

my memory or ingenuity to aid them in any way whatever, even were it in my power. I have no account to copy, having never rendered any, other than what the Treasurer left with you. Of the final settlement of that account, I am still without any official intelligence. If the predictions of the Treasurer are not verified, then he is mistaken; and for this result I am not, surely, to be blamed. I think it probable the ex-Treasurer may be in Frederick in the course of the month. I will see him in a few days, and request him to explain to you the mode in which I paid the acceptances, and what disposition he made of them. It is a matter of which I know no more than the man in the moon.

I am, respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

T. FILLEBROWN, Jr.

THOMAS TURNER, Esq.
