Whereas it appears to this general assembly, that Jacob Strap enlisted and served faithfully three years in the first Maryland regiment, and that after his discharge from the army he was captured at sea by the enemy during the late war, and carried to Portsmouth in Great-Britain, and there imprisoned until the restoration of peace; that the said Jacob Strap, being destitute of money, could not return to this state until the month of December, seventeen hundred and eighty-seven, when the time for granting certificates to soldiers for the depreciation of their pay had elapsed, and he was thereby prevented from obtaining a certificate from the auditor-general for the balance due to him: And whereas it appears just and reasonable that the said Jacob Strap should receive a certificate for the depreciation of the pay due to him whilst in the service; Resolved, That the auditor-general be and he is hereby empowered and authorised to settle and adjust the account of the said Jacob Strap, and grant him a certificate for the balance due to him.
