The Church must teach and train her children in the principles of temperance. Here is where an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure. Not more than one out of fifty drunkards ever reforms. Children are beginning life, and just here we ought to deal with the beginnings of sin. Pledge them! Before they are tempted and tainted by the wreathed wine cup, and tossed on the unchecked waves of habit, pleage them to shun the way of evil doers! glass, intemperance would in the next genration entirely disappear. Our trees, and llowers, and horses, are all trained to shape and service in their infancy, and shall the Church overlook the possibilities of the ductile plants of her vineyard till they have grown beyond her influence for virtue and 5th. The Church must east her votes in the interest of temperance. This she fails to do at present. The Church has in this country, one million of votes, (when the 16th Amendment is adopted the number will be vastly increased,) which she annually deposits to perpetuate the tyranny of rum. The whole politacal machinery is propelled and manipulated by this vulgar Tyrant, and the Church, by the enemy's cry of "politics," is frightened into tacit submission to his unrighteous power. The Church, in exercising the elective franchise, has had no union, no consistency. The members thereof vote their party ticket alike, whether the candidate comes from the communion table, or the bar-room. The Church must learn not to east a vote for a trader in, or an habitual drinker of ardent spirits. Until this stand is taken by the Church, our politics will remain corrupt as now. Counting on the Church as their unreasoning dupes, the wire-pullers will call on her to vote for men to make our laws, and control our revenues, and decide the grave moral questions of the day, whom we would not trust with a dollar of our money, nor tolerate in our social circles. authority that legalizes it. The seller is merely the agent-the law-maker is the principal, who is only an instrument in the hands of the voter. All the streams that and force from the spring whence they rise. So all the damaging and corrupting influences of encbriety that flood the homes and hopes of men, have their origin at the hopes of men, have their origin at the ballad-box, which is the reservoir of all law in a Republican Government. Much as world and leave it without adding something she may dislike to mingle in the strifle of to its wealth, its virtue and its progress, solities can the Church righteened dela politics, can the Church righteously delegate her high prerogatives in this regard to the mammon of unrighteousness? There cannot be—there shall not be a truce to the Churche's fight against the wicked business of drunkard-making.
