

By the Senate, March 12th, 1827.

Gentlemen of the House of Delegates,

The senate have received a bill from your honourable body entitled, an act concerning the Washington monument, by which the sum of twenty thousand dollars has been appropriated to the monument for the current year. The senate think this appropriation in the present state of the treasury liberal and proper; and fully concur therein— But they think other provisions of the bill exceptionable— It is too late in the session to state the reasons upon which the objections are founded. And it being a money bill, the senate cannot amend it, but will respectively suggest that if all the bill except the first and last sections be stricken out, it will pass the senate.

By order,

Wm. Kilty, Clk.
