

The House of Commons, in case of danger, shall be allowed to have a full power to give by Bill the necessary assistance to the King's Majesty in the execution of his power, should he
 be so ordered by the House of Commons.
 And that the House of Commons should be allowed to have a full power to give by Bill
 the necessary assistance to the King's Majesty
 in the execution of his power, should he
 be so ordered by the House of Commons.
 And that the House of Commons should be allowed to have a full power to give by Bill
 the necessary assistance to the King's Majesty
 in the execution of his power, should he
 be so ordered by the House of Commons.

The House of Commons, in case of danger, shall
 be allowed to have a full power to give by Bill
 the necessary assistance to the King's Majesty
 in the execution of his power, should he
 be so ordered by the House of Commons.

Under the following words, viz.
 Ordered that the heads of the Indians speech be sent to the Lower House. And that they be desired to be ready for a Conference with this House by three of the Clock this afternoon. Against which they may digest into writing any thing they have to object the particulars desired; or if they desire, who will be present at the Conference. And for further order, that the Great Room where the Court is kept, be prepared after the use of the Clock for the Conference of both Houses with the Indians.

John Gwynne Cler.
 After forwarding of this Paper. Mr. Speaker ordered writ to the Messenger to the Upper House, to signify to the