Good News for Housekeepers. Whitewashing Superseded! MAXWELL'S

PREPARED GYPSUM, Whitening and Coloring Walls.

A BEAUTIFUL, DURABLE AND CHEAP ALTICLE. To invent a substance which would supersele the old at le of Whitewashing, has long been the aim of the subscriber, and a whit often expressed by housekeepers. That desideration has at last been obtained, and it alterds the inventor much pleasure that he can supply the public with a substitute, which, while it has all the good qualities of Lime, has none of its objectionable features. Fatures.
The dypoun gives the walls a brilliant gloss, will not rule off, and is therefore more durable, is easyly mixed, and costs, no note than the common blue, and its sanitary qualifies are excellent; it is therefore in every respect unsurpassed by snything of the kind exer offered to the public.

Revival of Peach Trees.

The Philadelphia Ledger, announces :

discovery of no small moment in the interests of agriculture that has been made by ests of agriculture that has been made by Dr. George B. Wood, and communicated by him to the American Philosophical Society, of which he is President. Peach trees in this vicinity, after producing a few crops, not only cease bearing, but perish themselves in a short time; whereas their natural life is fifty or sixty years or more. The cause of this defective power of growth is believed by Dr. Wood to be owing to a delicioncy of potash in the soil, and he assures us that if this alkall be supplied to the tree so that it shall reach the small roots and be absorbed, the fruit-bearing power is restored, and the tree itself, if prematurely perishing, is revived. Believing with most persons that the cause of the decay lay in worms at the root of the peach tree, he put in operation a plan which he had seen his father perform more than fifty years before, viz: of digging than fifty years before, viz: of digging around the base of the stem a hole four or five inches deep, scraping away all the worms that could be found at the junction

Method of Rearing Young Cattle.

A correspondent of the American Stock

Journal gives his views on this subject as

There are two objects in rearing calves, each of which is of great importance. Ist —To effect it with out the assistance of milk at all; and 2nd,—To improve skim milk at all; and 2nd,—To improve skim milk in such a manner as to make, it more nutritions; it being well known that there is a prodigious difference in the growth and thriving of the animal, when fed with new or skimmed milk. I followed the method of gruel, made by barley and oats ground, with the greatest exactness, last year with two calves, both of which, so far from being reared, were so reduced, that though I changed their diet to milk, it was too late, and they both died.

reared, were so reduced, that though I changed their diet to milk, it was too late, and they both died.

My method is this:—In two or three days after they are calved, I take the calves from the cows, and put them by themselves; I then give them a kind of water gruel, composed of barley about one-third and two thirds oats, ground very fine; this is boiled about half an hour. I give each calf about a quart in the morning and the same quantity at sunset, and increase it as the calf grows older. After they have had this diet about two weeks, I put a little hay in their stalls, which they will gradually eat. I keep them in this manner until they are about two months old, then I turn them out to grass. By this method I have raised between fifty and sixty head within the past four years, and with a trifle of expense. I have come to the second object, viz.; that of improving skim milk, a desideratum as much to be desired as the former.—I take one gallon of skimmed milk, and add to it about half a pint of common molasses, stirring until well mixed; add to this one ounce of linseed oil-cake, mixing it thoroughly; then let this mixture be put into the other part of the milk, and in this state it is fit for use.

WINE MAKING.—Pick the grapes off the stems when fully ripe, rejecting bad ones. Pass them through one of the Wine Mills to tear open skins, but not to bruise the pulp. Press moderately; then get all that remains in the must to make brandy or an inferior wine of. Strain and fill into clean barrels; then insert a bent tube tight in the bung, and let the lower (outside) end rest under the surface of water in a bucket, so that while all the gas shall escape, the air will not get to the wine. When it has done fermenting, rack it off into clean barrels, bung it up, and set it in a cool place; bottle it in a few months. The great secret of making good wine is to select only the best grapes, and not press out the secret of making good wine is to secret only the best grapes, and not press out the the sour portion of the pulp. Nothing is here said about the numerous mixtures of water, sugar and grape juice, which are frequently connected and sold under the name of wine, but only of the pure juice of the grape, properly fermented.

worms that could be found at the junction of the stem and roots, and filling the hollows thus made with fresh wood askes from the fire, which of course, retained all their potash. This was done in the autumn of 1863; and with a result in the following spring, at which he was himself astonished. The trees appeared to have been restored to all their early freshness and vigor; they put forth bright green leaves, blossomed copiously, and bore a crop of fruit such as they had never borne before, many of the branches breaking down under the load of the peaches. Dr. Wood, in reflecting on these results, and noticing that several of Rarltan Dropper Combined Reaper and Mower; The Celebrated Russell Thrasher Westinghouse Thrusher; Steel Tooth Horse Rakes;

the peaches. Dr. Wood, in reflecting on these results, and noticing that several of the peach trees treated had no worms, came to the conclusion that we must look for an explanation to some other cause than the destruction of a few worms, and this he believes to be the ashes, the potash of which being dissolved by the rains, had descended along the roots to the rootlets, and presented to them the very food for want of which they were dying.

Decaying apple trees bearing stinted and inedible fruit have been revived by a similar process, and with the like results. All of Dr. Wood's orchards give promise of an abundant supply of fruit this season. Grain Fans; Corn Shellers; Plows and Plow Irons; Cultivators and Cultivator Teach

The fruit need not be cooked—only heated to the boiling point—unless in prepairing pears or quinces, or some other hard fruits, that may require more cooking, and then only just so that a straw may be passed through, always being careful to have juice enough to cover the fruit. As soon as boiling hot, empty a can and fill; then another, or as many as can well be attended to. Let the cans stand open until you can comfortably bear the hands upon them. Meanwhile more fruit may be heated.

Cut thick writing paper in round pieces the size of the top of each can, and when the contents of the cans are cooled, slip a piece over the top of the fruit in each can, and at once fill up on top of the paper with boiling juice (saved for the purpose,) and put on the covers as soon as filled, according to the directions given.

I often seal up cherries and tomatoes, only for winter use, in one gallon stone jars that are small at the top prepared just the same as for glass.
