

and conduct, she has as yet, been in a great degree unsuccessful. She has enjoyed the best advantages which the school affords, and has made perceptible progress: still it has been very small, and there is reason to fear that she will not succeed in acquiring such a knowledge of language as to enable her to write and read. Duty requires me to conceal nothing from the committee, and I therefore make the above statement, though sincerely sorry to do so.

6. Robert Lambdin, about twenty years old, sensible, studious, and well-behaved. He is doing well.

7. John W. Kinnamont; about seventeen. His progress was quite slow at first, but he has since done much better, and gives promise of ultimate success.

8. Margaret W. Ewell, sixteen years old. She is making respectable advancement in her education, and though her memory is not very good, we see no cause for discouragement respecting her.

9. Henrietta Speake; about fourteen; an amiable girl, possessed of a good mind, and making good progress in her education.

10. Milliam Stevenson; about twelve. A boy of good talents. His conduct has been correct, and his improvement quite respectable.

11. Willy Ann Davis; upwards of twenty years old; a very promising pupil in all respects.

12. Priscilla Davis; sister of the above; an amiable little girl, and like her sister, doing well.

13. Elijah Anderson; about sixteen years old; has been with us but a short time; but begins to improve.

14. Sarah Stewart; thirteen years of age; the last received; like the preceding, she is becoming more and more interested, and we hope will do well.

These pupils have been, in general, quite contented and happy since their residence in the Institution, and it gives me much pleasure to make so favourable a report in regard to their conduct and their intellectual improvement.

They have also, in general, enjoyed excellent health.

It is known to the committee that they enjoy in common with our other pupils, the advantages of moral instruction and discipline, and that the promotion of industrious habits and encouragement, to engage at proper times in healthful amusement, are duties which we endeavour to discharge towards all our pupils.

On the whole we have much encouragement to hope that the benevolent objects of the Legislature of Maryland to-
