He anticipates quite a harvest of small change, if he can only command the earliest prices in the Busydale market. Satisfied that if boys and girls make successful and happy farmers and farmers' wives, they must lare the culture of the soil, and enjoy the labor it brings, I never lose a chance to increase their opportunities of enlarging the income they derive from the plot of ground their father has given them for their own. Last summer they realized quite handsome returns in their various investments in sage-plants, tomatoes, and pop-corn. This year they are going to fertilize a strip along one of the fences, and plant lima-beans, using the fence for the trellis, instead of bean-poles. This experiment has been tried by one of This experiment has been tried by one of our neighbors with success. The price of fresh lima-beans, shelled, did not go below fresh lima-beans, shelled, did not go bollow twenty cents a quart in our market all last summer, and this is a vegetable they can raise and prepare for market very readily. Add Sand to Your Garden Soll.

A correspondent of The Germantown Telegraph gives the following good advice on gardening:

The natural soil of a large portion of the American gardens could be improved and made to yield heavier crops by an admission of sand. In many sections where clayey soils prevail, gardens thus treated would be rendered more friable and could be worked earlier in spring. Sand, to the depth of two or three inches, spread over the surface and gradually intermixed by cultivation, would in many instances effect a great improvement. One of the important features which this mode of treatment possesses, is the permanent character of the improvement. on gardening : COLVÍN, Hadiey's station, Ill.

possesses, its free permanent character of the improvement.

When fertilizers are merely added to the soil, it gradually and in a few years loses its richness as the added elements disappear; but sand applied artificially does not disappear, but remains for ages. garden-soils that are naturally light, sandy, or gravelly, frequently do not possess sufficient strength to retain for any length of time the manure applied to them; hence, an application of heavy loam will be found beneficial in more than one point of view. The present is not too late to apply sand or loam, as your knowledge of the character of the garden soil will dictate.

In clay regions, beds of sand may be found within a reasonable distance, and should you be required to pay twenty-five found within a reasonable distance, and should you be required to pay twenty-five cents per load it will prove a profitable investment. Sand should compose one-fifth part of the soil of flower-beds.

How to Boil Potatoes.—Well wash the potatoes, put them into an iron saucepan with a lump of salt, cover them with cold water, fix the lid down closely, and place them, not upon, but near the fire, till the water boils; then, when the skins begin to break, strain every drop of the water off, and cover them instantly with a clean cloth, which must be pressed down so as to prevent any escape of the steam. This being done, place the saucepan on the trivet or the bar of the range, and by the time the rest of the dinner is it for serving, the potatoes also will be ready. Four important things in this mode of cooking potatoes must be borne in mind—first, a full hour before dinner is to be dished up must be allowed for the potatoes; secondly, unless they are very old potatoes, they should be boiled in their coats; thirdly, a fork should never be used to try them while cooking; and fourthly, the instant they are done they should be carried to the table. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead The undersigned having assumed the entire control of this Mill, takes this method of informing the public that he is now prepared with the best of machinery and the best mechanics to furnish of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous.

Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which WINDOW & DOOR FRAMES, make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable.

Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume. ELKTON, MD.,
