Whitening and Coloring Walls A BEAUTIFUL, DURABLE AND CHEAP ARTICLE. To invent a substance which would supersede the old state of Whitewashing, has long been the aim of the subscriber, and a wish often expressed by housekeepers. That desideratum has at last been obtained, and it affords the inventor much pleasure that he can supply the public with a substitute, which, while it has all the good qualities of Lime, has none of its objectionable features. feature.

The typeum gives the walls a brilliant gloss, will not rub off, and is therefore more durable, is easily mixed, and costs no more than the common bline, and its anitary qualifies are excellent; it is therefore in every respect unsurpassed by anything of the kind ever offered to the public.

For The Coeil Whig. From Baltimore to Cumberland.

Leaving Baltimore by the B. & O. Itailroad, at 8 A. M., we were soon passing through hills and fields composed of clay and sand, covered mostly with pine and scrub-oaks. What appears to be an exhausted tobacco field, is noticed on one side, which bears no marks of having been plowed for several years, but is dotted all over with barns or drying houses. Here is room for work and manure to restore the wasted fertility.

At Washington Junction, seven miles out, the road strikes the Patapsco, which it follows in its serpentine course, shut in on all sides by hills, for about twenty miles. Near the thriving town of Ellicott City, some vineyards have been started on the precipitous hills.

The marks of the great freshet that swept through Baltimore two years or more ago are very plainly to be seen here. Trees twenty feet or more in height are bent like grass, and piles of drift wood are lying thickly strewn on land, apparently twenty feet above present low water mark.

Near Mount Airy the railroad leaves the Patapsco and strikes a stream running into the Monocaev, which valley it crosses at Leaving Baltimore by the B. & O. Rail-

WHOLE NO. 1,534.

On Sunday, the 4th of December, the recently completed Methodist Episcopal Church, at Rowlandsville, was dedicated to the service of God, with the usual appropriate and impressive ceremonies.—It was our good fortune to be present on that occasion, and seldom layer we say to nt was our good fortune to be present on that occasion, and seldom have we spent a more profitable day, or witnessed such an harmonious and united outpouring of the people to formally set apart for the Al-mighty a house, made by their own hands, in which to worship and glorify Him for-ever.

No more beautiful day, even of this remarkable weather, could have been selected, and as the hour of morning service approached, the people came streaming in from over the hills in all directions, making the little village present a gladay areas. the little village present a gala-day appearance, and filling the church to its utmost capacity. The choir of the Port Deposit M. E. s waiting on some one else. AN ENTHUSIASTIC ADMIRER.-The New orleans Picayune says:—A countryman at the theatre, the other night, as the escort of some ladies, retired at an intermission and returned with a pound or two of peanuts wrapped in a paper, and two luge bananas sticking from his pocket. Just then, however, and before he had time to take his seat, one of the actresses who had take his seat, one of the actresses who had especially won his admiration, came to the footlights and warbled a beautiful melody. The full, rich, voice, exquisite in intonation and breathing strains almost divine, completed the conquest of the countryman's heart, and unable to restrain his delight, he heaved on the stage his peanuts, bananas and pocket haudkerchief as a tribute to the fair enchantress. There was a momentary astonishment visible upon the faces on the stage, a single interval of hesitation, which was removed by the countryman's voice trip in the land, besides affording a continual source of valuable instruction. especially won his admiration, came to the footlights and warbled a beautiful melody. The full, rich, voice, exquisite in intonation was removed by the countryman's voice full and clear, "Take 'em, gal, by jingo, you're welcome."

Do you eat brown sugar because it is cheaper? If you do, buy a microscope, and examine a lump of the next you take home. "Astonishment" will be hardly the word to express the feelings you will have at this result. Lest you may not get the microscope, allow us to describe what you can see. Under a powerful glass, there will be seen myriads of horrible monsters as large as beetles, and having the appearance of crabs. Four dreadful legs, with claw-pincers at the ends of them, jointed in four parts as with armor, and bristling with sharp-pointed spears, are in front of the monster, and his head has a long pyramidal form in two joints, with five finger tips at the terminus where the mouth should be. The body is oval shaped and marked almost exactly like that of a crab, only upon the rims of an inner circle upon the back there are twelve more of those long, sharp spears, with two at the tail, and four snake-like teneacula, exceedingly fine in the articulation, and no doubt intended, like puss's whiskers, to be feelers to warn the animals of danger. The reverse side shows the ugliness of the beast even more than the obverse; but it also shews the wondrous mechanical genious of the maker of it. Each limb is padded with a mass of muscle at the base of it, which gives the impression of immense power, and over the muscle there is a case of armor through which it shows. These creatures are eager, restive and ravenous; always falling foul of each other, or attacking great lumps of sugar as large in reality as a mathematical point. With the pincers attached to the of each other, or attacking great tumps of sugar as large in reality as a mathematical point. With the pincers attached to the end of each probosis they take hold of and tear each other, repeating in their small way the enormous tragedies of Tennyson's primal mensters. A spoonful of this raw, coarse sugar was dissolved in about three times the quantity of water whom as with coarse sugar was dissolved in about three times the quantity of water, when, as with a conjuror's rod, animalcules sprang to the surface and floated there, swimming about and up and down, like the beasts that wriggle in soft water tubs, and finally turn into mosquitoes. They can be seen with the naked eye, but not in their entire hideousness. It has been proved that in every pound of unrefined, raw sugar, there are one hundred thousand of these acari.

A Lump of Brown Sugar.

It Will Pay!—And How.—We heard recently of two farmers who each came to the village with a load of grain. One accepted the first offer at six cents a bushel over the provious sale. The other having read in his local paper of an advance of 15 to 20 cents per bushel, held off until he obtained 18} cents advance, or $4 more than the other, on 32 bushels of the same quality of grain. The paper cost him $2 for a whole year. The above instance was only one of several such gains during the year, in sales and purchases. Did the paper pay! His family know what is going on at home and abroad, and are growing up intelligent. Only last month a man here received one of forty or fifty "private confidential circulars," sent by mail to different parties, offering great returns for $10. He sent the money, and that is the last he can hear from it. Two of his neighbors received the same "taking" circulars and were disposed to invest also, but turning to the American Agriculturist they found the affair described among the working of severables.
