Executive Department.

Annapolis, December 1830.

Gentlemen of the Senate,
and of the House of Delegates:

The period has arrived, when we have to present a narrative of our proceeding in the course of the current year, and we take advantage of the occasion, to offer our congratulations upon the distinguished evidence of public confidence which you have received from the hands of the people.

To you, has been entrusted, by your constituents, the high responsibility of protecting their rights, and of devising such measures as will advance their welfare and happiness; and coming as you do, recently from them, acquainted with their interests and their wishes, you are well prepared to commence your duties and to perform them in such manner, as to promote the great purposes for which you have been selected.

In meeting on this interesting occasion, it behoves us to tender our unfeigned acknowledgment to a kind and bencigint Providence, for the many blessings bestowed upon our Country. Among them, there are surely none more calculated to call forth the effusions of our gratitude, than the enjoyment of peace with all nations. By his bountiful hand, we have been abundantly supplied, also, with the productions of the earth. The resolutions expressive of the high admiration of the Legislature for the gallant conduct displayed by three of our distinguished naval officers in the late war, have received due notice. The swords which were required to be prepared and presented under the resolutions referred to, have not been finished, but according to the agreement will be ready for presentation in the next month.

In tendering testimonials to the officers, who have done honor to their state, by their bravery in honorable service in the late war, the name of a most gallant gentleman has escaped my notice, no doubt, inadvertently, of former Legislatures, and we, modestly, respectfully, wish now to introduce it to your attention:- We allude to Capt. George Rogers. The celebrated action between the Wasp and the British sloop, the Peacock, is fresh in recollection. It was in that hard fought battle, Lieutenant Rogers, of the Wasp,
