THE LAUY'S MAN.

NOT all the favors coquettes show, And smiles the fup is heir to, Could tempt me to become a beau, And feel as beaux appear to.

NO malice no envy inspires The bard his advice to disclose; The favor a fopling acquire; Will never disturb my repole.

Tho' fad, he must always seem gay; Tho' restless, appear at his ease, Must talk when there's nothing to far, ... And laugh when there's nothing to pleafe.

Must never look shy nor afraid; Approve of nonsensical clatter, And sinile at whatever is said, Good, bad, or indifferent-no matter.

"If Nancy fays Creetus was poor," Tis his to fay yes, and agree; Or Charlotte, 's two threes are but four,' Correct Madam, just four they must be.

Should Sulan remark 'it is hot,' His answer must be 'it is 12; If Mary observes, 'it is not,' To her he confents, and fays no.

Would any dispense with his mind, Bow, wheedle, sigh, whimper, and pray, And, hoodwink'd, be led by the blind, To such I have only say,

Quit Paley, and study to please, Read Chesterfield's system of laws, And then you may bask at your eafe, In the sunshine of coquette's applause.

A GOOD ONE.

A quack medicine advertiser, in the " Ami-Monarchist" of Northampton, (Mass.) is so wroth with some interlopers into the profits of preparing and vending kis pills, that he has offered a large reward to the following effect;-" I hereby offer a reward of 500 dollars, to any person who will detect and convict any person or persons making and vending MY patent bilious pills' !!! What a fine chance this for a man of sufficient talents to prove the springs making and reading M.L. Kepub. of the doctor's ean pills.

In a convertation belween Mr. Buike and Dr. Beattie on the word Majety, Mr. B satirically remarked, "Strip MAJESTY of its externals, (the first and last letters,) and it becomes A JESE."

MOTIVES FOR MAKING WAR.

The Ambassador of the Grand Signior, at the Court of France, during the reign of Henry IV. in the greatest heat of the league, offered military aid to his Majesty. Various were the motives assigned by politicians for such an offer by the Sublime Porte. All their conjectures were, however, wide of the mark; for on the ambassador being asked the reason, he answered, "That his master mortally hated the word hogue!"

The late President Withersfern was a man of considerable humour, as well as of learning and piety, and possessed a happy talent of instructing in his own peculiar way. Assembling his Pupils on a certain day, he addressed them, in his Scuttish Dialect, after the following manner:

"Young Gentleman, it is probable that, in the course of your lives, ye will be often called to speak in public; some from the Pulpit, and some at the bar. It therefore becomes my duty to give ye a few words, by way of advice, on that important subject. I shall comprise the whole of my discourse under two heads, and shall be very brief upon both. In the first place, take care that ye ne'er begin to speak, till ye ha' something to fay; and, secondly, be sure to leave of, as soon as ye

SYMPATHY.

A citizen of Paris being in London, was taken to see Mrs. Siddons in the character of Isabella. The performance, he faid, was very fine, but not being-well acquainted with the language, he could not fairly judge; he suspected, however, that it was not equal to the French tragedies, because the audience were not in any degree so much affected. "At a little performance of Misanthropy and Repenmice," added he, "I held my Parosal overmy head, to prevent my clothes from being spoiled by the snower or TEARS from the front rows of the two boxes that were Anecdotes relative to Ventriloquism.

Ventriloquism is the art of vocal deception. It is an art or quality possessed by certain persons, by means of which they are enabled to smale inwardly, having the power of forming speech by drawing air into the lungs; and to modify the voice in such a manner, asto make it seem to proceed from any distance or in any direction whatever.

The following anecdotes are related by the Abbe de la Chapaile, of the French Academy. This gentleman having heard many surprising circumstances related concerning one Mr. St. Gille, a grocer, at St. Germain-en-Laye, near Paris, whose astonishing powers as a ventriloquist, had given occasion to many singular and diverting scenes, formed the resolution to see him. Struck by the many marvellous anecdotes related concerning him, the Abbe judged it necessary first to ascertain the truth by the testimony of his own senses, and then to enquire into the cause and manner by which the phonomena were produced.

. After some preparatory and necessary steps (for M. St Gille, he had been told, did not chuse to gratify the curiosity of every one) the Abbe waited upon him, informed him of his design, and was very cordially received. .. He was taken into a parlour on the ground floor, when M. St. Gille and himself sat on the opposite side of a small fire, with only a table between them: the author keeping his eyes constantly fixed upon St. Gille all the time. Half an hour had passed, during which that gentleman diverted the Albe with the relation of many comic scenes which he had given occasion to by this talent of his; when, all on a sudden, the Abbe heard himself called by his name and title, in a voice that reemed to come from the roof of a house at a distance. He was almost petrified with astonishment: on recollecting himself, however, and asking M. St. Gille whether he had not just then given him a specimen of his art, he was answered only by a smile; but while the Abbe was pointing to the house from which the voice had appeared to him to proceed, his surprise was augmented on hearing himself answered, " It was not from that quarter," apperently in the same kind of voice, as besore, but which now seemed to issue from under the earth; at one of the corners of the room. In short, this ficutious voice, played as it were, every where about him, and seemed to proceed from any quarter or distance, from which the operator chose to transmit it to him. The illusion was so very strong, that, prepared as the Abbe was for this kind of conversation, his mere senses were absolutely incapable of undeceiving him. Though conscious that the voice proceeded from the mouth of M. St. Gille, that gentleman appeared absolutely mute, while he was exercising this talent; nor could the author perceive any change whatever in his countenance. He observed, however, at this first visit, that M. St. Gille contrived, but without any affectation, to present only the profile of his face to him, while he was speaking as a ventriloquist.

INTREPIDITY.

At the battle of Minden, a corps of French grenadiers, commanded by M. de St. Perer, being exposed to a battery that carried off whole files at once, St. Perer wishing them not to fall back, rode slowly in front of the line, with his snuffbox in his hand, and said, "Well, my boys, what's the matter? ch,-Cannon! Well, it kills you, it kills you, that's all, my boys-march on, and never mind it."

The Punishment of Apostacy.

It is said, that Contentian, the Father of Contentine, finding, when he came to the Throne, a considerable number of Christians in Office, at Court, is ued an Edict, requiring them to renounce Christianity, or quit their Places The lar greater part of them readily and resolutely gave up their employments and prospects, in order to preserve good consciences; but a few eninged, and renounced Christianity.

When the Emperor had thus made full proof of their disposition, he turned out every one of them who had complied, and took all the others in again; giving this as a reason for his enaduct, that those who would not be true to Christ, would not be true to him.

German Receipt for a Consumption.

TAKE fresh nettles every day, (those of the finest green are the best) prefs out the juice, and give the patient a table spoonful before rising in the morning, repeating the dole at noon and bed-time, with a tea cup full either of red Burgundy, or port-wine, after the juice. The diet of the patient'should consist of foup or broth, containing the expressed nettles, and good mast beef or mutton; he is not to be allowed to eat any thing four, very fat, or highly feafoned. This remedy has long been fuccefsfully practifed by the most eminent physicians in Germany.

The Moralist.

Is there any feeling of the human heart more natural, or more universal, than that of our being accountable to God? It is, what the most Profigate can never totally erase. Almost all Nations have agreed in the belief, that there is to come some period, when the Almighty will act as the Judge of his Creatures. Presentiments of this, impress every heart. Conscience has already crected a tribunal, on which it anticipates the sentence, which, at that period, shall be passed. Besore this tribunal, let us often place ourselves in serious thought, and consider what account we are prepared to give of our conduct to him who inade us.

"I placed thee (the great Judge may then be supposed to fay) in a station, where thou hadst many occasions for action, and many opportunities of improvement. Thou were taught, and thou knew thy duty. Throughout a course of years, I continued thy life. I surrounded thee with friends to whom thou mightest have been useful. I gave three health, case, leisure, and vamous advantages of situation. "Where are the fruits of those talents which thou has poseessed? What good hast thou done with them to thyself? What good to others? How hast thou filled up thy place, or answered thy destination in the world? Produce some evidence of thy not having existed altogether in

FOR SALE,

That valuable Tract of Land commonly called

THE BODKIN NECK,

WHICH originally consisted of several tracts, was re-surveyed by me about 12 years since, and called GIBSON's IN-CLOSURE, containing about fifteen hundred acres, bounding on the east from the Bodkin-Point about sour miles down the Chesapeake Bay to a long narrow beach connecting it with the estate on the north side of Magothy river where I occasionally reside, and from the said beach bounding on the south and west by Dorril's Creek and Cornfield Creek, on the north, and north west by a sence of half a mile from the head of Cornfield Creek aforesaid to the head of the Bodkin Creek, and with that creek and the river Patapsco to the aforesaid Bodkin-Point; thus this Tract of Land is enclosed completely by water and half a mile of fencing, being about 12 or 13 miles from the city of Baltimore, and about 16 miles by land, on a public road under the care of a supervisor, at the expease of the county. There are four farms on the different creeks, the out sencing of which, with the Chesaptake bay, enclose about one thousand acres of the most valuable wood land I know on either side of the bay, and make a complete deer park, in which there is a stock of upwards of fifty head in fine healthy condition. To a gentleman of large fortune this compact and most valuable body of land would be a great acquisition, se it afforde more natural advantages than almost any estate to be met with; its nearness to that great and increasing market of the city of Baltimore, navigation from every put of it, and the waters abounding with a great variety of wild fowl, ducks of different fine fish, crabs and oysters, all in their difserent seasons. The timber on this estate consists chiefly of white oak, water oak, pine and chesnut, of the latter the whole of the fencing is made, and the land all level, well watered, and a good proportion of it suitable for meadow.

Should this land not be sold in the entire tract, it will, in a short time, be laid off in convenient lots of from 150 to 400 acres each, so as to suit purchasers, and render each compact and conveniently situate on the water. Any reasonable accommodation will be given purchasers as to payment. Gentlemen may see the plats at my occasional residence on the north side of Magothy river, and if I am absent, there will be a person to shew the plats and the land, and can be comfortably accommodated. Letters addressed to John Gibson, Annapolis, will readily reach me whether there or at Annapolis.

John Gibson. Magothy, November 25.

PUBLIC SALE.

THE Bodkin Neck, above described, will be sold at public sale, to the highest bidder, on Thursday the 23th inst. if fair, if not, the next fair day. It will be laid off in small lots of from one to two hundred acres each, all bounding on the water, and in such way as that any person wanting more than one lot of that size, may purchase two or three, and they will make a compact body of valuable land, very conveniently situated. The terms of sale, are, that the purchaser or purchasers shall give notes with good securities, approved of by me, four-fifths of the purchase money at nine months, eighteen months, twenty seven months and three years; the other fifth of the money to be paid the day after the sale, when the deeds and notes will be executed at Annapolis, and a clear and indisputable title will be given. The sale will be held at the house of George Wallace, on the premises, about 10 miles from Baltimore, and will commence precisely at 12 o'clock. A cold snack, &c. will be

FOR SALE

The following tracts of valuable lands, situated in the county of Berkley, Virginia, only about one hundred miles distant from Anapolis or Baltimore, viz.

A tract of 500 acres situated on an inclined plain, about thirteen miles distant from Martinsburgh, the County town, and six or seven from the Potomack River, it is heavily timbered, and has a number of Springs on it, one of which is remarkably large and good.

Also, a tract of four hundred acres, about seventeen or eighteen miles from Martinsburgh, within a mile or two of the Potomack river, and no more than seven or eight from the warm Springs at Bath, well timbered and has several springs.

Thirdly, a tract of three hundred and seventy acres nearly adjoining the first mentioned, part of which is low land, with a considerable stream of water running through it, supposed sufficient for a Grist mill.

And fourthly, a small farm of about one hundred and twenty acres nearly half of which is cleared, with a house and barn on it, but which for want of occupancy for several years, needs some repair, the land is mostly intervale and has a run of water passing through it.

The above mentioned Lands being situated nearly in a central situation between, Martinsburgh, Winchester, Shepherd's Town and Charlestown, affords a neighbotting market for its productions, the neighborhood of the river l'otomac presents an casy means of intercourse with Alexandria, Georgetown, & Washington, and the large market of Baltimore is distant only one hundred miles, and that mostly turnpike road-all which advantages, especially when it is considered that Berkley is esteemed one of the most fruitful and healthy counties in Virginia, make the above lots very desirable property. For terms which will be reasonable, apply at this other.
