From the Maryland Farmer. The Symmetrizing Rack and Manger.

The effect of training the physical tructure of man and the lower order of animals has produce some very interest-ing results, and has established the fact that radical changes may be produced in the natural conformation.

The cadet, or military student, is developed in the chest, and given a fine graceful carriage by disciplining and drilling for that purpose; the Indian papoose is lashed on a board, and thereby given an erect figure; hence the proverb, "as straight as an Indian."
The feet of the Chinese are checked in growth, until those of an adult are no larger than those of a natural growth at eight or ten years of age.

The old coach-horse which has long fed from a high manger, and been long accustomed to being severely reined up, can scarcely get his head to the ground, in fact he cannot, without spreading his front limbs, or bending the knees.

These examples of the effect of training and forming the animal structure, furnish reliable evidence that we may fashion the horse very much as we please by commencing at an early age and using the necessary appliances adapted to the object desired

We have given an illustration of what we denominate the symmetrizing rack and manger.

[This is an upright post, with man Queensware & Willow-ware, ger and rack attached so as to be raised and lowered to suit the hight of the horse, always placed so high that the animal will have to reach up and curve his neck in order to feed from the box

Ep.]
The object of this feeding arrangement is to require the animal to take the position shown in the cut at all times while he is feeding in the stable.

By beginning with the feal as soon as it will take food, and adjusting the rack so that it can just reach the food when it has distended and arched the neck all that he can bear, without occasioning too much discomfort, and by readjusting the rack as the growth of the animal requires it, the elegance and symmetry llustrated in the figure, may be produce n the matured animal.

The horse cannot feed from the rack as represented, without depressing the posterior portion of the dorsal section of the vertebra and in the entire lumbar section, or depressing the back from the withers to the highest portion of the rump, and raising all back of that point, thus producing the most graceful curved line imaginable, from the crown of the head to the tip of the tail, and symmetrizing the entire configuration of the animal; which characteristics will be perpetually maturing until their permanancy is secured.

This operation we recommend only in case in which the breed and character of the colt is such as to adapt it to the purposes of the saddle, the light carriage, and the family coach.

For the uses, style and symmetry add materially to the value of the animal. For draught purposes artificial symmetry produced in the manner described, is not only unnecessary, but is actually injurious to some extent, as the tendency of this configuration is to narrow the chest, elevate the abdomen, and give great rotundity and compactness to the trunk; these are not desirable characteristics in the draught horse, as he should not have the head elevated, the chest should be broad, and the stomach and belly capacious. In rearing the colt so as to adapt him to draught purposes, he should be fed from a manger and rack so placed, as to be about on a level with the nose, when in an easy position. This position of the neck tends to expand, or widen the chest and shoulders; and by feeding liberally with food of a moderate degree of nutri-tion the stomach and bowels are well distended, and their capacity for receiving and retaining food for labor increased, thus adaping the animal to his use.

The opposite characteristics are desirable in the other classes of horses enumerated. Horses for speed, or quick action, may have the chest narrowed and the trunk rounded, or compact, as they are usually fed upon highly nutrithis feeding arrangement, in the speedy road-horse, is not objectionable.

In rearing the horse for speedy work he should have a liberal supply of mus-cle-forming food, at all periods of his growth. While the foal depends on the dam for nourishment, her food should abound in this property.

The symmetrizing manger will be found immensely valuable to breeders of horses; as it will often double the market value of the animal developed by its J. WILKINSON, Rural Architect, Baltimore, Md.

CHICKEN CHOLERA.-Mr. W. J. Wil kinson contributes the following cures for Chicken Cholera to the Denton Union: "You state in your last issue that the

I once heard it hinted that quinine was a preventive against that destructive dis-I offer his services for this season, confidently believing him to be the best Horse ever offered to breeders of Trotting Stock in this section, and of the most fashionable blood; services and higher prices being paid for Hambletonian Horses than any other strain of stock produced in this or any other country. I have several of his colis coming three years old, which for style and speed cannot be excelled, if equaled by any in the country. I will take pleasure in showing them to gentlemen who have marses to serve.

His renowned sire, Rysolyk's Hambletonian, not only produced stock of extraordinary speed, but all his colts bred from good marse which have served good marse have proved themselves equally successful as sires of trotters. I will notice a few. Elward Everett, now owned by Mr. Bonner, and for which he paid avery high price, is the sire of Mountain Boy, for which Commodore Vanderbilt paid twerte thousand dollars. He is also the law trotted in 2.19. The famous dollars, the is also the hast trotted in 2.19. The famou dollars in the sale of Elwali-Hambletonian. The chickens refused to cat it at first, but I kept all other food from them until they did eat the dough. I hear of this disease in our country almost univesally, yet I am not plagued with it in the least now, though | WANTED ON CONSIGNMENTpefore I used the quinine I lost several hens during each week. Oftentimes persons bring them to the store in a drooping condition, with pale gills, feathers apparently dead, and the fowls in fact nearly ready to die. For this I have dipped a feather in spirits turpentine and run it down their throats. This has made permanent cures a num-I will state that at the very molerate fee of Fifty bollars for the season, the is a very sure feel getter,) with the privilege of the next season gratis if the mare does not prove with feel; and I desire only to serve good mares. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Cough, Bronchitis, Ashma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remely for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidot for them. Although settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

cured by it. Brouchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectaral in small and frequent doses.

For a Cough and Cold, no better remedy can be had. Take small doses three times a day and put the feet in warm water at night, until the disease is broken up.

For Influenza, when it affects the throat or lungs take the same course.

or four times a day.

For Croup, give large and frequent doses until the disease is overcome.

No family should be without the Cherry Pectoral on hand to protect them, in case of attack, from the above complaints. Its timely use often spares the patient a great amount of suffering and risk, which he would incur by waiting until he could get other aid. Parents, keep it in your houses
