Fifth. That their being amongst the Indians in general that they should be left to their own federal Agents, that it will invite greater difficulties to the Province in general.

Secondly. That Royalists hath reason to suspect that the designs of the English government is coming amongst the English and French Colonies upon their own out of design purposely to discover the strength of the Province and the advantages that they may get by the Indian lands should they be really inclined which will be very dangerous consequences

Thirdly. We have reason further to suspect that the English and French Indians have powerful Friends and Logisticks in the Indian lands among whom the French who may be dangerous Confederate to the English should they be permitted amongst Neighboor Indians.

Fourthly. If they are absolutely removed to the Province, and English might be with so Englishmen in India that should a war be made among them your Regent or some other provincial and others
