REBEL SYMPATHIZERS.

Mr. DUVAL. I ask that it be entered upon the journal that if I had not been absent in consequence of sickness in my own case and in my family, I should have voted against the unjust, extraordinary, and inhuman order presented by the gentleman from Frederick (Mr. Schley) on the 19th instant, and also against the resolutions of the same character offered by the gentleman from Baltimore city (Mr. Stirling) on the 20th instant.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE. Is it not competent to object to such an entry as that?

The PRESIDENT. The language characterizing the order will not go upon the journal.

Mr. STIRLING. I object to the entry, because the gentleman said my resolutions were inhuman.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE. I consider the terms in which the request was made insulting to the Convention; and I therefore also object.

Mr. SCHLEY. I consider it a discourtesy to the house.

Mr. DUVAL. I withdraw the proposition.

The Convention proceeded to the consideration of the order of the day, being the second reading of the article on the legislative department. The pending section was the following:

Section 47. The General Assembly shall have power to accept the cession of any territory contiguous to this State from the States of Virginia and West Virginia, or from the United States, with the consent of Congress and of the inhabitants of such ceded territory; and in case of such cessions, the General Assembly may divide such territory into counties, and shall provide for the representation of the same in the General Assembly, on the basis fixed by this Constitution, and may for that purpose increase the number of senators and delegates. And the General Assembly shall enact such laws as may be required to extend the constitution and laws of this State over such territory, and may create courts conformably to the constitution for such territory, and may, for that purpose, increase the number of Judges of the Court of Appeals.
