The clerk of the house of delegates delivers a bill, entitled, An act, being a further supplement to the act, entitled, An act to incorporate the stockholders in the Union Bank of Maryland, passed by that house Decem-ber 5, 1809. And the following resolutions:

By the HOUSE of DELEGATES, December 4, 1809.

Whereas certain resolutions were entered into by the "house of delegates" of the general assembly of Mary-land, at the last November session, the object of which was to impress a belief upon the public mind, that the citizens of the state of Maryland viewed the act passed by congress "imposing an embargo, and the several acts supplementary thereto, as constituting a portentous system of unnecessary, impolitic and unprecedented re-straint upon the foreign trade and domestic intercourse of these United States;" and also directing "the se-nators and representatives from this state, in the congress of the United States, to exert themselves with all convenient diligence in endeavours to procure a speedy relief from the operation of the aforesaid act, and the several acts supplementary thereto:" And whereas "the public will" has been lately expressed by "the pub-lic voice itself" in the election for the immediate representative branch of this legislature, so as to leave no doubt what the real, true and unveiled sentiments of the people of Maryland are, relative to that important and politic measure of our government, so far as their sentiments at this time can be ascertained by their sup-porting a policy of a similar nature, and by their electing, as members of this body, men who were the warm advocates and active friends of every leading measure of the late administration: And whereas the late "public voice" has shewn, conclusively, to every unprejudiced and impartial mind, that the success so much boasted of, in the said resolutions, by the majority of the late "house of delegates," must have proceeded from the ma-jority misrepresentations and deceptions made and used to deceive and ensnare the unguarded voter, and not from any real change in the political tenets of the state: And whereas to correct and counteract the false impressions which may have been made upon the public mind by the proceedings of the majority in the "house of delegates" at their last November session, touching a measure so extensively interesting to the whole American people and in order to remove the unfavourable opinion of the politics of this state, which the false colouring of the majority in the last "house of delegates" may have created in our sister states, it is a duty which the members of the present assembly owe to their country, their constituents and themselves, to express a true and solemn declaration of their sentiments, as to the measures of the late and present administrations of the general govern-ment, and to set forth those feelings of unqualified disapprobation which the said resolutions have excited therefore, RESOLVED, That it is the conscientious belief, and unbiassed conviction, of this legislature, repre-senting the interests and speaking the sentiments of the independent freemen of Maryland, that the aforesaid act imposing an embargo, and the several acts supplementary thereto, were wise, efficient and dignified measures
