We cannot concur with your Honors that the last indorsement on this Bill by this House is any ways unparliamentary but are of a contrary opinion and well assured that this Session is the time to which the Bill was last referred — and that every Session of parliament is in Law a new parliament — we are not uninfors of the difference between an adjournment and a prorogation and the last was neither but a dissolution and soe this a new Assembly and if a matters referred from the last to this should be discontinued it would be very inconvenient for then every thing not then finished must begin a new and then to what purpose is any reference when it is power of every Government to dissolve the Assembly and have a new one every Session or to what intent does the House of Commons at the election
