

At the Council Chamber where being admitted -

His Excellency told them he was sorry to send for them upon this occasion (to wit) that there should be difference between his Hon^{ble} His Maj^{ty} Council and the House that he had never proposed anything to them but for the Honor of God, His Maj^{ty} Service and the Welfare of the Province - to which the House had voluntarily assented and that as for his own particular he had never asked anything of them.

To which Mr^r Speaker replied, that as he was but one of the House so without their advise and Consent he could make no Reply.

Yet he durst undertake that the whole House believed that His Excellency had very honourable intentions to the House - which had only endeavoured to maintain its ancient Privileges.

Then His Excellency told them he had found out a Expedient to put an end to their differences - And thereupon prorogued them until the 6th instant.
