In Council June 29th 1790

William Parker of Montgomery County by his Petition sets forth, that at March Court 1787 he applied to the Justices of said County Court for leave to change a Main road, leading through a Plantation on which he lived and that in consequence of said Petition the Court appointed Commissioners to examine the location of the road as it then run, and as proposed to be altered by the Petitioner - That the Commissioners after viewing the same, reported to the Court that the alteration would be of public advantage, which report being signed by only one of the Commissioners the Court refused to admit of the report being entered on record until the other Commissioner had signed it - the Court declaring at the same time that if the other Commissioner would sign the same that they would establish the report which was afterwards done. That he knew the sentiments of the Commissioner who had not signed the report, who was then in Washington County perfectly coincided with the other Commissioner - and being informed that he would not return for a considerable time, and the road running immediately through his intended corn field for that year, he altered the road agreeably to the report, for which
