Passed 19th of Dec. 1800.

WHEREAS the public road leading from Belle-Air to the city of Baltimore, appointed to be laid out by the original act to which this is a further supplement, has been laid out, opened and cleared, at a very considerable expence, from Belle-Air to the line of Baltimore county, and from the interfection with a road leading to the house of Harry Dorsey Gough to the city of Baltimore, and the intermediate part of said road lying between the said line of Baltimore county and the said point of interfection remains still to be opened, cleared and completed, whereby that part of the said road which has been completed in Harford county is rendered totally usefess: And whereas doubts are entertained that the said intermediate part of said road cannot be opened agreeably to the plot thereof filed in the clerk's office in Baltimore county, unless at a very heavy expence, and over very bad ground, and it is alleged that the said intermediate part of said road may be laid out on better ground, and opened at a less expence, than opening the same agreeably to the plot filed as aforesaid; therefore,
