

Whereunto replied by the Chancellor that true it was his Lordship had only (as hath been usuall in all Assemblies) recommended to them principally those two things, but it could not be thence inferred that his Lordship thereby had tyed up his hands from offering to their Consideration any thing else Material, especially when the Lower house themselves suddenly after and at the Beginning of this Session had pitched upon new Matters for which they had sett out their Committees

The Amendment and perfecting of the Bill therefore further pressed to them according to their own Vote since eight and forty hours or a less time may compleat the same, which being of so great Importance to this Province, This house desire they will not wholly Wave it for a few hours time and therefore if they think fit to return to their house and take the same into their further Consideration & Debate this house would readily join with them in a full Body or by a Committee of both houses to make such Additions or Amendments of the said Bill as shall be thought necessary, But this house earnestly press that a Bill so Beneficial and Material to the Province as they conceive this to be may not be wholly Quashed -

They go to their house to Consider of it
