

By the SENATE, December 12, 1778.

Gentlemen,

ALTHOUGH we think the amendment proposed by this house would have been productive of salutary effects, yet considering that the bill, entitled, An act to prevent distilling grain into spirit, in the form agreed to by your message, may conduce to the public benefit, we shall not persist in our amendment, and therefore consent to pass it in the manner proposed.

By order,

R. RIDGELY, cl. sen.

Which was read, and the bill to prevent distilling grain into spirit was ordered to be engrossed.

On motion, the question was put, That there be an allowance of six hundred pounds per annum to the chief judge of the court of appeals?
