the Members as in the forenoon

The Cautionary the Governor lays before the Board a Letter from the said Mr. Allen which is as follows

117

November 29th 1763

I am glad to find the Board of Revenue have disolved your commissions into execution Powers with which they are not invested the Board of Treasury in England having just as much right of displacing the Lord Treasurer, as the Board of Revenue have of removing an accountant. And little did I think, after the declaration made by your Excellency on Thursday Night, which was that you should decline acting in the Affairs yourself, which conduct you followed with respect to the other Commissions, as Mr. Maitland has inform-me saying, that you deferred ^{giving} him possession of his til the arrival of the new Governor) to receive an Order to deliver up the Papers to Major Jenkins, as Agent appointed by your Excellency

I explained to you my Sentiments in general upon the Subject of the Agency founded upon the best Opinions I could obtain and maturely digested by myself. If that Paper should be
