

conform themselves to it. I wish any Thing of this Kind, may be found, upon due Consideration, to be practicable : If so, I am positive it would effectually convince them, that we are in Earnest, and oblige them to keep their Agreements ; which would alone (as some of those Gentlemen are of Opinion) be at least Forty Thousand Pounds per Annum, in this Province's Way : It is certainly worth trying, to save so much Money to the Country.

I now conclude, with assuring my Country-Men, That if further Particulars relating to this Affair come to me, which I think may be useful, I shall in the same Manner communicate them to the Publick, and shall only add, That if in any Thing I have been able to do herein, either in London or here, I have rendered any service to my Country, I shall think my Time well employ'd ; if not, I shall still enjoy that Peace of Mind, which always attends an honest Man, who is conscious of having used his utmost Endeavours in so laudable a Cause as the Good of his Country ; which was the sincere Intention of,

My Friends and Country-Men,

Your assured Friend and Servant,

HENRY DARNALL.
