity and death. I was so nervous I could not hear the slightest noise or movement around me and I suffered from palpitation and pain in the heart. I had choking sensations, dizzy and faint spells, smothering spells when I could scarcely get my breath. I was so nervous I was treated by a doctor and at one time it was thought I was losing my mind. Nervine saved me from insanity.—KATIE ACKES, Clover Creek, Pa.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. G. B. Hall, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby." Kodol Digests What You Eat.
