tioned; and a Multitude of others, as well as the English History; that the Common Law, though frequently confirmed in Parliament, was not sufficient, to secure Him from Oppression, and Violence: And there is no other Remedy, when Laws are violated, but to punish the Violators, and establish, and conviolated, but to punish the Violators, and establish, and confirm the Laws; which have been frequently done, and sometimes with great Difficulty, and the Expence of a great deal of Blood, and Treasure.

WHOEVER has read the Parliamentary Proceedings, in the Last, as well as Queen Anne's Reign; will find, that when the Sasety of the Government, rendered a temporary Suspension of the Execution of the Habeas Corpus A& necessary; it was always opposed, when proposed to be of any considerable Dualways opposed, when proposed to be of any considerable Dualways opposed, when proposed to be of any considerable Dualways opposed, when proposed to be of any considerable Dualways opposed, when proposed to be of any considerable Dualways opposed, when proposed to be of any considerable Dualways opposed, was not above 18 Months; so careful A&s, that I ever saw, was not above 18 Months; so careful has the British Parliament been, to preserve to a People, justly fond of Liberty, and wisely jealous, of every thing, that might be destructive of, or hurtful to It; the Benefit of a Law, that is a great Support and Preservative of Liberty.

THIS shews, that the British Subjects, esteem the several Statutes, that have been made to confirm their Common Law Rights, to be of mighty Consequence, and Advantage to them: Rights, to be of mighty Consequence, and Advantage to them: And any one, may well imagine, that if any Attempt should he made, to abrogate those great Defences and Bulwarks of the People's Liberty; every body would be alarmed, and dread People's Liberty; every body would be alarmed, and dread the Introduction of the same, or greater Mischiefs, than those, that render'd the making so many confirmatory Acts necessary: And it would be stupid, and irrational, to think the contrary.

IF then, the Case was, as hath been already mention'd, in England? That, notwithstanding its Common Law, entitles the People, to ample Liberties and Priviledges; that there were great Numbers of brave, honest Patriots, who understood the Laws
