C H A P. XXXIV.

A Supplement to the act to raise the supplies for the year seventeen hundred and eighty-three.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it appears, by the return of the assessors and the commissioners of the tax, in pursuance of the act to raise the supplies for the present year, that in several of the counties, merchant grist mills, forges, furnaces, stills, and fulling mills, were not valued to the owners, under pretext that they were excepted from taxation, by the exception in the said act, "of the working tools of mechanics and manufacturers," and such conduct in the
