of some one of the United States, for the space of three whole years next preceding such importation; and the residence of such slave in some one of the United States, for three years, as aforesaid, antecedent to his coming into this state, shall be fully proved, to the satisfaction of the naval officer or collector of the tax, by the oath of the owner, or some one or more credible witness or witnesses.

Proviso.

II. Provided always, That nothing herein contained shall be construed or taken to set any slave free, who is brought into this state by any person travelling through this state, or sojourning therein for a short time, such slave not being sold or otherwise disposed of in this state, but carried by the owner out of this state.

Slaves manumitted not to vote at elections, &c.

III. And be it enacted, That no slave manumitted agreeable to the laws of this state, or made free in consequence of this act, or the issue of any such slave, shall be entitled to the privilege of voting at elections, or of being elected or appointed to any office of trust or profit, or to give evidence against any white person, or to enjoy any other rights of a freeman, other than to hold property, and to obtain redress in law or equity for any injury to his person or property.

Slaves from other states to serve no longer than the laws oblige, &c.

IV. And be it enacted, That no person brought into this state from any of the United States, who is not a slave for life by the laws of the state from which such person is brought, shall be considered as a slave for life in this state, but such person brought into this state shall serve for the time which the laws of the state from which such person is brought oblige him or her to serve, and no longer.
