

of his letter. It grieved me much that I could not see my friend when at Easton. Mr. P. and myself duly appreciated your affectionate invitation and will bear it long in recollection.
No man more laments the situation of his people than

Amos Pinkney