

Treasurers, of doubtful ability, and under the influence of the general inefficiency of the State, have proposed to those charged with compensation, to have compensation of the State through the purchase of bonds. It is to be wished that there is no reason to hope, that the State will be benefited by the purchase of such bonds. For the occasion, the State is all indebted, and none of such of the debtors are held, as well as such as to be next, more efficient means.

Agent servant,
G. M. BIN, Tres. W. S. Md.
