

answered it was all true enough, and that Rosewell's Conscience must needs accuse him, as well enough knowing himself to be One of the troopers, of w^{ch} he the said Barree could procure a List from M^r Hill, further confirming all that he had said over night (the company repeating of same over to him as neere as they could) and saying that he would Justifie it, And further the Dyponent faith not

John Hy:

Upon oath also examined faith that on the 30th Day of Decem^r over last, William Rosewell borrowed of Capt. Goode a boote to goe aboard ship, and returned a shoare that night bringing with him D^r James Barree very much in drink almost if not quite fuddled as the Dyponent thinke, where after they had been some small time, D^r Barree told Rosewell that he was excommunicated for keeping Amas with his stick further saying that there was a troope of one hundred horse und. Coll Darnall and Thomas Courtney ready to cutt of all the Protestants in 3 Dayes time, that the said Barree drew his knife and whetted upon his Bootes, saying that he meant with it to cutt some of their throats, that he would cutt Rosewells throte, that he had found a list of the troope in M^r Hill's hand which was delivered her by M^r Foster, that M^r Rosewell, Collin Mackenzie, and one other w^{ch} the Dyponent remembers not, were nominated by the said Barree to be in the said list, that that night the said Barree slept upon the chaires as this Dyponent believes. — The next morning the Dyponent asked the said Barree if he did remember what he had said over night to w^{ch} he answered y^es, and called to Capt. Goode's Negro for the knife w^{ch} they had caused to be taken from him over night, some of the Company repeated the same words by him spoken over night, all w^{ch} said Barree that morning owned to be true — And further the Dyponent faith not

John Hayward

Upon Oath Examined faith that on the 30th Day of January last little before night he went to Capt. Goodenough's where he mett with D^r Barree and some other Company, whether Barree were drunk or noe he knowes not, but discoursing with the Company he told them that there was to be raised a troope of One hundred horse und. the Command of Thomas Courtney and M^r Darnall At w^{ch} who were to cutt off all the Protestants, that M^r Hill had a List of the names named the Dyponent likewise faith that the said Barree drew his knife and whetted upon his Bootes, swearing that Rosewell should dye by the hand of an Irish man in three dayes and further the Dyponent faith not